SECRET SERVICE TRACING FLOOD OF COUNTERFEIT

Bogus Notes on Eastern Seaboard Coming From New York, Is Belief.

BAD BILLS ARE NOT ALL OF SAME TYPE

Arrest at Harrisonburg Is Among Late Developments in Treasury Clean-Up.

The source of a flood of spurious $10 bills, which have harassed merchants throughout the country and have recently made their appearance in the Capital and in Harrisonburg, Va., is being diligently traced by Secret Service agents.

In several Southern cities and in spots along the Atlantic Seaboard, the bogus notes, which are believed to emanate from a counterfeiting ring in New York City, have been accepted by merchants and sent to the Treasury Department by banks.

The same imitations were allegedly passed by Theodore Roosevelt Grant, 33, colored, of 301 R street northwest, who was arrested here last Saturday, and by Clyde Brasher, of Washington, who was taken into custody on Friday in Harrisonburg, Va., after his alleged accomplices had escaped.

The fraudulent bills are imitations of $10 Federal Reserve notes of the series of 1928, bearing the picture of Andrew Jackson. According to the Secret Service, the bills are very poor reproductions.

The case of Larence Lester Lillie, the 25-year-old, confessed counterfeiter, who shot two policemen Monday night while trying to escape from his captors after he was caught trying to pass a bogus note, is considered a separate case by the Secret Service. He had no accomplices in his counterfeiting activities, they believe.

A new bogus bill was uncovered yesterday when Ninth Precinct police temporarily detained Ursal Anna Stevenson, 25, colored, of 1443 Duncan street northeast, after a clerk in a 5-and-10 cent store on H street northeast became suspicious and called police. Secret Service men believe that the bill was innocently acquired by the woman and are trying to find its source.

Kermit Believed Innocent.

This note is different from the notes said to have been passed by Grant and Clyde Brasher. The two alleged accomplices of Brasher escaped from Harrisonburg in an automobile, the title of which was in the name of Kermit Brasher, of Bethesda, who was arrested here Sunday night.

Secret Service men, however, are convinced that Kermit Brasher is in no way connected with the counterfeiting plot. His brother, according to the Secret Service, had possession of the automobile last Friday when the alleged attempt to pass the spurious note took place.

Theory on Distribution.

Dispatches from Harrisonburg are that Clyde Brasher and two other men stopped in a store there and sought to purchase a carton of cigarettes, tending the bogus bill in payment. The clerk became suspicious of the bill.

Then the two men, who the police say were with Clyde Brasher, ran to the automobile and escaped after a chase of several miles, in which both police and citizens participated. Clyde Brasher did not get back to the car and was arrested, police said.

Clyde Brasher claims he was not with the men who tried to pass the money. He is being held in the Harrisonburg jail awaiting action next month by a Federal Grand Jury. He was arraigned there yesterday before U. S. Commissioner Glenn Ruebush.

Because of the fact that the same type of bogus notes have appeared almost simultaneously in widely separated parts of the country, the Secret Service is of the belief that they are being sold in one city and being distributed by their purchasers in other sections of the country.

Paraguay Says Bolivia Lost Whole Company

Asuncion, Paraguay, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The Paraguayan general staff in an official announcement today said that an entire Bolivian company was annihilated in an attack on Paraguayan positions in the Fort Nanawa sector of the Gran Chaco.

The communique said that 110 Bolivian dead were left on the battlefield and that the company's commander, Capt. Volpe, was among those killed. Other sectors were quiet today, the announcement added.

Senate Votes Merger Power To Roosevelt; Pay Cut Fails

Slash of 5 Per Cent in Departments' Funds Is Adopted.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

The Senate last night voted to give the incoming President almost absolute authority to reorganize the Federal Government.

Without a record vote, members adopted the Byrnes amendment. It empowers the Chief Executive to transfer, consolidate or abolish any Federal agency he sees fit, with the single exception of executive departments.

Only by a joint resolution can Congress override the President's recommendations, under this broadest authorization probably ever granted a President. His veto would send them back to Congress for a two-thirds vote. Lacking this, recommendations would become law in 60 days.

The reorganization vote and passage of the Treasury-Postoffice bill capped a day prolific in economy legislation, tempered by two important victories for Federal employes. Approximately $165,000,000 in economies was written into the Treasury-Postoffice bill.

The Senate beat the 12-3 per cent additional Federal pay cut by a 44-to-39 vote, throwing $17,000,000 in savings out of the measure, then amended the sweeping Bratton 5 per cent departmental cut with a guarantee that the 5 per cent not come out of the salaries of Government personnel.

Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, said this last action is his only "regret" in leaving the bill. He said it must necessarily result in the discharge of thousands of workers who otherwise would have been furloughed.

Steps leading up to final action last night on the Treasury-Postoffice appropriation bill were as follows:

1. Adopted the Costigan amendment by a vote of 52 to 30, exempting Federal employes from wage cuts or furloughs under the 5 per cent departmental slash.

2. Applied the Bratton amendment, directing heads of departments to make 5 per cent cuts in appropriations to every government establishment. The vote was 49 to 33.

3. Defeated the Senate Economy Committee's recommendation for a 1 2-3 per cent additional Federal salary slash, which would have brought the total pay cut to 10 per cent.

4. Defeated proposed 8 1-3 per cent cut in veterans' pensions above $1,000. Action, on motion of Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, was by viva voce vote.

5. Shouted down Senator Bingham's proposal to revoke the marriage clause in the economy act, under which either husband or wife must be discharged, where both are employed in the Government.

6. Reduced 10 per cent pay cut dealt enlisted men Monday to 8 1-3 per cent to conform with the Federal pay cut.

7. Reenacted for another year the economy act provision prohibiting filling of vacancies without written consent of the President.

A preamble phrased by Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, declaring existence of an "emergency," was attached to the broad reorganization amendment before it was finally passed. New language was added by the author, Senator Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, providing the President's reorganization authority

LAWMAKERS SCOFF AT DEBT PAY PLAN

Britain's Bundle Basis Gets Some Prompt Rebuffs With Details Bared.

(Associated Press.)

On the assumption that London talk of settling war debts for $2,000,000,000 cash applied to the debt of Great Britain alone, several members of Congress yesterday indicated a willingness to listen further, but when it developed the suggested sum was to cover the more than $11,000,000,000 obligation of all nations, the proposal was generally dismissed as impossible.

Furthermore, the statements of President-elect Roosevelt that he would deal with the debtor nations individually, were construed here as leaving no room for Britain to bring forward a proposal on behalf of them all.

Those who commented on the first understanding of the London reports, in the main had been disposed to wait until the other half of the bargain—concessions to the United States—was disclosed, but not one of the die-hard anticancellationists was numbered among those who did so express themselves.

Significantly, issuance of the London views through channels regarded as authoritative was followed here tonight by publication of a report by a special committee of the International Chamber of Commerce which, suggesting the agenda for the World Economic Conference, proclaimed that settlement of intergovernmental debts was the first and most important step needed.

The important declaration of this committee was:

"At Lausanne, a solution of the reparation problem has been found. It needs to be completed by an equally satisfactory solution of the problem of intergovernmental debts."

The two-for-eleven-billion settlement implied by the London reports would be on a scale similar to that agreed upon at Lausanne, where to all intents and purposes collection of reparations was acknowledged to be impractical.

This international report was made public here through the Chamber of

Wife Shoots Man To Save Husband

Victim Says He Was Hired From Washington to Put On "Scare."

Charlotte, N. C., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—A fast-shooting housewife, Mrs. Lee Buchman, sent a bullet into the forehead of a man she accused of assailing her husband with gun and blackjack today.

The wounded man, who said he is "Shorty" Williams, of Enid, Okla., told police he and a companion, who escaped, were hired to come here from Washington, D. C., and "scare" Buchman.

He refused to disclose the "higher-ups" who hired him, but police indicated they would seek the men in the ranks of lottery racketeers.

Paderewski Denies Presidency Rumors

Providence, R. I., Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Ignace Jan Paderewski, virtuoso pianist and former premier of Poland, tonight denied through his secretary that he had been offered a nomination for the presidency of Poland.

He admitted that rumors that he was to accept such a nomination had reached him.

Train Runs Over Girl; Quick Action Saves Her

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Feb. 7.—Pauline Moore, 15-year-old schoolgirl, owes her life today to her presence of mind exercised when she was run over by a railroad locomotive near her home.

The girl has poor eyesight and did not notice the approach of the locomotive when she stepped on the track. The locomotive struck her and knocked her down, but she sensed the situation and drew herself flat between the rails face down.

The machine passed over her and the engine crew stopped, expecting to find her mangled remains. Instead, she got up, uninjured.

JAPAN AGAIN TRIES TO MOLLIFY LEAGUE

Matsuoka Says It Is Final Effort to Comply With Geneva Viewpoint.

Geneva, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Japan made an eleventh-hour effort tonight to avert condemnation by the League of Nations for her military activity in Manchuria.

Yusake Matsuoka, chief Japanese delegate, conveyed new instructions to the league from Tokyo, authorizing him to make "an important concession." As a result, it was intimated the league's conciliation efforts might be resumed.

Matsuoka revealed that Japan now agrees to the league's committee of 19 retaining in its conciliation resolution a statement that neither the maintenance of the Japanese-controlled state of Manchukuo nor a return to the former status quo in Manchuria would be a satisfactory solution of the controversy with China.

"This is absolutely our last effort," Matsuoka said. "If it fails, we at least will have done our best."

Woman and Four Aids Hunted in Kidnaping

Los Angeles, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—A young woman and four confederates were sought tonight in the kidnaping of Mrs. Mary B. Skeele, 65-year-old college professor's wife, who was released without paying the $10,000 ransom they demanded.

Uruguayan Revolution Predicted for Feb. 15

Montevideo, Uruguay, Feb. 7 (A.P.). Newspapers today predicted a revolution seeking certain constitutional reforms would begin on February 15.

This republic, which has been free of uprisings since 1904 and is considered one of the most peaceful in South America, has apparently taken few precautions against the reported revolt.

Brother of Kidnaper Found Shot to Death

Chicago, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Another chapter in the Billy Ranieri kidnaping case was written in police records today.

Fred Petitti, 35-year-old brother of Angelo Petitti, serving a 25-year sentence in Joliet Penitentiary for participation in the kidnaping, was found shot to death in a West Side poolroom. Although the police connected the shooting with the notorious abduction of 1928, they found few clews to facilitate solving it.

DRASTIC STEP NEARS TO SEIZE MUTINEERS

Dutch Would Concentrate Naval Force; Surrender Planned Soon.

The Hague, Holland, Feb. 7 (A.P.). The minister of defense announced in Parliament today that all the Dutch naval forces in the East Indies would be concentrated in an attempt to bring into subjection the mutinous sailors who have seized the Dutch cruiser De Zeven Provincien.

The minister said that if the cruiser is not surrendered immediately and unconditionally after surrender has been formally demanded, measures of main force will be taken.

Batavia, Java, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—With other naval craft, aided by flying boats, in pursuit, the Dutch cruiser, De Zeven Provincien, manned by a mutinous native crew, was en route tonight to the naval base at Sourabaya Harbor, where the mutineers intend to surrender the ship.

The mutinous sailors kidnaped eight of their Dutch officers and put out to sea with the ship early Sunday while the commander and some of the petty officers were ashore. They were disgruntled because of a wage cut.

The commander at once commandeered the government vessel Aldebaran and set out in pursuit, but later changed to the government steamer Eridanus when the Aldebaran began to run short of fuel.

Two submarines and a mine layer, Gouden Leeun, joined the flying boats in the chase. The flying boats were proceeding under secret orders.

Eight Newark Election Officials Are Indicted

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The Federal Grand Jury today returned indictments against eight Newark election officials in connection with the alleged voting frauds in the November 8 elections. Two of those indicted are women.

The indictments allege violation of a section of the criminal code. Those named are charged with conspiracy to injure and oppress voters in the exercise of their civil rights.

WORKERS CLAIM PLOT TO EVADE PAY SCALE ACT

Aver They Were Forced to Sign Agreement in "Investment."

BRIDE CALLS PUBLIC HEARING TOMORROW

Men Declared They Received Only 70 Cents an Hour in Cash for Labor.

One of the most ingenious schemes allegedly devised to evade the Bacon-Davis prevailing wage scale act was revealed yesterday by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, with the announcement that he would conduct a thorough-going public hearing on the case at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow in the boardroom of the District Building.

The contractor involved is the Industrial Engineering & Construction Co., of Washington, which is building the Kenilworth School, on Kenilworth avenue northeast, between Ord and Oliver streets. The project, which was to cost $54,698, is 41 per cent completed, and the contractor already has been paid $16,397.

Ten affidavits signed by bricklayers, copies of an agreement signed by workmen, and photostatic copies of certificates of investment in a realty subdivision in Anacostia constitute the major evidence against the contractor.

Agreement Is Charged.

The bricklayers charge they were required to sign an agreement to invest $300 each in the realty development without knowing any of the details in order to obtain employment. They paid for the investment each week in this manner;

The union wage scale for bricklayers is $1.75 an hour, but these men assert that they received but 70 cents an hour in cash and $1.05 an hour in checks which they had to deposit to the credit of the contracting firm as payment on their investments.

An investigation by the corporation counsel's office disclosed that the contractor had bought seven lots on W street southeast between Thirty-second and Thirty-third streets, and that the property's assessed value was $1,269.

Property Undeveloped.

The value placed upon the "investment" by the contractor was $8,900. It has not been disclosed as yet how many workmen invested part of their wages in the project. The corporation counsel's office also discovered that the property is undeveloped and consists partly of a huge ditch.

Mr. Bride said he would have every employe of the contracting firm at the hearing tomorrow and that if the charges are substantiated he would force the contractor to return the investments to the workmen. Further-

G. M. C. Held Planning Half-Billion Capital Drop

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The corporation division of the department of State's office announced this afternoon that General Motors Corporation had filed notice of a decrease in capital from $1,253,333,000 to $750,000,000.

No explanation was appended.

Plot to Profit in Selling Relief Supplies Charged

Adjutant of Michigan Legion and New York Merchant Indicted in Purchase of War Department Articles Set Aside for Needy.

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Conspiracy to obtain from the Government war supplies which had been set aside for charitable organizations and to sell them at a profit was charged today against Robert J. Byers, welfare officer and adjutant of the Michigan department of the American Legion, and George S. Krieger, New York merchant, in indictments returned by the Federal grand jury.

Department of Justice investigators had been working on the case for five months.

United States Attorney George Z. Medalie said the money with which the supplies were purchased from the Government was put up by the State of Michigan.

In October, 1931, the War Department made large quantities of supplies available for charity on the understanding that they were not to be resold. This was in line with a Government policy not to dump merchandise on the market to the detriment of private enterprise.

Byers, Medalie said, "was presented to the War Department as representing the welfare organizations of the State of Michigan by Gov. Bruckner of Michigan, and on such representation the War Department made the sales to Byers."

"Shortly after the delivery of the merchandise to Byers, the War Department was informed that the certificate filed by Byers that the goods would be given away and not resold was not being complied with, and the War Department requested the Department of Justice to commence an immediate investigation," Medalie explained.

Medalie said Byers paid $40,000 for the goods purchased at a price reduction 50 per cent under what the Government originally paid for the goods.

He said this reduction was granted after a hearing held by the Military

SENATE OUSTS BARRY AFTER BITTER DEBATE; EDITOR DEFENDS HIM

Step Is Regretted By Executive of New Outlook.

SMITH WON'T GIVE HIS VIEW

Walton Is Glad Eyes Were Focused on "Shady Deals."

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Francis Walton, managing editor of New Outlook, said tonight he regretted that David S. Barry had been dismissed as sergeant at arms of the United States Senate, but that "it is gratifying" that Barry's remarks, appearing in the New Outlook, "could so effectively turn a searchlight upon the shadier activities of Congress."

Walton, in a formal statement, said the Senate's action today, dismissing Barry, "has not shaken our confidence in Mr. Barry and the New Outlook will carry further articles on the Senate activities."

Discussing the first paragraph of Barry's article, the basis for the Senate's action, Walton said the magazine editors moved this paragraph up from a lower position in the article "for the sole editorial purpose of making it clear at once to the readers • • • that the intent of this particular article was not to discuss again the popular viewpoint of crookedness rampant in the houses of our lawmakers, but that the intent was to deal with the newer and equally serious situation of the rising tide of demagoguery on the Hill in Washington."

Paragraph in Question.

The paragraph referred to read as follows:

"Contrary, perhaps, to the popular belief, there are not many crooks in Congress; that is, out-and-out grafters, or those who are willing to be such; there are not many senators or representatives who sell their votes for money, and it is pretty well known who those few are."

"The making of this manuscript change," said Walton, "for this editorial purpose, and with the use of the mild indirect language of Mr. Barry, 'There are not many senators or representatives who sell their vote for money' could involve no hesitancy or second thought in a journalistically trained mind capable of recalling the more than vague rumors of the $5,000 bribe alleged to have been paid in the attempted defeat of the McFadden banking bill and the tawdry little affair of the deal surrounding the making of the sugar tariff of 1929.

Declared Gratifying.

"It is gratifying, in view of the aims of our publication, that the innocently intended remark of Mr. Barry could so effectively turn a searchlight upon the shadier activities of Congress; and if the focusing of this attention does no more than bring out the apparently serious charges in the Dahlberg deal against certain senators, which some hoped would die in the lobby committee, perhaps even the time of the senators—the paid representatives of the American people—will not have been altogether wasted by the amusing

Hoidale Loses Election Fight Against Schall

(Associated Press.)

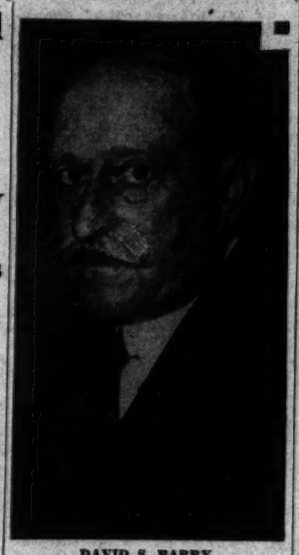
The Senate last night officially dismissed the contest brought by Einar Hoidale, Democrat, against the election of Senator Schall (Republican), Minnesota, declaring the latter elected.

A resolution reported unanimously by the elections committee declaring Mr. Schall the duly elected senator for the term beginning March 4, 1931, was adopted without debate and without a record vote.

James F. Pershing Near Death, Hospital Reports

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—With physicians holding out little hope for his recovery, James F. Pershing, younger brother of Gen. John J. Pershing, lay in Manhattan General Hospital tonight with no change in his condition during the last 24 hours. He suffered a stroke of paralysis December 20, and yesterday became unconscious.

His wife and son, James, jr., remained close to the bedside. Gen. Pershing, who came here from Washington and remained for some time when his brother was first taken to the hospital, was receiving reports in Texas by wire.



DAVID S. BARRY.

53 to 17 Vote on Dismissal Is Recorded.

THREE-HOUR VERBAL TILT

Moses Makes Threat to Force Visitors From Galleries.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

The Senate last night summarily dismissed David S. Barry as its sergeant at arms.

The vote was 53 to 17 and was taken after a heated, sarcastic and bitter debate had raged for more than three hours about what should be done to Mr. Barry for writing a magazine article in the course of which he said some men in Congress sold their votes for money and there were many others who were demagogues.

Those who voted for the resolution of dismissal included 35 Democrats and 18 Republicans. Those who voted against the resolution included 16 Republicans and 1 Democrat.

Others Are Rejected.

Prior to its passage two other proposals had been voted down on votes on which the Senators were compelled to go formally on record. One was a proposal by Senator Otis Glenn (Republican), of Illinois, to reprimand Mr. Barry and reinstate him in office. It was voted down 56 to 15. The other was a proposal by Senator L. J. Dickinson (Republican), of Iowa, to refer the Judiciary Committee's dismissal resolution to the Rules Committee of which Senator George H. Moses (Republican), of New Hampshire, is chairman. This was beaten by a vote of 58 to 10.

Quick disposition of the matter seemed likely for a few moments after Senator George W. Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, presented the committee dismissal proposal a few minutes after 4 o'clock.

Chorus of Ayes.

There was a chorus of ayes for passage even before Senator Norris could ask for a record vote, and Senator M. M. Logan (Democrat), of Kentucky, could get the floor to open the oratorical battle, which came to a climax three hours later with Senator Norris, Senator Glenn and others in a shouting, sarcastic, rapid-fire verbal war that Senator Moses, president pro tempore of the Senate, who was presiding, had to shout his loudest to make himself heard as he ordered the senators to their seats and warned they were perilously close to violating the Senate rules if they didn't do so.

Several times the presiding officer threatened to have the crowded galleries cleared if they did not keep quiet, and on occasions he called the senators on the floor sharply to order as they laughed aloud in enjoyment of the sallies.

Defended by Logan.

Senator Logan, who started the debate with a caustic protest against the proceedings against the sergeant at arms, wasn't present at the end to vote on any of the three proposals.

"Mr. Barry was put on trial with 96 angry senators arrayed against him," Senator Logan said. "Is would be called mob law down in my State. It was like dozens of hounds after one poor, innocent little hare. Let us not expell a man in his old age because he said only a few were corrupt when the public thinks all are corrupt. It

ROOSEVELT TO SEE GOVERNORS ON AID

Conference at White House Is Set Two Days After His Inauguration.

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Two days after Franklin D. Roosevelt is inaugurated, he will confer at the White House with governors invited from all 48 States over such pressing Federal and State problems as mortgage foreclosures, taxation, unemployment relief, better use of land and reorganization of local governments.

A call for the conference, by which the incoming President will set a precedent in dealing with Governmental problems on taking office, was sent out across the Nation tonight from Democratic national headquarters.

A letter to chief executives of the 48 States lists these problems as ones which the conferees "should discuss for our mutual benefit":

"Conflicting taxation by Federal and State governments.

"Federal aid for unemployment relief.

"Mortgage foreclosures, especially on farm lands.

"Better land use by afforestation, elimination of marginal agricultural land, flood prevention, &c.

"Reorganization and consolidation of local governments to decrease tax costs."

Mr. Roosevelt leaves the way open for thrashing out other problems by stating that the conferees may think of subjects not listed which they may consider "essential for discussion."

The President-elect, now on a vacation cruise in Southern waters, declares in the letter that the purpose of the gathering will be to discuss matters in which "the Federal Government and the State governments are mutually interested."

While the plan of a President calling in all 48 governors to thrash out a long list of joint and pressing problems has little precedent, it is based on the recent annual sessions between the governors themselves.

The announcement of the White House conference was made at Democratic national headquarters by Louis McHenry Howe, adviser and political secretary to Mr. Roosevelt.

Robinson Is Told Bullitt in Clear

Investigator Didn't Claim to Represent Roosevelt, Castle Reports.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, was notified yesterday by the State Department that investigations in European capitals had failed to show that William C. Bullitt had been meddling in the question of war debts, as had been charged on the Senate floor.

In forwarding State Department replies to inquiries abroad made at the suggestion of the senator, Undersecretary Castle wrote Senator Robinson that there were no indications that Bullitt had represented himself to European high officials as a representative of President-elect Roosevelt.

The Paris cablegram stated that Bullitt had made it clear in his visits to French officials that he was acting in the capacity of a journalist and a specialist in foreign affairs. At no time, so far as the American representatives were able to ascertain, did Bullitt pretend to have any credentials from Gov. Roosevelt or any other prominent member of the Democratic party.

SHOUTED EPITHETS HALT BERLIN CROWD

Standing Committee Meeting Is Broken Up With Anti-Semitic Cries.

Berlin, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Shouting of anti-Semitic epithets which broke up a meeting of a Reichstag standing committee and a large Republican gathering in which defiance of the government was voiced stirred Berlin tonight.

The standing committee meeting which was broken up was to have been held under the chairmanship of Paul Loebe, who almost as soon as the meeting began was made the object of an attack by Hans Frank, a Nazi, who said his party considered it an insult to meet under the direction of Loebe. He added that, Chancellor Hitler had been described as "Adolf, the Slovak," in a campaign speech by the chairman.

Charge Brings Uproar.

The charge created such an uproar that Loebe was unable to speak and the Communists and Socialists walked out. Frank, who is vice chairman of the committee, thereupon called a rump session which the government ignored by sending no representative.

Loebe is not a Jew, but the Nazis who participated in the rump session said he had shown himself unfit to preside over the committee meeting because of his alleged insult to the chancellor.

Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen and Alfred Hugenberg, the Nationalist leader, were the principal targets of the Republican meeting, attended by 100,000 in the Lustgarten who heard Otto Wels, a Reichstag member, review recent developments in the country.

Reads List of Cities.

Wels said Hugenberg "is the representative of the heavy industry," and that "he can not protect the workingman."

He then read off a list of cities in which he said political fights had occurred and Republicans had been killed.

The huge crowd carried red flags which they lifted in the shadows of huge stone and bronze memorials which stand in the Lustgarten as a reminder of the former monarchy. They cheered Wels as he spoke, the cry reverberating throughout adjacent streets which also were packed.

DEPARTMENT FUNDS REDUCTION IS VOTED

shall terminate two years after the date of enactment.

One effort to broaden still further the authority granted the President was sponsored by Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska. Senator Norris offered an amendment empowering the Chief Executive to combine and transfer departments as well as bureaus. It was badly beaten.

An attempt by Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, to have the War and Navy Departments exempted from the mandatory 5 per cent departmental slash was defeated, 46 to 34, after Senator Swanson (Democrat), Virginia; Senator Hale (Republican), Maine, and others had come to its support.

As the situation now stands, heads of every Government department must administer 5 per cent cuts in all congressional appropriations, without touching Government salaries or ordering additional furloughs.

Elimination of Waste.

Senator Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, author of the exemption, thinks the amount can be saved through elimination of waste and in items not touching personnel.

"What I am trying to do is to save as much as possible of the wage standards and living conditions of Federal employes," Senator Costigan told the Senate.

His amendment was adopted after he had declined to accept a modification by Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, who sought to apply the exemption only to employes drawing under $1,500.

Leading the reaction against additional inroads on Federal pay was Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, who declared Congress literally "has gone mad" in its effort to reduce expenditures.

He said it appeared "silly" to him to save millions by laying off workers and then to appropriate millions, to feed the unemployed.

He said:

"Congress recently appropriated $625,000 for feeding the bread lines in the District of Columbia, and now we are talking about amendments to lay off more employes, or reduce their salaries to a point where they will need Federal assistance."

Fairly Well Satisfied.

Organized Federal workers, who throughout have supported Senator Costigan in his effort to protect Federal wages from the scope of the Bratton 5 per cent cut, last night appeared fairly well satisfied with the results.

Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, believes the Costigan amendment is not so "dangerous" as Senator Bingham, Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, and others have indicated.

It was pointed out that under the Bratton proposal department heads are restricted from making any cuts that would impair the efficiency of Government.

Charming Girls Get Backing Of Friends in Queen Hunt

Beautiful Apparel and Travel Expense to and From Chicago Exposition Will Be Defrayed by Newspapers Cooperating in Contest.

The queen contest, now being conducted by The Washington Post in a search for 51 charming girls officially to open the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago next June, also provides girls with definite assurance of their boy friends' regards, and the number of photographs of their sweethearts which have been submitted by young men proves they are expressing their true opinion when they undoubtedly whisper that age-old phrase, "You are the most charming girl in the world."

By exclusive and official arrangement with the Century of Progress Exposition, The Washington Post and affiliated newspapers have been intrusted with the task of selecting a group of the world's most charming girls to become queen and her court of honor at the great world's fair, and selections will be made from photographs which may be submitted either by the candidate in person or by friends or relatives.

Every unmarried girl, regardless of place of residence, is invited to compete. There is positively no cost or obligation involved at any time. The only requirements are that the entrant be unmarried and that photographs be at least 6 by 8 inches in size and made within the past 12 months. Every picture also must be accompanied by the information required by the transmittal coupon which is printed on this page today. The coupon itself may be used and pasted to the back of the photograph or the same information may be written upon any sheet of paper. Employes of The Washington Post and members of their families, together with professionals such as stage girls and artists' models, alone are barred from the competition.

WOMAN SAYS GUY STOOD AT PORTHOLE

Demure Member of Expedition Is Second to Identify Murder Suspect.

Long Beach, Calif., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—A second identification of William J. Guy as the stranger in gray was pinned on the accused slayer of Capt. Walter Wanderwell at the trial of the 24-year-old soldier of fortune today.

A demure, attractive young woman from Rockmart, Ga., Miss Marian Smith, a member of the expedition which Wanderwell was planning to take to the South Seas when he met his death the night of December 5, aboard his yacht Carma, nervously identified Guy as the man who was seen at a porthole of the Carma a few moments before Wanderwell was killed.

In many respects Miss Smith's testimony corroborated the statements of a previous witness, Edmund Zeranski, film cameraman, who also had picked Guy out as the stranger, although he was not as positive as Miss Smith.

Miss Smith, a chestnut-haired girl, was pale, and frequently the court was forced to prompt her for her answers, made in a voice so low that it hardly carried from the witness stand.

Asked whether she could identify Guy, she walked shyly across the courtroom and, like Zeranski, touched him on the shoulder. The face of the defendant remained impassive. He fixed his eyes directly upon the witness, who avoided his glance.

Before Guy appeared at the porthole, she said, she, Mary Parks, of East Saugus, Mass., and Zeranski, all expedition members, and Cuthbert Wills, ship engineer, were seated in the mess hall. Miss Smith said she was writing when she happened to glance up and see the stranger at the door.

HYATTSVILLE FIRE ROW UP TO COURT

Prince Georges Bench Asked to Grant Injunction to Oust Rushe's Men.

The long-continued fight between the Hyattsville Town Council and the Volunteer Fire Department was turned over to the Prince Georges County Circuit Court for settlement yesterday when the town's attorney filed a petition for an injunction to oust the firemen from the department's headquarters.

In addition to asking the court to keep the firemen away from the apparatus, the petition requested a judicial determination on a number of disputed questions. The fire department, which was dissolved by the council several weeks ago, has refused to acknowledge the dissolution until it is reinforced by a court order.

Yesterday's action is the latest move in a fight now nearly a year old. It started when the council drafted an ordinance giving it greater control over the department. The ordinance was an issue in the next town election, which was won by those favoring the ordinance.

A few weeks ago the ordinance was passed, and the department was dissolved when it refused to abide by the town law. The refusal was based on a contention that the department was a separate corporation and not connected with the town council. The court yesterday was asked to decide whether or not it was a separate organization.

The town's petition named as defendant, Noble F. Rushe, chief of the fire company, as well as 15 members named individually. It specifically asked an injunction to prevent these men from using the town's fire apparatus and from trespassing on the firehouse property. The petition also asks the court to order an accounting of funds received by the department during the past year.

LAWMAKERS SCOFF AT DEBT PAY PLAN MADE BY BRITAIN

Commerce of the United States for the American section of the international chamber, with which it is closely identified.

Of the ten who signed the report only one represented the United States. He was Dr. Leo Pasvolsky, of the Brookings Institution, Washington. France and Germany had two men each on the committee. Great Britain, Belgium, Italy, The Netherlands and Switzerland each was represented.

This report made no mention whatever of the Roosevelt administration debt conferences slated for early spring. Its discussion was entirely of the world economic conference. It did not mention figures on war debt settlements, either, nor the means of securing the cash.

This angle did not figure in the first congressional reactions either, although it appeared plain that since France alone outside of the United States possesses any substantial store of gold, the lump sum to be paid the United States would almost certainly have to be forked out by American buyers of European bonds floated here.

New Resentment Impends.

Since Congress in the not distant past has been thoroughly wrought up about foreign bond flotations in this country, there was every prospect of a new outburst of criticism if the idea of raising the funds in this country were pushed into the open.

Significant was the general absence of comment yesterday by leading Democrats, who generally are trying to keep the debts question quiet in Congress to give President-elect Roosevelt plenty of elbow room in his negotiations.

Of the more important Democrats who did speak, House Floor Leader Rainey, who may be Speaker when the question comes to Congress formally, was not friendly. He said the American people would not stand for a three-fourths reduction; that the debt had once been settled on Great Britain's terms and "it's about time the debtor settles on the creditor's terms." He said substantial trade concessions would have to be offered this country before any reduction could be expected.

On the other hand, Chairman Collier of the Ways and Means Committee, which eventually would have to approve legislation to carry out any new war debt agreement, said he was "always ready for a cash compromise."

George Awaits Details.

Senator George, of Georgia, Democratic member of the Finance Committee in the Senate, said no commitment could be made until the British proposal is "understood and examined."

Senator McNary, of Oregon, who will be leader of the Republican minority in the next Congress, said he had no enthusiasm for the lump-sum idea, but that "they should make some concessions" on the basis of any settlement.

Later, when the idea was suggested that Britain would offer the lump sum as settlement for all the debts, Leader Rainey said:

"The United States will not accept any such slash."

Representative Crowther (Republican), New York, asked, "Where did the debtors get a right to lump their obligations?"

Doughton, of North Carolina, a ranking Democrat on the Ways and Means Committee, however, said:

"Discussion in newspapers of these trial balloons that Europe is sending up to test the sentiment of the American Congress appears to be creating an unfriendly feeling between the United States and Europe.

Turn to Roosevelt.

"Mr. Roosevelt is our next Commander in Chief and I want to hear from him before making any commitments on the debt problem."

Representative Vinson (Democrat), Kentucky, another Ways and Means member, said:

"The lump-sum payment proposition is, of course, a feeler. I would not favor that.

"If we permit it, America, which entered the World War three years after it began, will be made to pay for the entire cost of the war. I don't think the United States is in a condition to do it."

Representative Chindblom (Republican), Illinois, said, "So far as I am concerned, I certainly wouldn't support any such an agreement."

HULL ASKS INTEREST CUT TO AID FARMERS

His Plan Fixes 4 Per Cent as Maximum Rate on Loans of R. F. C.

(Associated Press.)

A bold governmental step toward lower interest rates as a means of helping the farmer and debtors generally was proposed by the influential Democratic Senator Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, yesterday as committees worked on a bundle of farm relief measures.

The Hull resolution would fix 4 per cent as the maximum interest rate on loans by the Reconstruction Corporation for the next twelve months, and by the governmental policy so declared would, in the opinion of its sponsor, prove "the most effective and practical step in the readjustment of values on a sound basis."

"The adoption of the policy contained in this resolution should constitute an important and helpful step preliminary to the refinancing of long-term farm loans on a much lower interest rate than that now existing," said Hull in an accompanying statement.

Hull referred both to the example of the Government in cutting interest rates by such a resolution and to the fact that the Reconstruction Corporation lends money to banks and insurance companies which hold great quantities of farm mortgages.

The resolution provides that the 4 per cent figure shall not be taken as preventing considerably lower interest rates in connection with any farm refinancing program that may be worked out.

A Senate banking subcommittee considering various farm mortgage relief measures decided to push through the present session, if possible, an emergency bill, not yet definite in form, designed to use Federal credit for staving off foreclosures and paying delinquent taxes.

The effort to help the farmers by raising his prices meanwhile occupied the attention of the Senate Agriculture Committee, which today begins rewriting the domestic allotment bill passed by the House.

The committee at its request yesterday received from W. R. Ronald, publisher of the Evening Republican, Mitchell, S. Dak., a redraft of the House bill containing many different features and limited to cotton, wheat, hogs, tobacco and rice.

The Ronald bill contains a provision designed to place $700,000,000 of negotiable Government certificates in the hands of farmers within 60 days of enactment.

The certificates would be issued to farmers who cut production and are intended to provide the equivalent of the tariff rate in addition to the market price.

No, Lenore!

Showing Critics and All the Gang Good Time Bears Tax, Too.

(Associated Press.)

Dining and otherwise entertaining critics, directors and newspaper writers may be very helpful to a rising dramatic star, but the Board of Tax Appeals decided yesterday that Lenore Ulric couldn't deduct the cost in figuring her income taxes.

The portrayer of emotional character parts on the stage was refused permission to subtract $11,130 from her gross income, although the board said "the potency of donated favors, especially of food, in securing adherence, is recognized."

The board recalled a legend that the death of Shakespeare on his fifty-second birthday "was hastened if not caused by partaking of hospitality supplied by himself in entertaining his friends, Ben Jonson and another poet."

Miss Ulric had sought a redetermination of deficiencies in income tax assessed against her of $1,140 in 1927 and $237 in 1928. She deducted $7,075 in the first year and $4,054 in 1928 for what she listed as necessary business expenses.

This money was spent, she said, in making contacts, exchanging ideas and viewpoints and in personally meeting authors, critics, directors, newspaper writers and others, and in providing theater tickets and dinners and entertainment for them and their friends.

Miss Ulric reported gross income for the two years of $69,533 and $42,922.

BRITAIN WOULD LET SUM PAY ALL DEBTS

"Big Five" of Cabinet Talk $2,000,000,000 to Blot Out $11,000,000,000.

London, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—After the "big five" of the cabinet and Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador to the United States, had completed a preliminary survey of the debt problem today, it was learned that suggestions that a lump sum between $1,250,000,000 and $2,000,000,000 be paid to the United States contemplated that this payment would cover all European war debts and not merely Britain's.

Such a lump sum, it was said in authoritative quarters, would mean scaling down the war debts in accordance with the reparations policy adopted at the Lausanne conference, which virtually ended reparations payments from Germany. The total European debt to the United States was funded at more than $11,000,000,000.

Neville Chamberlain, Great Britain's most provocative spokesman on the war debts problems, today in the House of Commons publicly and officially embraced the policy of "golden silence" which Sir Ronald brought to Downing street from Washington on behalf of President-elect Roosevelt.

Queried in the Commons as to the debts situation, the chancellor of the exchequer replied: "The terms of an invitation addressed to the British government to send a representative or representatives to Washington early in March, and the acceptance of that invitation, already have been published. I have no further statement to make."

Pressed further by Sir Stafford Cripps, a Labor member, the chancellor replied only: "It is obviously unnecessary to repeat those statements."

Sir Ronald will meet tomorrow again with the "big five," which includes Stanley Baldwin, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, Mr. Chamberlain, Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, and Sir John Simon, foreign secretary.

Meanwhile, it was understood that the ambassador and the cabinet members have completed a preliminary survey of the debts problem which will be analyzed in every detail before the final British policy is formulated and Sir Ronald authorized to return to Washington with the outline of the plan.

more, he said, if any of the employes are discharged or otherwise penalized for their testimony, he will recommend that the Commissioners cancel the contract.

The auditor's office agreed to withhold payments to contractors last month when the inquiry started.

One bricklayer told investigators that for the week ending January 19 he received but $22.40 in cash and $40.20 in check form. Another stated that he was paid but 70 cents an hour in cash, 95 cents an hour in checks, and that 10 per cent of the $1.75 an hour due him was paid into a "sinking fund" connected to the realty investment.

Furthermore, the contractor was quoted as telling the workmen that whenever an estimate on brick construction work exceeded the actual costs the difference would be applied to the real estate development, but that when the estimate fell short of the cost, the difference would have to be made up by the bricklayers.

Palmer Head of Company.

L. E. Palmer, formerly of the W. P. Rose Co., of Goldsboro, N. C., is president of the Industrial Engineering & Construction Corporation. His recent illness has delayed the calling of a public hearing.

Mr. Bride pointed out that the President's order regarding the Davis-Bacon act stated that wages must be paid weekly in United States currency and "unconditionally."

Some time ago Mr. Bride conducted inquiries into wage complaints against the W. P. Rose Co. and the A. Lloyd Goode Co., of Charlotte, N. C. In each case he compelled the contractors to pay the workmen the wages due them under the Bacon-Davis act.

Taxi Driver Foils Holdup by 3 Fares

Police Cruiser, Arriving at Scene, Apprehends One Suspect.

The quick thinking of a taxicab driver and the proximity of a police scout car last night frustrated a probable holdup and landed one of the three suspects behind the bars at the Third Precinct Station. Charles R. Smith, living at 417 Fifteenth street southeast, told police that he picked up three colored men in his cab at Twenty-fifth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. He was told to drive to Sixteenth and Corcoran streets northwest.

While rounding Dupont Circle, Smith said, he felt a gun in his back and heard a crisp command to "go to Eighteenth and P—I've just shot another man, and I don't mind doing it again." Instead, Smith stepped on the gas. There was a mad scramble as the three men left the moving vehicle. One man fell. Smith stopped, backed his cab and tried to run over the man, he said, but he was too quick.

At this juncture the police car, occupied by Privates H. S. Montgomery and W. F. Rector, arrived on the scene. Seeing the man fleeing, they gave chase. In a nearby alley he was cornered and marched to the station, where he gave his name as Earl Jackson, 19, of 1504 P street northwest. He was charged with investigation.

TWO LEAS LOCATED; WILL FIGHT REMOVAL

Are Found in Mountain Town After Governor Issues Fugitive Warrant.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Former United States Senator Luke Lea and Luke Lea, jr., for whom Gov. Hill McAllister today issued a fugitive warrant, were in the little mountain town of Jamestown tonight while their counsel prepared to resist, through habeas corpus proceedings their removal to North Carolina, where they stand convicted of bank law violations.

Their whereabouts surrounded by secrecy for almost two weeks, the Nashville newspaper publisher and his son appeared in a Jamestown hotel shortly after their extradition had been ordered, and two hours later a petition for a writ of habeas corpus had been presented to Circuit Judge Henry B. Brown at Oneida.

Judge Brown declined to act on the petition because of technical defects, but said he expected to receive another application later.

Talking by telephone from Jamestown, Luke Lea, jr., said: "We have nothing to say yet."

The Leas were not in custody, and Attorney General Roy Beeler said the governor's warrant authorized their arrest only by Sheriff Laurence E. Brown or Deputy Sheriff Frank Lakey, of Buncombe County, N. C., named as agents. All Tennessee peace officers, however, were directed to give "all needful assistance." Brown and Lakey were still in Nashville tonight and gave no indication as to when they would go to Jamestown.

The warrant specifies that the defendants are not to be removed from Tennessee until 24 hours after their arrest. This provision was made at the request of the Leas' counsel, who asked for time in which to begin habeas corpus action.

PROFESSOR AND STUDENT TESTIFY

Harris & Ewing.

BARRY IS OUSTED BY SENATE AFTER THREE-HOUR DEBATE

is hard to get 531 men, elected by all sorts of persons, and not find some among them who might be corrupt. Jesus Christ tried to pick only 12 and the best business man among them, who was made treasurer, was open to bribery."

Like others who followed him in defense of Mr. Barry, Senator Logan sought to show that the intent and purport of the Barry article was to defend the Senate and not to libel it.

Quotes Barry's Statement.

The fiery Senator Norris, who led the battle to oust the sergeant at arms, brushed aside such contentions by quoting Mr. Barry's statement that Congress included many demagogues who voted with an eye to their political fortunes.

"Is that a defense of the Senate?" the Nebraskan cried. "In defense of its honor and integrity the Senate can do nothing less than expel him."

Senatorial practice of brow-beating witnesses before its committees, and of assailing men of reputation in private life, was heatedly denounced by Senator Glenn. "Sometimes I think we are such great United States senators because we have about us the cloak of immunity," he shouted. "But we don't name ourselves."

"Doesn't the senator know we don't attack each other?" interjected Senator Couzens.

"No, we take care of ourselves, but we attack everybody else," Senator Glenn said.

Smith's Name Brought Up.

"Does the senator think that if any senator made such a charge as this that the senator wouldn't be haled before the bar of the Senate?" Senator Alben W. Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, said.

"I have tried to make it clear that I think we are careful to take care of each other in this body," Senator Glenn replied. He challenged the Senate to send for Alfred E. Smith, who is editor of the New Outlook, in which the Barry article was published. Senator Norris said Mr. Smith had had nothing to do with the article which was arranged between Mr. Barry and the owner of the magazine. He reminded the Senate that the judiciary committee still has before it the proposal of Senator Thomas J. Walsh (Democrat), Montana, to cite the matter to the United States district attorney's of the District of New York for possible libel proceedings in the courts. Earlier in the day Senator Norris told newspaper reporters the committee probably would consider the Walsh proposal at a meeting tomorrow morning.

Others took part in the scrap, calling the proceedings against Mr. Barry disgraceful, disorderly and shameful. Among these were Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, and Senator Dickinson. Senator Bingham told of how his airedale dog had ignored the attack of a smaller dog in the course of a walk through the Andes Mountains, but had fought and beaten three other dogs of its own size or larger.

Senator David A. Reed (Republican), of Pennsylvania, said he agreed that the Senate had "made a holy show of itself the other day and is doing it again today," but warned Senator Dickinson that if he "expects newspaper approval he is wrong."

Senator Tom Connally (Democrat), of Texas, said the whole purpose of the Barry defenders was to obfuscate and demanded immediate action.

"The junior senator from Indiana and the senator from Iowa," the Texan said, "are simply proposing to fire Mr. Barry by degrees, so that he probably will not be out of office until March 4.

"Rather," he shouted, "than to vote to reprimand him I would vote to give him a bouquet and a Congressional Medal of Valor."

"How about giving him a pat on the wrist?" inquired Senator Thomas Gore (Democrat), of Oklahoma.

Reaction of Country.

"Yes," agreed Senator Connally, "give him a gentle pat on the wrist—three or four of them—one for each crook in Congress."

"But don't break the crystal of his wrist watch," said Senator Gore.

"If we don't fire Barry the entire country will say 'that old man Barry told them the truth and those white-livered senators were afraid to fire him.'"

The resolution to dismiss Mr. Barry was agreed on following a hearing by the Judiciary Committee earlier in the day in the course of which the committee heard William C. Johnstone, jr., assistant professor of political science at George Washington University, say he had not taught in his classes that Congress was corrupt.

William Cheatham, employed in the sergeant at arms' office and a student at the university, told the committee he had not meant to tell Mr. Barry the professor had taught that in just those words.

ILSLEY CASE PROBER CLAIMS COVERING UP

Crawford Hearing Witness Feels Suspect Would Not Get Fair Trial.

Boston, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Helen Boardman, of New York, an investigator for the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People, today said residents of Middleburg, Va., had told her they felt that some one was being "covered up" in connection with the murders of Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley and her maid, Mrs. Nina Buckner, there a year ago. She appeared at a resumed hearing at the State House in opposition to the extradition to Virginia of George Crawford, a Negro, accused of the slayings. She was introduced as a witness by counsel for Crawford at the hearing before Stephen D. Bacigalupo, assistant attorney general.

The witness said she felt sure Crawford would not receive a fair trial and quoted Roy Seaton, a justice of the peace at Middleburg and one of the first persons to reach the scene of the crime, as telling her "that nigger doesn't stand a chance if they bring him down here. He would be railroaded to the chair as sure as fate."

She described conversations with other residents of Middleburg in which they expressed the belief that wealthy persons were interested in protecting some one and that Crawford might be made the victim of punishment in order to protect the person. She named this person and said (he was a known drug addict, who was well known to the victims of the slaying.

Crawford's counsel introduced three Boston Negroes who testified they had seen Crawford in this city on dates before and after January 13, the day of the slayings.

Indian Claims Bill Is Passed in House

Custer's Stand and Surrender of Sitting Bull Are Recalled.

(Associated Press.)

Custer's last stand and the surrender of Sitting Bull were recalled yesterday in the passage by the House of a bill sponsored by Representative Williamson, of South Dakota, to pay some Sioux Indian claims for horses, arms and equipments seized by soldiers in frontier days.

The measure authorized $19,357 for individual enrolled Indians at the Pine Ridge, Standing Rock, Cheyenne River and Rosebud Sioux agencies. The awards were made by Secretary Wilbur.

"Of these claims," Wilbur wrote Chairman Howard, of the Indian Affairs Committee, "except those filed by and on behalf of former hostiles captured between the dates of the Custer fight and the surrender of Sitting Bull, which were all denied, 1,844 were for loss of personal property occasioned by the military authorities in 1876 and later, and other claims incidental to military operations in the Sioux country."

OPPOSITION APPEARS TO SALES TAX PLAN

Coad and Roe Leaders of One Wing in Fight Against Maryland Levy.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 7.—Basing their stand on two grounds, opponents of a general sales tax instead of luxury taxes were beginning to appear on the Senate floor today. Opposition to the tax is crystallizing more slowly than the support for it, which took shape immediately the plan was proposed last week.

Holding that the State needs, not new taxes, but a cut in present expenses, Senators Joseph Allan Coad, of St. Marys, and Dudley G. Roe, of Queen Anne, are leading one wing of the opposition. Senator E. Milton Altfeld, of Baltimore City, leads the other wing, which opposes the tax because it will fall more heavily on the poor man.

1,000 Sign Petition.

Senator Coad has a petition signed by 1,000 persons who oppose the sales tax, he said today, and he is also circulating a new pamphlet which opposes the levying of any new taxes. Relief has already been given to the counties, he points out. Budget economies will save sufficient to fund Baltimore City's relief program, with the help of higher race track taxes, he said.

Aside from Senator Altfeld, the city senators are said to be undecided about the sales levy. One question still unsettled is whether the tax will be paid directly by the wholesaler or the retailer.

While the sales tax problem is being decided in informal debate and discussion off the floor, both houses held brief and unimportant sessions before adjourning until tomorrow.

Committees Are Increased.

In the House the ways and means and the insurance and loans committees were increased in size, while a favorable report was given on the Prince Georges County multiple warrant bill. Another bill, strengthening the powers of Mount Rainier town police, is being drafted for presentation shortly.

The Senate received bills cutting the salaries of circuit court judges and charging a license fee to doctors and lawyers. By the salary bill, chief justices would be cut from $11,500 per year to $8,625, while the wage of associate judges would be reduced from $8,500 per year to $6,375. The licensing bill would charge doctors of any sort an annual fee of $15, while lawyers would have to pay $25.

Rum Car Seizure.

A suggestion that liquor cars in Prince Georges County be confiscated when seized by county police was discussed tonight at a hearing held on proposed changes in the county police law.

Sentiment in the county's delegation was against a provision to authorize such seizure, and it is not likely that it will be among the changes to be made. At present, county authorities do not seize liquor cars, but return them to their owners, although liquor cars taken by Federal dry agents are forfeited.

It was stated at the magazine offices that neither Alfred E. Smith, editor-in-chief, nor Frank A. Tichenor, publisher, would have any statement to make.

Not Surprised at Action.

"We are not surprised," said Walton, "at the action of the United States Senate now convened in Washington for the purpose of dealing with such pressing problems as that of finding ways and means of reducing a Federal deficit of nearly $1,000,000,000, of taking action for the relief of our stricken farm populace and the care of the country's millions of unemployed, in summarily removing from Government office an employe of fourteen years' service and an American citizen because he has presumed to criticize the conduct of certain members of the legislative branch of the Federal Government.

"Such action is entirely consistent with the record of a body whose greatest contribution of service to its country is in giving away of the Philippines."

TYDINGS PROPOSES HOUSE SLASH TO 325

Representative Lewis Urges Extension of Term to Four Years.

(Associated Press.)

A joint resolution proposing a constitutional amendment reducing the membership of the House of Representatives from 435 to 325 was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, and in the House by Representative Kennedy (Democrat), Maryland.

"I believe a House composed of 325 members would be less unwieldly and more efficient than with the present membership," Tydings said. "Reduction of the number of members would also be an economy."

The resolution, which was drawn up by Tydings and introduced in the House by Kennedy at the senator's request, provides the reduction in membership shall not go into effect until ten years after ratification of the amendment.

This provision is included to lessen opposition of present members of the House, who might feel adoption of the amendment would result in the loss of their own seats.

Another Marylander, Representative Lewis (Democrat), of Cumberland, is sponsoring a proposed constitutional amendment to increase the terms of members in the House from two to four years.

Tydings said he had given no study to Lewis' plan and had taken no stand on it.

The original membership of the House was 65. Thereafter it was increased with each ten-year reapportionment, except in that of 1840, when the membership was decreased slightly, and that of 1930, when the membership of 435 set after the 1920 census was continued. In 1920 there was no reapportionment.

The changes in number of seats in the House from the adoption of the Constitution to the present have been as follows:

Originally, 65; 1790, 106; 1800, 142; 1810, 186; 1820, 213; 1830, 242; 1840, 232; 1850, 237; 1860, 243; 1870, 293; 1880, 332; 1890, 357; 1900, 391; 1910 to date, 435.

INDICTMENT FOUND IN SALE OF SUPPLIES

Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives, "whereat the plight of the needy was pictured to the committee by various members of the American Legion."

The U. S. Attorney said that while Byers was making representations to the committee that he intended to distribute the clothing he sought to buy among the needy of Michigan, Krieger was negotiating for the sale of the merchandise and had succeeded in obtaining large orders.

Medalie said he understood the State of Michigan later got back $10,000 of the $40,000 put up, and took out the remainder of its investment in merchandise.

Medalie said 23,000 dozen pairs of gloves were taken from a Detroit warehouse and sold to a concern in London; 4,000 army overcoats were sold and shipped to South Africa, and 17,000 dozen suits of underwear were marketed in New York City at prices far in excess of those paid to the War Department.

Detroit, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Robert J. Byers, adjutant and welfare officer for the Michigan American Legion, who was indicted today by a Federal grand jury in New York, said tonight he was forced to sell some of the merchandise furnished by the War Department for distribution among the needy to meet Government requirements. He said he did not profit by the transaction.

Byers' attorney, Earl J. Davis, said he would resist efforts to remove Byers to the New York jurisdiction to answer the charges that he conspired to obtain from the Government and sell at a profit war supplies which had been set aside for charitable organizations.

Alta Vista League Supports Teachers

Group Against Salary Cuts and Curtailment of School Program.

Opposition to any reduction in the pay of school teachers and in school construction and maintenance in Montgomery County, Md., is voiced in a resolution adopted by the Alta Vista Community League at a meeting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Crane, on Charles street.

The league points out that a large number of children will be forced to leave private schools and attend county public schools because of financial reverses of their parents and that a number of county children now attending Washington schools can be expected to attend their own schools. The league also urged that the teachers retirement provisions be made active.

The league opposed taking over of county roads by the Maryland State Roads Commission and commended County Commissioner Robert D. Hagner for his efforts on behalf of the town's streets and roads. Miss Dorothy Young reported on the Newcomb Library work.

by CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

Kaspa, the lion-man found as a child in the African jungle by a lioness and raised with her own cubs, is brought to Canada by Martin Sefton and is recognized by James Horton, wealthy Canadian publisher, as the grandson and sole heir of Denison Starke, Horton's millionaire friend, now dead. Under the care and tutelage of Sefton, Kaspa is introduced into society and meets Denison Starke's sister, Mrs. Johnson Marley, her two step-children, Lucian and Sheila, her beautiful companion, Madeline Moore, and Sheila's fiance, Reeves. He falls in love with Madeline, Sefton, who also loves Madeline, surprises her in Kaspa's arms; Madeline runs away and Kaspa clears the veranda with a catlike leap and vanishes into the night.

CHAPTER XVIII.

AN hour later, as Sefton stood looking out over the lake, the lion-man emerged silently from the forest and stood beside him.

"I suppose I ought to congratulate you," said Sefton in miserable accents, "but I can't; I feel it is all a terrible mistake."

Kaspa took him by the shoulders and swung him around like a child. "You love her!" he accused fiercely.

Sefton bowed his head before the yellow glare in the lion-man's eyes.

"My God, yes. But it is not that. You are a finer man than me; it is only natural she should love you—I know that. But it is wrong, Kaspa; it is hopeless."

He wrested himself from Kaspa's weakening grasp and spoke vehemently, while the lion-man stood with bent head, listening.

"I know you. I haven't lived with you all this time without learning your character. You are still an animal—a fine animal—but no mate for a woman like her. What do you know of love? Love means sacrifice. Are you prepared to settle down as the husband of a society woman in a Canadian city? Love is for you a mating—a thing of episodes. And then you will go off into the wilderness, living for the day, forgetting everything."

Kaspa looked up quickly. "She will come with me; she will share my life."

Sefton's laugh was as bitter as a cry of pain. "The life of a savage! The hardships and discomfort of the veld with wild beasts for companionship. The life of a lion!"

He was silent for a moment and then burst out again:

"You have no conception of love as a man feels it. I would do anything for her—give my whole life for her happiness. You will make her unhappy; her love for you will be nothing but a curse to her. My God, I could shoot you rather than that. What are you, anyway? A wild animal that I brought out of Africa, to ruin a splendid woman's life."

He turned suddenly and plunged away along the shore, tripping blindly over rocks and bushes.

Kaspa stood looking at the lake in silent thought. He knew little of the ways of man. It seemed to him that Sefton must be right. This wonderful thing that had happened to him was wrong; he was not fit to be the husband of such a woman as Madeline.

At the thought of her he felt the animal passion rising in him again. Possession was the dominant note of his love. He wanted to take her away into the wilderness to live—they two together. She must be his and share his life. The idea of sharing her life was terrifying to him.

He thought of Rosewood, the hot, stuffy rooms full of the scents of flowers and tobacco — Sheila and Reeves and Mrs. Marley; the dances and parties they talked about; and then the drab bustle of the streets, the noise and endless monotony of it. He shuddered. Deep in his mind dwelt the picture of the moonlit thorns, the hushed splendor of the African night and the low, comforting grunts of his comrades of the pack all about him in the shadows. No, he could not be a man.

Sefton was right; man's love was something different. It was sacrifice, such sacrifice as an animal did not know. He, who could give his life for his comrade without hesitation, must do something more—he must give his happiness.

Sefton was his friend; he owed all to Sefton. Should he be nothing but a curse to those that loved him, as Sefton has predicted? He must act like a man if only this once; and then he would be an animal again—live and die an animal, without regrets.

He turned and slouched away through the trees, and as he went queer gulps sounded in his throat and warm drops ran down his cheeks. Kaspa did not understand what was happening to him; for the first time in his life he was weeping.

He had twenty dollars in his pocket. He made for Port Perry and the railway station. He would never see Madeline again, and as he made that decision the gulping in his throat grew more pronounced. He took to his heels and ran madly through the wood, flying from the sorrow that pursued him.

At 7 o'clock in the morning Horton was aroused from his bed to interview a visitor who would not be denied.

He received Kaspa in his dressing gown. The moment the lion-man entered he saw that something untoward had happened, and he dreaded the nature of it.

He indicated a chair, seated himself and looked Kaspa in the eye with a searching regard.

"Now what is it? Let's hear the worst," he said.

Kaspa was direct and to the point. "I am tired of this business, Horton," he said. "You have done much for me and I can never be grateful enough, but I am no good. You can not make a civilized man out of me, and if you did I would not thank you for it. I am going back to Africa."

Horton realized the determination behind the words.

"Why have you left Honeydale?" he asked. "Has Sefton come with you?"

Kaspa shook his head. "No one knows I am here; I do this myself. I am going back to Africa."

His face had a strained, set look, his eyes were clouded and stormy. Horton felt vaguely alarmed.

"Softly, softly," he said. "We agreed to give this thing a fair trial, and the trial has hardly been fair, you'll agree. Up to now you have lived out in the country, seeing nobody and enjoying none of the amenities. You must live in the cities for a while before you know what there is to life, with an income like yours."

Kaspa shook his head impatiently. "I will not argue about it. You will never understand me, and I shall never understand you. We are different. I will live my life my own way; no one shall prevent me. Mrs. Marley, Sheila and Lucian can have my grandfather's money; I want none of it. Give me enough to get back to my home and you may do what you like with the rest."

Horton laughed. "Things are not done like that, my boy," he said. "I have no more right to give away your money than they have to accept it. It is yours, and only you can handle it. You know I have had to get your signature to a power of attorney before I could provide for your expenses at Honeydale."

Kaspa smiled. "Good!" he cried. "Then if it is my money I can do what I like with it, and I will start now. Give me money to go back to Africa. I want thousands of dollars—fifty thousand dollars. Give it me!"

Horton was still more alarmed. "Don't do anything rash, you young fool," he ordered. He had a bright idea. It was obvious that he could not handle Kaspa in his new frame of mind, but he thought he knew some one who could. "Let's talk it over with Mrs. Marley; she is a sensible woman and may be able to make you see reason. Will you do that?"

Kaspa agreed. He did not mind with whom he talked it over as long as too much time was not lost; discussion would make no difference to his plans.

Horton hurried to dress himself while his servant put through a call to Rosewood to warn Mrs. Marley of their coming. The journalist had an uneasy fear that something had gone badly wrong at Honeydale, but he was almost afraid to set his fears at rest by asking Kaspa. When at last he did so, during their drive to the northern part of the city, he was relieved and surprised at Kaspa's reply. He had just got tired of it, he said, and decided to come away. Sefton was in accord with his decision, but he had left without telling his tutor.

Horton had many things to ponder as he drove his reticent charge. He had not felt his confidence in himself so shaken since the death of Denison Starke.

"And what do you propose to do in Africa when you return there?" asked Mrs. Marley, curiously. "You will not go living like an animal again, I suppose?"

Kaspa had not given the matter much thought. He longed for the free and open veld, the things he knew about him and the sounds of the wild in his ears. In that environment he would be happy. Let him but get there and he would decide upon his manner of life; at the moment it mattered little what that should be. He intimated these thoughts to the old lady who sat stiffly upright upon the luxurious couch in the drawing-room at Rosewood, looking out at the summery garden throught the open glass doors.

"All this you will leave," she said, waving her hand at the scene out of doors. "Here is luxury and refinement—but I suppose it has no appeal to you; grandeur and exhilaration is what you prefer."

Kaspa assented to that; this woman understood him better than most. He craved the majestic lone-livers of untrammeled nature, the physical satisfaction of hard effort and spartan love.

Horton tried to stress the advantages of living in cities—so far Kaspa had only lived in the country—but Mrs. Marley interrupted him. "It's no use, James," she said, "the boy has made up his mind. You will not alter it. He must go back to his beloved Africa and see if it is still all that his memories picture it."

Horton acquiesced. He recognized the wisdom of the old lady's judgment. Disposal of Kaspa's heritage was satisfactorily arranged. Sefton was to live at Honeydale and manage his property under the supervision of Horton. Mrs. Marley was to remain at Rosewood. His income was to go to a society for the protection of wild animals all over the world. As for himself, Kaspa wanted $50,000 to take him back to Africa.

When the arrangements were completed, Kaspa took leave of his great-aunt. There were tears in her eyes as she blessed him. "Remember, Kaspa, I am always your friend. You may depend upon me as long as I live, and before I die I hope to see you again."

He kissed her on the forehead and said good-bye. A few minutes later he was signing papers and making arrangements for the journey back to the only life he loved.

Senate Would Restore Full Salary of Holmes

(Associated Press.)

Under a measure adopted Monday by the Senate, Oliver Wendell Holmes, retired justice of the Supreme Court, would be restored to his former salary of $20,000 after receiving half that for a year.

Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, explained that retired justices of the highest court are retired on full pay, but that Mr. Holmes' salary had been "cut in two" under the comptroller general's interpretation of the economy law of last session, which in general limits the retired pay of judges to $10,000 annually.

Interpreting the Mode

Two original Valentine costume ideas which can be worn with your white or black evening gown—and easily removed for after the party supper in a night club. (Dah-ray ideas.)

FLOWERS!

The love of flowers and their use is more than an affectation. It is a refinement and an art. Every woman is supposed to like flowers, every man sends flowers as a token of his esteem—and every woman accepts them as such. But it is not every woman who actually appreciates them deeply, who loves them passionately. And even fewer who know how to care for them and how to arrange them tastefully.

One of the marks of elegance in Japan is the knowledge of the care and arrangement of flowers. And this is an art learned by the Geishas, those lovely women of aristocracy, who are taught the elegancies and refinements of living. Writing poetry, singing, and playing musical instruments, painting and the arranging of flowers are considered accomplishments worthy of a refined woman—nay, necessary to her.

And indeed this is correct. It is natural to suppose, for instance, that a woman with exquisite taste knows how to arrange flowers better than even the most expensive florist. And of course how to select them. Innumerable are the jokes, too, about men who depend upon the expenditure of large sums of money to cover up lack of imagination or taste in their selection of flowers!

Flowers from a man being a token of his esteem for a woman, how much more does a tasteful selection bespeak the quality of his esteem, as well as his taste, than does the extravagant expenditure of his dollars. Likewise, how eloquently do the flowers speak for her taste and refinement, in the way that she wears or cares for and arranges them.

How would you like a little flowers series? There is so much to be said on the subject! Easily learned, too—and in the learning, conducive to the development of taste in general, even though directed at flowers in particular.

'Course it isn't Valentine's Day—but it will arrive next week, and now is the time to think of your party costume. We decided this year to let the little folks' costumes go, and to direct our attention to madame's. So we designed two Valentine ideas of real originality—at least so we think, for Miladi.

The first, sketched above, is the old-fashioned paper frilled bouquet idea, which suggests that her little face is but one of the flowers in a bouquet. This headpiece is made of a tiny row of artificial flowers, and frilled paper which can be purchased in large sizes, and resembles the paper frills put around wee old-fashioned nosegays. The sausage curls are her own—and can be worn or not as desired! Or the frill can be Irish crochet and starched stiffly, or any kind of lace.

The red satin heart is attached to a red satin skullcap, and the heart allowed to fall behind and frame the face—or it could be cut and joined under the chin as is the nosegay headpiece. The smaller hearts are stitched to any pair of gloves. And both of these ideas are worn with a black or a white evening gown! Their charm lies in their originality, and their practicability—because both are removable, leaving madame ready for any midnight frolic away from the party. A perfect compromise between a costume and no costume, I say—what do you think?

• • • • •

Table cloths and napkins for tea, for breakfast—and for almost every meal these days! But—to be elegant and chic, they must be hand worked—and how much more elegant if they are hand-worked by herself. So I have designed some sets for you this week, one in particular which is the newest of the new, done in colored scraps on a neutral ground—in the form of a tiny stiff, quaint and adorable village! Send your stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this leaflet if you would like it.

Au revoir.

FORCING BIDS WITH PART-SCORES

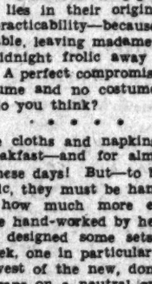
A SITUATION which frequently recurs at the Contract table is the great difficulty of reaching a Slam in the bidding when the side holding the potential Slam has a part-score. Paradoxical as it may appear, Slam bidding with part-scores has always been much more difficult than when the players start at scratch. The reason for this is that there is not the opportunity to exchange information as to honor strength and suit lengths before the "stop" signal of a game contract is reached.

In order to obviate this difficulty in the Culbertson System of 1933, there has been provided a Forcing bid of two in a suit, which requires one response from partner, even in the cases where the bid of two is sufficient to contract for game. The response to such a Forcing bid is identical with the response to a Forcing bid with a love score—that is, if the partner holds a bust and there is no intervening adverse bid, he must respond with the minimum answer of two notrump. If, exceptionally, he holds strength, he must show it. In case, even after a bust response at notrump, the Opening Hand then makes another Jump bid in a new suit, the Responding Hand again must answer, as the bonuses for Slams are too great not to explore the possibility of making them so long as the game is not in danger. Naturally, in order to make a bid of two in a suit, which, with a part-score, produces game, Forcing, the hand must be replete not only with honor-tricks, but with playing-tricks sufficient to guarantee making a contract of at least one more than game. Therefore, Forcing bids with a part-score must be made with full realization that a sure game should not be endangered by greediness.

An example of correct bidding on a strong hand with a part-score is given below:

South—Dealer.

North and South vulnerable; part-score 40.



The bidding: (Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	North
1♠(1)	3NT(2)
4♠(3)	Pass(4)

1—The hand, it will be noted, measures up to the requirements of a bid of two in a suit, whether or not there is a part-score.

2—North has a practically blank hand. However, he must respond. It is conceivable that South may have 12 tricks laid down and is only awaiting his partner's answer to decide whether to contract for 12 or 13.

3—South has no other suit to show, but, keeping in mind his partner's minimum response, he contracts to take the tricks he can see in his own hand. The game is in no wise endangered by this bid, and there is a bare chance that there may still be a Slam in the hand.

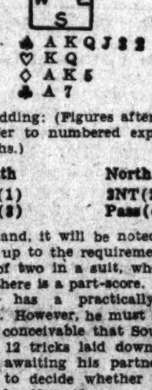
4—Obviously, North must pass.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

You have opened the bidding with one heart, to which partner has responded with two hearts. What should be the subsequent bidding on the hand shown below.

South—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.



The answer will be given tomorrow.

What Today Means

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 8 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 1:45 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 3 p. m. to 3:50 p. m., and from 6:30 p. m. to 7:30 p. m.

You will derive great joys and pleasures from the simpler things of life on this February 8. A friend made on this day will be enjoyed through life. Affairs of the heart will be governed by the mind; the emotions will not play a prominent part.

The child born on this February 8 will be equipped with an average brain and by hard work and "plugging" he will establish himself in school as an outstanding student. He will show great ability in making things with his hands, being able to create from specifications or by copying. Lacking in originality.

If February 8 is the date of your birth, you are among those people who find it very difficult to admit of error within themselves. When things go wrong, and very often they do, you are inclined to blame it on the other fellow, or to attribute the difficulty to circumstances beyond your control. This is not a pose on your part. Unfortunately you are sincere, for when you disavow all fault you are absolutely convinced the error is not yours. You have many petty and annoying faults of character. You are inclined to be hasty of temper, you have a tendency to criticize unfairly, and your use of sarcasm often hurts both yourself and friends. Like most people who act impulsively you are often sorry for the hasty spoken word or thoughtless act.

Born on February 8 there is much of the leader and executive about you. If a woman, you would probably do outstanding work as a leader of charity drives and movements; your sound business sense would make of you a splendid raiser of funds. If a man, your precise and methodical ways, your enjoyment of routine, would make you particularly suited for a military career. There is a bit of the artist about you; you could probably write or paint, but your interests are quite likely along other lines and you will do nothing about it. You are not troubled greatly by the opposite sex; marriage will seem to come quite logically into your life. It will not be a hurdle to take, for you will approach it in your regular stride.

Successful people born on February 8:

Leander J. McCormick, manufacturer.

William T. Sherman, Federal general.

Thomas Pattison, naval officer.

Oliver Bell Bunce, author.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

BRUNETTES take heart! Take it from Claudette Colbert, brunettes are not as limited in color scope as they think. That brilliant brunette Paramount star ought to know, for, isn't she considered one of the screen's best-dressed flickers? So, brunette sisters, stop and listen to Claudette for a while. Here's a lesson worth learning. Particularly timely, too, with spring around the corner.

Claudette says "every member of the brunette brigade is well acquainted with the tiresome but accepted rules that are supposed to guide the dusky lady's choice of clothes. Is your hair just one shade darker than a coppery tint and your eyes frankly brown? Then you are supposed to wear violent red upon almost every occasion."

Claudette's pet brunette theory is directly opposed to this much-touted rule. "Leave red to your fair-haired sisters and use the color yourselves only as an accent to a sports costume or as an evening gown once in a very great while."

Red Too Obvious.

She discourages red simply because it is so obvious. Just as a pale pink, fluffy evening gown is the last thing in the world a fragile blonde should wear.

This season the brunette has unlimited opportunities with the many hues of gray that are so modish. Cold slate grays and the warm dark bluish grays are usually becoming. And if you want to be ultra-gray-clever, use all gray accessories in place of the usual black and brown variety. This is going to be a gray spring.

Black, Too, and White.

Miss Colbert thinks too many brunettes avoid black, which she considers very flattering. If you believe it is not becoming next to your face, try the tiniest bit of white color.

And white! For evening the brunette is blessed with this most distinctive of all hues. Whitee says Claudette, is the brunette's castle and fort and no blonde can look better in a daring, sophisticated white satin gown that you! Wear it for sports as well as in the ballroom. Wear it often.

Other flattering colors for the brunette are brown, beige, pale blue, sapphire blue, yellow and pink of the new, dusty, faded tone. Sallowing colors are to be avoided, particularly those deep jade hues that can be disastrously unattractive.

My complete color chart is yours for the asking! Send self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

HOW MUCH ALCOHOL?

FROM Dr. W. F. Christie we get the following information about the alcoholic content of different alcoholic beverages expressed in percentages:

Benedictine, 50.

Creme de menthe, 48.

The various liqueurs are almost one-half alcohol. The other half is water, sugar and various essential oils called flavors.

Brandies, whiskies, gin and rum are given as being 40 per cent alcohol.

A 100 proof distilled liquor contains 50 per cent alcohol. One that contains 40 per cent alcohol, therefore, is known as 80 proof.

The strength in alcohol of the various distilled liquors depends somewhat upon the country from which it comes, the producer and the marketer. Bootleg liquor varies all the way from 20 proof to nearly 200, and one reason for the fatalities among drinkers of bootleg and moon is that a man who has been trained as a drunkard on 20 proof cut liquor unexpectedly gets hold of some 150 proof stuff.

The remainder, other than alcohol in a distilled liquor, is water and a small and varying amount of essential oils and aromatics.

Madeira, sherry and other reinforced wines run about 18 per cent alcohol. Note that the term, proof, used with distilled liquors, is not employed with wines and beers. A reinforced wine is one to which some alcohol has been added, or one made from juice in which sugar was placed before or during fermentation. A sweet wine is one in which some sugar was left when the fermentation was stopped. A wine may be sweet because of sugar added at some stage of the manufacture.

Champagnes are reinforced wines, and they contain about 14 per cent alcohol. Moselles and hocks contain about 8 per cent.

In the case of wines the remainder of the 100 per cent is composed of water, sugar, essential oils, flavors and aromatics.

Malt liquors, including most of the beers and ales, run from 4 to 6 per cent. The remainder is water, starch, sometimes a little of another carbohydrate, sugar, aromatics, essential oils, flavors. Perhaps we should count the foam.

The liquors that run high in alcohol are self-keeping. The spirit in them is sufficiently concentrated to kill off yeasts, molds and bacteria.

The reinforced wines are a little above the level. If reasonably well protected neither the organisms that make vinegar, the yeasts, molds, or bacteria, will spoil them. The percentage of alcohol is equal to that of keeping them.

If they are poorly kept the alcohol percentage is not capable of preventing spoilage. The low per cent wines and malt liquors must be pasteurized, well bottled, or casked, and held at low temperatures, else they spoil.

The Meanderer

Has Pointers for the Women on the Morning Bus—About the Smart Tweed Suitings Organdie Blouses—and Clip Compacts.

Inspired by a gay, encouraging young woman who rides the bus every morning to her day's work in a store on Pennsylvania avenue as she said, "I read the Meanderer every morning as I go to work, and I know a lot of others who do, too," the Meanderer has found special news for these women bus riders who, she assumes, are employed downtown and have little leisure for shopping. By no means do we exclude those women at home whose work is vastly important, too, but who may have time to read the Meanderer's short morning reports over a second cup of coffee.

"Companion tweeds"—wide, fresh, new spring checked and plain tweeds are being draped for inspection in a large, important F street department store. The "companion" label means that the customer should buy two harmonizing patterns for her spring costume, rather than one, if she would be smart. The plaids and checks in these tweeds—in any wanted colors—navy, brown, blue, red, may be matched in plain colors and made up with the aid of new designs from pattern houses, and the whole will be economical and exactly right for spring. The prices of the tweeds, which are 54 inches wide, are from $1.50 to $3 a yard. Saleswomen declare that no pattern, unless of unusually large size, should require more than 3 yards, including both the plain and checked or plain materials. The home dressmaker may quickly figure, then, that such a modish new outfit should cost her less than $10. The Meanderer can arrange for samples of these tweeds for the out-of-town reader if the reader desiring them will send her a self-addressed, stamped envelope with her request. Washington shoppers may call The Washington Post, National 4205, extension 19, to know where the materials are being shown.

Not long ago the "Commuter," a bag especially recommended for business women who have many effects to carry, was described in the Meanderer's column. It found many purchasers and satisfied them, with its numerous pockets and extra pack case large enough to hold a book. "The Commuter" comes in brown or black felt for $2.95 in a department store on Seventh street. A bag that is not quite as large as "The Commuter" is of morocco or calf and is equally new and interesting. A tricky "built-in" cigarette case in this bag has for its top a sliding mirror. Six cigarettes and a lighter or box of matches may be stored in the "built-in" case. Other roomy compartments in this bag do not make it bulky. In calfskin it is $2.95, and in morocco, $4.95, in a leather shop you probably have visited on F street.

Clip compacts are quite the latest and most efficient containers for powder. These compacts appear to be large, enameled buttons . . . or beautifully carved imitation lapis in round shapes—which may clip on the wrist, on the belt, on the collar, or even on a hat, and appear to be a dashing bit of trimming, while in reality they hold powder and a puff. For dancing parties, the clip compacts are indeed popular, as they may be completely out of the way while their owners dance. The enameled clip compacts the Meanderer found are in black, white, bright colors and beige, while the carved lapis effects she saw were blue, green and red. The button-like ones are only $1, while the lapis ones cost more.

Wide band silver bracelets held together with bright-colored rings, are sold with six colors of the rings—changeable, of course—for only $1 at the big department store selling the clip compacts.

For a quick bit of freshening up let The Meanderer recommend some organdy blouses just unpacked at a ready-to-wear store for women on F street. The blouses are in the new matelasse organdy in high neck, Ascot tie styles and cost only $1.95. A clever use for these blouses, with their puff sleeves and quaint necklines, is in combination with low-necked, sleeveless dark gowns and presto! an afternoon or dinner dress that has real mode.

Pigskin gloves in several shades in a high-class leather shop on F street have the interesting price tag of $1.95.

Telephone questions about any of the above items found by The Meanderer to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 19; or write to The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Plan Toward Peace In Leticia Delayed

Armed Volunteers Increase in Peruvian Loreto, Reports Say.

Rio de Janeiro, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Negotiations looking toward peaceful settlement of the Leticia situation were at a standstill today, and the situation over the border city in dispute between Peru and Colombia appeared ominous.

Dispatches from Manaos said that armed volunteers were increasing in the Peruvian Loreto region. Although the number of Peruvian regular troops in the region was not determined, it was believed that the volunteers outnumbered them. It was reported that the Peruvian minister of war had inspected the border detachments.

Brazil, which has drawn up a formula for settlement of the dispute, continued to proffer its good offices, hoping Peru and Colombia would reach an understanding. Brazil, however, consistently declined a suggestion that it hold Leticia indefinitely pending a final settlement.

Rare Find Is Made In Deepest Atlantic

Dr. Bartsch, of Smithsonian, Brings Up Mollusk Near Puerto Rico.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—A scientific expedition sponsored by Eldridge R. Johnson and Dr. Paul Bartsch, of the Smithsonian Institution, today reported many new discoveries in what is considered the deepest part of the Atlantic Ocean.

One was a mollusk. It was named "Clava Johnsoni Bartsch" in honor of the expedition's director, Dr. Bartsch, and Mr. Johnson, who today observed his sixty-sixth birthday.

The purpose of the excursion is to explore the deepest part of the Atlantic at Puerto Rican Deep (Narea Deep), to ascertain the depth and to study various forms of marine life. The survey will continue during the winter months through a four-year period. Mr. Johnson is furnishing his yacht for the purpose.

Vicks Antiseptic Opens A New Way to Economy

New Mouthwash and Gargle By the Makers of Vicks VapoRub Does Everything An Oral Antiseptic Can and Should Do—At Half the Usual Cost!

Local Druggists Have Special Trial Size—a 25c Value for Only 10c—While Supply Lasts.

To the millions who use a mouthwash or gargle for halitosis (bad breath), oral hygiene, and other antiseptic uses—here is news, indeed, of unusual savings. The makers of Vicks VapoRub have produced a quality oral antiseptic—Vicks Voratone Antiseptic—at actually less than half prevailing prices. The regular size, large 10-ounce bottle—a usual 75c value—is only 35c.

This answer to the public's problem of antiseptic costs is made possible by the record low prices of raw materials, combined with Vicks facilities for mass production. Born in a depression year and priced accordingly, Vicks Voratone Antiseptic brings a new revelation of economy in an article widely accepted as a modern household necessity.

Vicks Quality, of Course

Quality in keeping with the Vicks name and reputation is, of course, maintained in this new product. It is the best oral antiseptic Vicks Chemists could produce . . . and they were aided in their research by the chemists, bacteriologists, and pharmacologists of their 16 allied organizations, both here and abroad.

Vicks Voratone is a balanced antiseptic. Mild enough for daily use without risk to delicate membranes. Strong enough to do everything an oral antiseptic can and should do. It is designed for all usual uses—in the customary way.

Unusual Trial Offer

Of course, the only real proof of its quality—and its economy—is in actual use. To furnish such proof, the makers have supplied druggists with five million bottles of a special trial size at less than cost of manufacture. Each bottle contains 2⅓ ounces—a 25c value. The price—while the supply lasts—is only 10c.—Adv.

RAINEY ISSUES CALL FOR PARTY CAUCUS

Meeting Today Will Aim to Hold Members in Line Against Tariff Rise.

(Associated Press.)

Democratic House leaders will resort to the iron rule of caucus today to hold their membership in line against the Republican-supported Crowther bill to provide automatic tariff increases to offset the depreciated currencies of other nations.

As he issued the call for the party meeting, Representative Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic floor leader, expressed confidence that the two-thirds majority required to bind the party on a House vote would be forthcoming.

Meanwhile, a Senate vote on a similar proposal was perhaps assured when Senator Hatfield (Republican), West Virginia, introduced an amendment to this end as a rider on the bill to extend the Federal gasoline tax another year.

Leaders See Defeat.

The amendment, which leaders say probably will be defeated if it reaches a vote, would add to present tariffs a tax equal to the difference between the invoice value of the foreign article and its value on October 1, 1931.

The proposal would not apply to imports of tea, coffee, tin, rubber and fruits and unmanufactured spices not produced in the United States.

Led by Representative Snell, of New York, minority chieftain, the House Republicans already have pledged themselves for the legislation at this session and the whole subject has been somewhat of a political controversy for weeks.

Can Force Issue.

Having secured 145 names to petition the bill out of the Ways and Means Committee, the Republicans are in a position to force a vote on the issue Monday. With some Democrats in favor of the legislation, the Democratic chieftains have been placed in a difficult position.

However, testimony of Treasury and Tariff Commission officials against the proposal and the refusal of Secretary Mills to appear before a Ways and Means subcommittee has strengthened the Democratic position.

Speaker Garner maintains that the subject is "too important to be considered" during the remaining weeks of the short session and that in view of the testimony of administration representatives it should not be passed.

"President Hoover has never let it be known officially whether he was for or against the depreciated currency bills," Rainey said. "It looks like the Republicans are weakening and that their leaders shot their guns too quick."

A New Yorker AT LARGE

By MARK BARRON.

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Babyface, baby-voice Helen Kane was recently married in Washington to Max Hoffman, jr. She is returning to Broadway after an absence of two years, and two years is practically a career on this man's merry-go-round.

It was five years ago that her boop-boop-a-do singing became the rage, just as popular as is now the senseless hi-de-hi-de-ho type of chorus.

She'll probably be as popular as she always was, for she is prettier and sings better than ever.

For a time the diminutive Helen was threatened with plumpness, but she soon stopped that. Her figure is as it should be again. "I worked hard to reduce," she says. "I was afraid to get stout. I might get short of breath and not be able to sing."

Of course, it was pointed out that her fears were probably groundless. Kate Smith certainly never seems to suffer from shortness of breath.

But Who Can?

Another thing Helen confessed is that she can never remember people's names. "I get so embarrassed when people come up whom I know I have met," she admits, "but I simply can not recall their names."

With which this corner sympathizes, for it has long been a pet theory that one of the silliest customs at present-day gatherings is the formal introduction of every new arrival to every one present.

A couple of names are mumbled, neither one of which is understood, and we hold that it is simply a waste of time which might be much better utilized in getting over to the table where the sandwiches and oolong are parked.

Gotham Goes South.

The recent return to popularity of the old-fashioned Currier & Ives prints has boosted the prices of these works considerably. They have become so much the rage that even a book was written about them.

But, what we started out to relate is that one of the best collections of Currier & Ives extant is located in the plantation mansion of Baxter Jackson and Robert Goelet at Kingtree, S. C. There in that home back among the Carolina pines, you may see a real atmosphere of old New York on the walls.

The Hollywood influence has reached even the small merchants on Third avenue. There in the window of a small barber shop is a sign which reads: "Entire department under personal supervision and direction of P. Gionnani."

The strollers who suffer from nervousness probably were unusually upset the other afternoon when they saw that elephant walking down the middle of Fifth avenue. Just an advertising stunt, but it seemed unusually incongruous amid its settings of smart shops and sleek limousines.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

"Keep Your Face Toward the Sun and the Shadows Will Fall Behind."

EFFECT of Washington's Government building construction program has been felt in almost every section of the country, despite some protests that now is not the time for Uncle Sam to go into heavy expenditures for such work.

In fact, results have been so great as result of new orders for materials and workmanship that had the program not been in force many now busy would have remained idle.

Commerce is a fair example of how the money was distributed over the country. Eleven States and the District of Columbia supplied materials for that structure. Other buildings are requiring like materials and public moneys continue to be sent broadcast, scattering rays of hope and sunshine.

On display in the Bureau of Mines are 70 kinds of minerals and by-products used in Commerce. Limestone came from Indiana, 2,000 carloads. Granite, 150 carloads, came from Connecticut and were milled in Massachusetts. Missouri supplied 900 tons of marble; Vermont 470 tons; Minnesota 880 tons. Colorado and Georgia sent travertine chips, 500 cars from Georgia, from which was laid terrazo floors. West Virginia supplied 35 tons of tile. The District made 10,000,000 common brick; Pennsylvania 1,500,000 face brick, in addition to 200,000 for boiler room use. North Carolina and West Virginia furnished terra cotta, 27,000 tons.

Add to this the five acres of window and door glass, 2,250,000 cubic feet of sand, 190,000 pounds of soda ash, plaster, paint pigments, emery and 500,000 pounds of coal and you have Commerce Building alone.

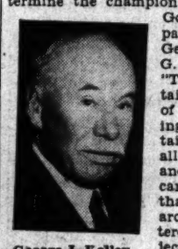
"I HEARTILY indorse your intention of holding a championship spelling contest to determine the champion speller of the Government departments," says George I. Kelley, G. A. O., retired. "There is certainly great need of better spelling. I will certainly give you all the support and assistance I can. I am sure that you will arouse great interest in the subject of better spelling and you will have no lack of interest in the contest.



George I. Kelley.

"If you were walking Thirteenth street, you would see a sign in a restaurant calling attention to the fact that the food is prepared by a skilled 'dietitian.' The first time I saw the sign it was spelled 'cian.' I called the attention of one interested in the restaurant to the error in spelling, and it is now spelled correctly.

Mr. Kelley participated in the spelling contest sponsored by the Baltimore Evening Sun in 1929, 1931 and 1932. Won second prize in 1929, but in reality tied for first because the word he was declared out on is spelled in two ways, his way being also correct.

In 1931, it was side against side and the contest ended when all from Baltimore were down. Mr. Kelley was one of four Washington spellers still up when the match ended. In 1932, Mr. Kelley won the first prize and Baltimore took second and third.

Mr. Kelley will meet any department any time and help organize for this contest.

CHEST KEPT OPEN

MORE than a year ago Forest Service Section, Department of Agriculture Welfare Association, held a "bundle" day for the poor. More than 100 bundles were divided between two organizations. Just before Christmas another "bundle" day was held, which netted about 100 bundles.

The plan to get together warm clothing for children and grown-ups was so successful a chest was placed on the first floor, Atlantic Building, where Forest Service is located, and kept open to receive bundles. The plan works surprisingly well. Forest Service members readily have fallen into the habit of bringing discarded but useful garments.

Since January 1 the chest has been filled four times. The fifth lot is almost ready for a social agency. Closets and trunks still yield garments put away for more wear, and perhaps forgotten until insistent demand of the city's less fortunate poor has called them to mind. Forest Service people no longer carelessly hang away the old coat when the new one is donned; they are bringing in to the Chest superseded garments someone else can use.

Each clearing yields about 175 pieces of clothing of varied classifications, all valuable. One agency receiving bundles informed the Forest Service that if all Government Bureaus would put into effect the "Open Chest" plan.

IN Agriculture there is a budding Omar Khayam, or a poet-laureate competitor. Because of shyness his real identity must, at the moment, remain a secret. One of his most recent productions, dedicated to one of the fair sex, was handed the column writer while lately en tour. It is shared with readers at its face value, and, if his fan mail is heavy, as a result of this publication, he may be encouraged to give an encore:

AN "ASTROLOGICAL" BIRTHDAY GREETING.

O ver your Starry Fate;
R emember you are fatter and fairer,
T hat you are fortynate—

Y ears need not cause in your alarm,

A nd if at times you're near despair,
R emember always that I care!—

P. S.:
Do not be bothered by that bum Astrology,
Or by this bit of bad Psychology.
By saying "you are fortynate"
I meant (I think it best to state,
In order to avoid a spat!)
"You're fairly fortyfied with fat."

PASSING OF APPONYI MOURNED IN GENEVA

Dean of League's Statesmen Refused to Abandon Post Despite 87 Years.

Geneva, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Count Albert Apponyi, 87, the oldest statesman of the League of Nations, died today after a week's illness of influenza complicated by pulmonary congestion. His wife and son were at his bedside. The son flew here from Vienna Sunday when his father's condition became serious.

The count's death deeply grieved league circles and the day's session of the world disarmament conference was interrupted while Arthur Henderson, the chairman, announced the news. The death came about the time a deputy Hungarian delegate to the arms conference was discussing the French plan for disarmament. The count headed the Hungarian delegation.

Gen. Tanczos, of Hungary, lauded the statesman as a true soldier who had fallen on the field of battle, while Mr. Henderson said, "We have lost one of the most loyal friends of the League of Nations."

"His last public act," Gen. Tanczos continued to his tribute, "was a speech at Vienna 10 days ago in which he defended the league against its enemies."

The count had been active in politics since 1872, when he became a member of the Hungarian chamber of deputies. At that time he was a member of the Conservative party, but he later affiliated with the Nationalist party. Still another switch came when, in 1899, he became aligned with the Liberal party. Two years after becoming privy councillor in 1901, however, he reestablished the Nationalist party and resumed a campaign for the creation of a National Hungarian army.

He headed the Hungarian delegation to the Versailles Peace Conference.

Since the founding of the league the patriarch's spare frame and bearded patrician face had been familiar at Geneva gatherings. Despite his advanced age and increasing feebleness, he declined to surrender his work as Hungary's spokesman and returned here recently to attend the resumption of the arms conference.

YOUR INCOME TAX

No. 8.

EXEMPTIONS ALLOWED COUPLES MARRIED DURING TAXABLE YEAR.

Taxpayers should note that under the revenue act of 1932 the credit for dependents as well as the personal exemption is required to be proratd where a change of status occurs during the taxable year. A fractional part of a month is to be disregarded unless it amounts to more than half a month, in which case it is considered a month.

For example, a single man and a single woman who were married on July 20, 1932, and were living together on the last day of the taxable year may file a joint return and would be entitled to a personal exemption of $2,208.34, which is 7-12 of $1,000 for the husband while single, plus 7-12 of $1,000 for the wife while single, plus 5-12 of $2,500 for the period during which they were married. If separate returns are filed each is entitled to a personal exemption of $1,104.17, which is 7-12 of $1,000, plus, ½ of 5-12 of $2,500. If during the year 1932 the husband or the wife had the status of the head of a family prior to their marriage, he or she would be entitled to his or her pro rata share of the personal exemption of $2,500 allowed the head of a family for the period prior to their marriage instead of merely that allowed a single person. However, for the period of their marriage any exemption to which either might be entitled as the head of a family would be merged in the joint personal exemption allowable in the case of a couple who were married and living together during the entitre year may not exceed $2,500.

If a child under 18 years of age and dependent on the parent for support reaches the age of 18 years during the taxable year, the credit of $400 for a dependent is required to be prorated in the same manner as the personal exemption. For example, should the child's eighteenth birthday fall on June 30, the parent would be entitled to claim $200 credit for the dependent child—that is, ½ of $400. The same rule applies to other dependents where a change of status occurs during the taxable year.

July Leads in Birth Record, Census Bureau Totals Show

Many Reasons Given to Show Vital Statistics Are Vital.

By GEORGE D. RILEY.

WE had heard that vital statistics are vital, but we didn't know why. So we asked Miss Fanny P. Lamson, secretary to the statistician, Census Bureau, to assist us. Here are some of the things we learned:

There are more births in July, March, August, December and January rank in order listed.

In 1931 infant mortality per 1,000 live births registered 61.7, a decrease from 64.5 in 1930.

The birth rate per 1,000 population in 1930 was 18.9 per cent. In 1931 it was 17.8 per cent.

The birth rate in 1930 was higher in urban population than in 1931 by 1.5 per cent, by the 1,000 population.

In rural centers the birth rate was lower in 1930 than in 1931 by .5 per cent.

HEART disease continues to hold its high toll rate.

Cremation is on the increase, due to installation of equipment in new centers.

In 1900 ten States were in the death registration area and nearly 400 cities in the nonregistration zone.

In 1933 the registration area included 96.2 per cent of the total population. In 1900 it was 40.5 per cent.

MISS FANNY P. LAMSON.

In 1900 no two States used uniform certificates of death or birth.

By 1910 practically all the States were using a uniform certificate.

In 1933 standard certificates were being used in all States.

In order to get into the registration area States must register 90 per cent of births and deaths.

The birth registration area was established in 1915 and the same for deaths under adequate State law.

Here's a magic trick from cigarette advertising called "Cigarettes and Your Throat."

EXPLANATION: A cigarette has to use choice, ripe tobaccos to be easy on your throat.

Cheap, raw tobaccos are harsh and irritating. No "treatment" can do more than mask their rasping effect.

And there is an irritating dust, naturally present to some degree in all tobaccos. Camel removes this peppery dust by a special vacuum cleaning process.

And even more important is Camel's matchless blending and its more costly tobacco.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, more expensive tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Choice tobaccos tell the best story of throat ease!

DEBTORS GET TOGETHER.

Reports from London indicate that the British cabinet has under consideration a proposal to make an offer in behalf of all debtors to pay a lump sum of about $2,000,000,000 to the United States in full settlement of the war debts. This is about 17 per cent of the amount due. Payment would be effected through a bond issue, to be sold largely in the United States.

The United States has repeatedly refused to deal with the debtors collectively. There is no reason to suppose that it would now negotiate with Great Britain as the spokesman of the other debtors. The effort to present a united front to the United States is in pursuance of the persistent plan of the debtors to make payment to the United States contingent upon Germany's payment of reparations.

If Great Britain were received as the spokesman of France, the United States would be maneuvered into negotiations with a defaulting government that is fully capable of paying its debts, the purpose being to write off most of France's obligation. It does not appear that there is any sentiment in the United States in favor of extending further gratuities to France.

Great Britain is involved in an understanding with other debtor governments, which was declared by Premier Herriot of France to mean that they must deal collectively with the United States. British authorities denied that the agreement applied to negotiations with the United States, but apparently France is holding Britain to the agreement as it was understood at Lausanne when it was made. No public revelation has been made which would indicate that France had protested against Britain's action in making first and separate overtures to the United States, but a change has come over British plans if the latest London report is true. Instead of pressing for a separate agreement, Britain now formulates a project for collective settlement, which if accepted by the United States would extricate France from an embarrassing position.

Would Americans buy the bonds which European debtors propose to float off? Several international bankers believe that these bonds would be readily marketed. Perhaps this is true. Americans invested billions in foreign bonds not so long ago. It may be that skillful propaganda can convince Americans that their best interests lie in knocking off 83 per cent of the war debts and then lending the debtors the money with which to pay the balance.

However that may be, several hurdles must be carried before the question of bond flotation will be important.

First and foremost, the President-elect and many members of Congress have signified that commercial or other concessions must be made by the debtors in return for debt revision. No concessions of any kind have been suggested by any British spokesman, although Viscount Snowden insists that Britain is in a position to offer some to the United States.

Secondly, negotiations must in effect be carried on with Congress as well as with the President. This fact will bring to the forefront the question of collective bargaining and the question of granting favors to France in the face of her refusal to pay in spite of her capacity to pay. A complete reversal of opinion in Congress must occur before the negotiations can proceed on the lines now contemplated in London. President-elect Roosevelt is too experienced with legislative bodies to make any commitments without their knowledge and consent. Probably a distinct proposal emanating from London would be discussed at length in Congress, even if the makers of the proposal should wish to keep it from public knowledge for the time being. Thus, in addition to the necessity for converting Congress, it would be necessary to convince the American public of the merit of any plan before the negotiations could go very far.

FALSE ECONOMY.

Confusion over the appropriation bills became worse confounded yesterday when the Senate voted to direct all department heads to slash 5 per cent from whatever funds they may be allowed by Congress. It is estimated that this would save the Government about $140,000,000. The attempt at economy is commendable, but the method proposed to bring it about is bungling and destructive.

The Senate has not yet disposed of a single appropriation bill. Most of the bills have not yet been considered, and only a few have been reported out of committee. Yet the Senate votes arbitrarily to cut each of them 5 per cent below the point to which they may be trimmed by Congress. In other words, the Senate intends to do all the slashing that it finds practicable, and then force department heads to make further reductions which Congress itself is unable to make.

An amendment would forbid department heads to make this mandatory saving by cutting salaries or by use of the administrative furlough. Hence, dozens of bureaus will have no alternative to wholesale dismissal of employes. If this provision becomes law, Washington can expect an enormous increase in unemployment. Congress will be required to make larger appropriations to take care of the families that are rendered destitute by this so-called economy.

No good reason can be found for the application of a uniform cut to all departments regardless of the importance of the work they perform. It is possible that some might be cut more than 5 per cent without much loss to the Government, but the Senate does not trust itself to discriminate between useless functions and vital service. Even the Army and Navy, which are already held to a minimum strength by the drastic cuts in their appropriation bills, would be compelled to save 5 per cent of their funds. Where could this saving be made? A further reduction of the Army and Navy personnel could not be justified by any circumstances in this critical period, and allowances for equipment, food, housing, etc., have already been cut below the requirements of efficiency. If this provision should be enacted into law it will be a severe blow to national defense.

After imposing this drastic sacrifice upon Government employes, the Senate defeated the recommendation of its economy committee that Federal salaries be reduced by 1 2-3 per cent. Apparently the Senate prefers to maintain salaries and increase unemployment, in spite of the share-the-work movement which is spreading throughout the country. As an ultimate measure of its inconsistency, the Senate voted to apply a 10 per cent cut to the enlisted personnel of the Army and Navy, even though it refused to increase the cut in civilian salaries to 10 per cent. Soldiers who continue to serve the Government would be heavily penalized, while thousands who served a short time in the military service during the war, and suffered no injury therefrom, continue to draw a dole aggregating nearly $400,000,000.

It is evident that the Senate does not know its own mind on the subject of economy. It is slashing out wildly in every direction, with the result that indefensible extravagance is maintained and the jobs of small-salaried Government clerks are put in jeopardy.

JAPAN'S MANDATES.

As the prospective withdrawal of Japan from the League of Nations approaches, the status of mandated territories under control of Japan is attracting a great deal of attention. The general assumption has been that if Japan should withdraw from the League she would forfeit her rights to retain the mandates. But analysis of the mandate system leads to a different conclusion.

During the World War the allied powers entered into secret treaties for the division among themselves of Germany's colonies as well as Turkish territory. Colonial possessions were to be taken as legitimate spoils of war. But in negotiating the peace treaties President Wilson insisted that the former colonies should be administered under direction of the League instead of being annexed by the great powers. The mandate system was a compromise between the two viewpoints.

Germany did not cede her territories to the League of Nations, but to the "Principal Allied and Associated Powers." The supreme war council allotted the spoils to the mandatories, and the peace conference accepted the arrangement. Provision is made for powers controlling mandates to report to the league, but the covenant does not require that mandatories shall be members of the league.

Japan was given a mandate over all German holdings north of the equator. These include the Marshall and Caroline Islands between the Philippines and Hawaii. All of these mandates fall under class "C." Almost no restrictions were imposed upon mandatories accepting obligations of this type. Japan is authorized to administer these islands "as integral portions of its territory." Immigration may be excluded and tariffs erected against other members of the league. Mandates under class "C" permit the virtual annexation of territory.

It appears, therefore, that the League of Nations will not be able to deprive Japan of these mandates even though that country withdraws from the league. The same is true of the Central African mandates, which are administered by European powers. These vast territories, with a population of about 12,000,000, were distributed as the spoils of war under a camouflage arrangement. Apparently they can not be taken from the mandatories to whom they have been allocated. The covenant, which countenances the secret distribution of territorial spoils, contains no provision for breaking the grip of the spoilsmen.

BUREAU OF EFFICIENCY.

In voting to abolish the Bureau of Efficiency the Senate gave no heed whatever to its record and its service to the Government. The economy committee recommended abolition of the bureau on the ground that its usefulness has ended since the Bureau of the Budget was created, and the Senate accepted that view without any serious attempt to inquire into the matter.

Indisputable facts show that the Bureau of Efficiency has saved the Government many times the amount which it has spent. Estimates submitted by Senator Nye indicate that the bureau's investigations have cost $1,883,432, and the savings therefrom amount to more than $10,000,000. It is common knowledge that this is one of the few bureaus which actually save the Government money. Yet it will be the first to feel the economy ax, if the Senate amendment to the Treasury-Postoffice appropriation bill is allowed to stand.

The Bureau of Efficiency and the Bureau of the Budget have little in common. One is engaged in the elimination of waste through introduction of improved methods, through standardization of service, etc. The duty of the other is to prepare the President's fiscal recommendations to Congress. The Budget Bureau could not carry on the work that is now done by the Bureau of Efficiency without setting up an entirely new organization.

The action of the Senate becomes even more unreasonable in view of the fact that complete reorganization of the Government service is contemplated early in the Roosevelt administration. This bureau would be of more service to Mr. Roosevelt in preparing his reorganization plan than any other agency. The Senate proposes to destroy it at the very moment when its services are most needed.

It is to be hoped that the House will reject this measure and that the Senate, after further consideration, will leave the Bureau of Efficiency to be dealt with in Mr. Roosevelt's reorganization plan.

WHO CONTROLS THE SENATE?

Two hours of precious time were wasted by the Senate on Monday in a wrangle over responsibility for the impotence of that body. Senator Robinson's attempt to lay the blame on the shoulders of Senator Watson turned against him in a way that he had not expected. The veteran Democratic leader must have forgotten that the Republicans had a most effective way of demonstrating that they can not control the Senate. Senator Watson's motion to proceed with executive business and confirm some of President Hoover's appointments resulted in an adverse vote of 41 to 31. This put the entire argument of the senator from Arkansas into the scrapheap.

Yet it can not be assumed on the basis of this vote that the Democrats, under the leadership of Senator Robinson, have control of the Senate. On occasions when they wish to block Republican measures the Democrats are usually able to command a majority, with the aid of Republican insurgents. But when they wish to go forward with a program of their own, they are hampered by Democratic filibusterers and fanatics.

Senator Borah came nearest to epitomizing the whole situation when he said it was very evident that no one has control of the Senate. But that statement does not fully explain the predicament in which the Senate finds itself. It nearly always has a majority for obstruction, but seldom a majority for constructive action. The Senate must compromise with its demagogues on nearly every piece of legislation that is passed. One group specializes in drowning bills with mill-stone amendments. Another takes delight in "varnishing nonsense with the charms of sound," regardless of what bills may be under discussion. Almost all members of the Senate are guilty of using legislative time to wash political linen.

Certainly neither party is in control of the Senate, and of course the insurgents are not strong enough by themselves to direct its affairs. The Democratic-insurgent coalition is a loose and unorganized arrangement with good brakes but no acceleration. Even the Democratic group is split into factions, as the bitter debate and futile filibuster on the Glass banking bill proved. The Senate's impotence is not due to the connivance of either party, but to its organization and rules, which permit a handful of obstructionists to tie it into knots.

Somebody says that Bill Bullitt is merely a newspaper man who has gone to investigate Europe's troubles. That's wrong, because any newspaper man looking for trouble would come to Washington.

Some idea of Senate confusion may be gleaned from Bob La Follette's request for night sessions and Pat Harrison's plea for "a moratorium on politics".

Hitler has begun his great work of "liberating" Germany. He has robbed the people of free speech, free press, and the right of assembly.

THE BREAD LINE.

They stood in line and shivered, and the man in the middle said:
"Tell me the way to do it. Do I ask them for soup and bread?
Will they question my name and address?" The two of them looked him o'er
And one of them spoke up quickly,
"Have you never been here before?"

"Never," the poor man answered. The man in the front turned around,
"You've always been used to comfort!
Now the pain of the poor you've found."
And the man just behind said: "Easy!
Don't jibe at him any more.
The bread line is cruel business if you've never been there before.

"You and I know no better; we've always worn clothing thin.
We've always been poor and lowly;
we can stand in the line and grin;
We are used to this bitter business—but here at this kitchen door
Let's help him to get his breakfast—he's never been here before!"

If the Leopard Has Killed Two Trainers, Why Make Further Efforts to Tame It?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE normal child has no understanding of property rights. Like the wolf cub and the colt, he takes the thing he desires if he can reach it.

He is told that he may not take certain things because such taking is "wrong," but this prohibition does not seem reasonable or convincing until he is old enough to experience the joy of private ownership.

Once he has learned to delight in possessions, he can understand that the taking of another's goods is unfair. His logical mind sees no fault in the rule that forbids thieving.

If he is denied much and sorely tempted, he may at times "find" things that aren't lost—as he may in emergency use his only weapon of defense and lie to escape hurt—but repentance follows and no scar is left on his character.

He has a sense of honor and he becomes an honest man. And even though physical suffering or anguish of spirit should tempt him to steal after he reaches maturity, still he remains essentially decent and is never a menace to society.

He is the normal and ordinary man.

The confirmed thief is a different animal. He may be a moron who never has accepted the fact of property rights. He envies all men their possessions; he feels cheated of his rights; and he steals when and where he can without hurt to his conscience. His only uneasiness is the fear of being caught.

The more intelligent thief deliberately chooses to steal because theft provides wealth without work. He is sublimely selfish, cunning and heartless. He regards honest people as suckers and legitimate prey. He has no conscience or understanding of honor, and he feels an amused contempt for those he robs.

He is not a petty thief—a purse snatcher. He hunts bigger prey, and his methods are many. He may hold up a bank, sell worthless stock, swindle or blackmail the rich, or resort to any other method of obtaining large sums dishonestly.

In any case, he and the moron sneak thief have become what they always will be. Up or down, in prison or at liberty, they are thieves at heart and will so remain until they die.

Society can not reform them. Work is too hard and easy money too plentiful.

Punishing them is a stupid waste of effort. They should be caged for life, as mad men are, for in no other way can society protect itself. And a second conviction should serve as proof that society never can trust them outside of stone walls.

POLITICAL COMMENT

To New Naval Construction.
Philadelphia Inquirer.

What is an adequate Navy? This was what the first President Roosevelt always insisted upon, and the second has replied to questions by making a similar statement. The naval authorities, of course, are distressed at the falling behind in strength which the suspension in building implies. The huge Treasury deficit has helped to make their pleas unavailing. While there is no immediate peril in not reaching treaty requirements, there will necessarily come a time when a more or less ambitious program of construction will be desirable.

Admiral Pratt is right in saying that the United States is at present in a relatively weaker position than Great Britain and Japan, which joined with us in the Washington Treaty in establishing what was then regarded as a fair ratio. We have no need to fear the former power. Japan is another matter. Already she is seeking to obtain for herself a higher ratio—a circumstance which can not be wholly dissociated with her recent operations in China and Manchuria. And if the Philippines are finally surrendered and our naval strength remains at a minimum, Japan will become the dominant power in the Pacific.

Their Incomes Are Sacred.
Boston Transcript.

The national House took a dip toward the Senate level when it refused to cut its own pay. The significance of its failure to take its medicine along with the rest of the country lies not so much in the refusal to accept a cut as in the practical unanimity of the action—only two votes against the slash to $5,000 and a mere handful against the reduction to $7,500, which was the base pay when living expenses were no higher than they are now. This is the same body which would cheerfully tax all the people for the doubtful benefit of the few, as in the parity or domestic allotment bill; pass out a billion or two more of the people's money to another group to whom it is not due and, if it follows the hand of its Committee of the Whole, break faith with the retired officers of the United States Army by cutting away their retirement pay if they have outside incomes exceeding $3,000 a year.

Mortgage Moratoriums.
Los Angeles Times.

Mortgage moratoriums have been granted by several large insurance companies on their claims in Iowa and other Midwest States, and some State Legislatures are being pushed in the direction of legislation to make foreclosure more difficult and have the same effect as a general moratorium. As an emegency measure there may be some advantage to distressed borrowers in this relief, but all such concessions must be purchased at heavy future cost.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Centralization of Federal Power and Disappearance of States May Produce Dictatorship.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am not surprised that you were in a state of amazement when you wrote that "The country can not fail to be astonished by the bold proposal of President-elect Roosevelt"—the proposal that, by extension of the powers of the Federal Government the Tennessee Valley shall at once be changed into an opulent domain of thriving farms and factories.

The astonishment of the country can hardly be greater than the alarm of conservatives as to the outcome if the proposal should be adopted and carried out.

The proposal seems to mean that the States are to be practically eliminated from the American constitutional system. The Federal Government is to be all and do all. When it goes into business the States and the people go out of business.

Some of those who favor this project will no doubt persist in the assertion that it will involve no radical change in our form of government. On the other hand there is a more or less active group, college professors and other theoretic publicists, who will doubtless welcome the "experiment" as a step toward replacing the admitted complexities of our Federal polity by a paternalistic simplicity—something similar in its functioning to the imperial German government in its great day of bureaucratic efficiency prior to the World War.

The now old-fashioned group to which I belong have from the beginning, realized that our governmental system is too complex, perhaps too nicely adjusted, ever to function smoothly against the pressure of an ignorant electorate.

Judging by the centralizing tendency in recent years, it is very evident that the degree of carelessness and indifference in regard to constitutional limitations is very great. I am afraid that, dazzled by the grandiose appeal of the Tennessee Valley scheme, our average citizens will altogether lose sight of the constitutional rights and responsibilities of the States, which the makers of our basic law held to be the pillars of a federated commonwealth.

I shall cease to admire what we have been proud to call the American system. But I think the academic publicists are correct insofar as their belief is that the Tennessee Valley development will simplify the functioning of the United States Government by centralizing it. It is not unlikely to be the final step holding us to a course which will lead, if not to monarchy, at least to some sort of academocracy, or Communist dictatorship.

In view of this and of what now seems to be a widespread sentiment favorable to all sorts of paternalistic legislation, I am at last forced to consider seriously whether what I have hitherto condemned as the satanic heresy of centralization may not after all be a doctrine more likely to prevail than that of States' rights and local self-government.

It is very hard to think of giving up the dream of our continued growth and improvement as a family of self-reliant States. Daniel Webster must have been moved by such a thought when, in a passage by whose sonorous fervency I was as a boy both pleased and puzzled, he said: "If these columns fall they will not be rebuilt. Bitterer tears will flow over them than were ever shed over the ruins of Grecian and Roman architecture. For they will be the remnants of a more glorious edifice than Greece or Rome ever saw—the edifice of constitutional American liberty." FEDERALIST.

Democrats Want Those Jobs in Spite of Civil Service, but "Observer" May Guess Again.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I'm saying to some of those Federal officeholders who are banking on holding their fat jobs on account of civil service that in my opinion they have another guess, especially those who have been taught to believe that it was a cruel and an unpardonable sin to even vote for a Democrat, let alone vote the Democratic ticket.

Many thousands of worthy Democrats will want these jobs and unless I miss my guess they'll get them and that too before many months. The plank will be put out and if they don't walk it, it may be necessary to use a crowbar to pry them loose—and why not?

In every appointment by the Democrats it should be stipulated in the bond or contract that whenever he or she fails or can not "make good" then and there they should "step aside" and let another Democrat be appointed at once. OBSERVER.

John Galsworthy a Good Example to Young Writers—No Necessity for Indecency.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I agree with your correspondent, W. T. T., that it would be a good thing for "healthy-minded young writers" to pay more attention to the work of John Galsworthy, if they are looking for pointers, and stop trying to get a paying kick out of the decadent story-writing nastiness of the past few years. I don't think this applies so much to popular romances, which for best results must keep within decent bounds. And I don't see why novels which should picture life as it is should not make the most of any ray of good cheer there may be in human existence. Galsworthy seems to have tried to paint a true picture, and I doubt whether there is any novel in English literature which in the workmanlike handling of details furnishes a better model than his "Man of Prosperity."

AMERICAN ARMS CUT WAITS UPON EUROPE

Powers Must Make Actual Progress to Disarm, Gibson Declares.

Geneva, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Hugh S. Gibson, the American delegate, told the General Commission of the Arms Conference today that nothing further can be expected from the United States on arms cuts until the European powers make some actual progress toward disarmament.

Gibson, brief, almost curt, in his 2-minute speech on the French plan for disarmament, said that what Washington would be disposed to do on the French project for organized security, "largely will be determined by the measure of actual reduction which the conference may achieve."

He emphasized that it was Rene Massigli, the French chief expert and delegate, who had admitted that the first task under the French plan was to reach agreement among the continental European states.

The commission continued its routine consideration of the French plan, although the American attitude, coupled with British and Italian opposition, was regarded as having killed it. The commission adjourned until tomorrow without action.

Letters of a Capital Society Divorcee to Her Mother

Dearest Mother:

Last night I went for dinner to the "Grand Cafe" with my "lady friends." On returning I got your telegram. Mrs. Oliver tells me that life is unimportant. She has charm and wit, but is in such a slough of despair! She can't bear to be left alone a minute. The other half of my social life so far is prissy nice and addicted to reciting her own poetry. Funny, the elevator girls, drug and shop clerks, chambermaids, et cetera (including my Daisy) all came here for divorce. Some are working their way through the six weeks and some have stayed on like Daisy. The air is really grand.

Many of the women on the street carry paper bags full of food. Even very handsomely dressed ones. There are practically no servants to be had here, so those who have apartments, cook their own breakfasts and luncheons and have a visiting maid for dinner. I remember now what Ethel told me about the paper bag brigade. I wish I could find somebody nice to take an apartment with. My only two friends are so depressed and gloomy that I call them to myself the "curse of answered prayer." We walked today through the Chinese-Indian quarter. It is only a square or two long and wooden shacks, where the Chinese run gambling houses. Daisy tells me some of the hotel people go there and gamble.

This afternoon I happened to remember that a friend at home had told me to look up Mrs. Gary who I find is staying at this hotel. She told me on the telephone that she has less than two weeks "of her sentence" left. It will be interesting to me to talk to anyone who has been here so long because she must know all there is to know about the place. I am delighted at the prospect of having another person to talk to. So much tramping in the outdoors has cooled Mrs. Oliver off so that one can see how charming and lovely she really is. I still keep a weather eye on her though, knowing by hard experience that she is a "collapser."

I am not thinking of lawyers. There is plenty of time for that.

FOUR FLIERS IN AIR NEAR NEW RECORDS

Two London-to-Cape Town and One England-to-Brazil Flight in Progress.

London, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Four fliers—three of them British and the other a young South African—were well on their way tonight toward record-breaking goals.

Victor Smith, 19 years old, started from Southampton at 7:10 a. m. (2:10 a. m., Eastern standard time), today in an attempt to beat Mrs. Amy Johnson Mollison's time for the England-to-Cape Town flight.

He has a "stiff job" before him, he said, and, if he succeeds, he intends to settle down and work in his father's factory.

Late today he reached Perpignan, in the south of France, and announced he would take off again shortly for Oran, Algeria.

Mrs. Mollison's husband, Capt. J. A. Mollison, who seeks to add to his other aviation exploits a new speed record from England to Brazil, reached Villa Cisneros, on the west coast of Africa, at 3:15 p. m. He planned to rest at that Spanish prison colony for a few hours, and then resume his flight in the direction of Senegal.

Meanwhile, as two British Royal Air Force fliers, Squadron Leader O. R. Gayford and Flight Lieut. G. E. Nicholetts neared the halfway mark on their nonstop distance hop to Cape Town, residents of that city were making ready to give the pair an enthusiastic welcome.

Their ambition was to break the mark set by two Americans, Russell Boardman and John Polando, who flew from New York to Istanbul, Turkey, on the 6,198-mile journey to Cape Town, Union of South Africa.

Stocks Continue Advances After Dull Opening Trading

Better Market Tone Laid to Dividend Data; Sales, 584,845 Shares.

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Stocks jogged along sluggishly today until the last hour, when they found enough support for a moderate rally.

Having weathered recent dividend squalls without serious casualties, the market doubtless drew encouragement from declaration of regular payments by General Motors and Socony-Vacuum Corporations.

Wall street was interested in word that Great Britain was prepared to offer a final lump payment in settlement of her war debt obligations, while an increase in structural steel orders, scattered over the country, helped make home fires look a little brighter.

Stocks accomplished virtually nothing until the late trading and the extreme range for most shares was narrow. However, U. S. Steel preferred, Drug, United Fruit, North American and American Telephone improved more than a point, the gain for Telephone being about 2 net. Socony Vacuum, General Motors, U. S. Steel common, Du Pont, Case, Standard Oil of California, Consolidated Gas and several rails averaged half a point higher. Santa Fe and Union Pacific, in the rail division, and Tobaccos among industrials, stepped back a bit. Transactions aggregated only 584,845 shares.

Rumors about a forthcoming cigarette price cut would not down. Their persistence took moderate toll of American Tobacco, Liggett & Myers and Reynolds. Maintenance of the General Motors dividend presumably lent strength to opinion that the Telephone company will do likewise next Wednesday week, especially since the latter's $9 annual rate was, on the basis of statistics for the first three-quarters of 1932 and estimates for the last, about two-thirds earned.

Stocks.

Advances were continued after early dull trading. The better market tone was ascribed to the General Motors' dividend. Late rallies brought an average gain of five-tenths of a point. Sales totaled 584,845 shares.

Bonds.

Loans forsook the losing side and scored an average gain of one-tenth of a point. A brighter rail outlook aided the recovery. Sales decreased to $8,053,000.

Curb.

Curb price changes were narrow in trading. Utilities held steady to firm; industrials, mixed; oils, improved. The sales turnover was 110,000 shares.

Wheat.

Reports of heavy snows caused wheat prices to decline. There was also a lessening of speculative buying. Corn closed unchanged to one-eighth off. Oats advanced three-eighths. May sold at 47½ to 47⅝ cents.

Cotton.

Combined buying and covering gave a further boost to prices. May sold at 6.10, with the general market up 5 to 9 points. Liverpool failed to make the New York advances—its market was quiet with selling against purchases in the United States.

CURB PRICE CHANGES NARROW IN TRADING

Profit Taking Appears in Gold Issues; Turnover; 110,000 Shares.

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—The curb market was confined to a narrow groove today, and trading lagged, with a turnover of 110,000 shares, or 40,000 less than yesterday's.

Further profit taking appeared in the gold mining issues, and in the low-priced group, Teck Hughes, Wright Hargraves and Pioneer closed a shade lower. Lake Shore, one of the largest Canadian producers, however, met support on a reaction which carried it down a point, and rallied to close at 32½, up ¼. Hollinger was steady.

Utilities closed mostly steady to firm. Commonwealth Edison gained 2 points, and American Gas & Electric recovered most of an early sag of a fraction. The cold snap should make the electric power consumption figures to appear next week more favorable than recent reports. Electric Bond & Share dipped a fraction, then recovered. Cities Service turned active and firm, closing at 2½, up ⅜. Bell Telephone of Canada was a soft spot in the utility group, appearing at 73, off 6 points.

Industrials were mixed. Axton Fisher declined 2¾ points in a light turnover, in response to further rumors that the "Big Four" cigarette manufacturers were planning to offer Axton Fisher's low-priced product keener competition through reducing their prices further. Unexplained activity cropped out in New York Shipbuilding, which rose a point. Aluminum Co. was up a fraction. Despite the unsettled price structure in the petroleum industry, oil shares appeared helped by Socony-Vacuum's ordering of its regular dividend. Gulf was steady, and Indiana up a fraction.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Gold mining issues on the stock exchange were active and irregular with certain selling exceeding buying orders. Gilt-edged securities and industrials benefited on investment buying and German bonds, oil shares and transatlantic issues recovered fractionally. The market closed steadier.

Paris—Trading on the bourse was hesitant awaiting legislative discussion concerning the government's new financial projects. The closing was steady.

Berlin—After registering gains at the opening, prices on the boerse closed weaker.

Currency Inflation Advices Confusing to Wall Street

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Wall street mulled today over conflicting advice that currency inflation would help cure business and that it would throw business into "confusion worse confounded."

At a banquet of 450 financiers and brokers, Senator Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma Democrat, said last night that Congress awaited only a "nod and whisper" from heads of powerful banks to reverse the process of deflation and depression. He favored "a reasonable and controlled expansion of currency and credit."

"Bankers of New York," he said, "I plead with you to face the facts, meet the issue, permit the Nation to live."

Representative Robert Luce, of Massachusetts, declared the people's answer to every proposal for cash inflation should be "a stern nb."

If there is to be any law-making on the problem, he said, it should aim to increase the volume of credit, not cash. He said currency inflation "would throw the work of the country, its production, its distribution—in short the business of the whole land, into confusion worse confounded."

There were other, varying views, including middle-of-the-course advice.

The issuance of stamped scrip as a measure of "reflation" was urged by Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale. Robert L. Owen, former senator from Oklahoma, urged the Federal Government to issue currency with which to buy its own bonds. He said he opposed inflation and favored sound money, but contended the present dollar is unsound.

On the one hand Dr. Lionel D. Edie, prominent Wall street economist, differed sharply from the inflationists, saying "there is some safety in the fact that no two of these inflationists can agree on the magic formula."

On the other, Senator E. D. Smith, of South Carolina, declared that the answer to present conditions, from a domestic point of view, is inflation—"a radical inflation until the terrible distress and debts are relieved."

All agreed that the controversy is one of the livest of the day. Representative Luce said, for instance, that it 'bids fair to decide the Presidency in 1936 as it did in 1896."

Steel Trade Seen Moving Forward

Structural Inquiries Grow; Trend in 1933 Is Upward.

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Several large inquiries for structural steel, mostly for public projects, are said to be in the market, in addition to a large volume of orders recently placed. The situation for the entire steel industry, as seen by American Metal Market, is rather favorable.

That publication says the trend in 1933 to date shows "definitely and conclusively that barring accidents in general business, the steel industry has left its worst period behind." Improvement, though small, "has all the marks of permanence."

Some commission houses are stressing the stock market's recent display of resistance as average prices reached the neighborhood of last fall's lows. Bullish sentiment, however, has been toned down by heaviness of commodities. With the advent of a new administration less than a month away, many observers would not be surprised by a continued period of virtual market stagnation.

GOODS MARKET.

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Gray cotton goods markets were slightly firmer today on an additional volume of business on print cloths, broadcloths and some of the fine combed goods. Finished goods were in moderate demand. Wool goods were in moderate call with prices steadier. Demand for rayon fabrics was lighter. Burlap was unchanged.

Daily average the previous week by refineries representing 95.4 per cent of total was 397,000 barrels. BONDS RENEW GAINS AS RAIL ISSUES RISE

Germans and Australians in Upturn; Sales Fall to $8,053,000.

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—After several spiritless sessions the bond market lifted its head today with the help of a revival of interest in rail loans, a better tone in U. S. Government issues, and a further recovery in some parts of the foreign division.

The market's performance actually was better than suggested by the one-tenth of a point gain in the composite average, due to the fact that the secondary rails, a strong department today, do not figure in the averages. Sales amounted to $8,053,000, against $9,283,000 yesterday.

A more optimistic feeling with regard to the meeting of major maturities this year and on the prospect for carriers generally earning a large share of their 1933 fixed charges than in 1932 appeared to be the basis for the more active buying of rail obligations. The best gains, ranging from 1 to 3 points, were made in the secondary group, embracing some of the issues of the Allegheny Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago & Northwestern, Illinois Central, M-K-T and Southern Pacific. The prior liens of some of these and other roads were equally strong.

German, Australian and several other classifications moved ahead rather easily in the foreign division. It was suggested that some of those who sold German issues last week on the political developments, were feeling less alarmed and cautiously repurchasing.

Whatever the reason for their decline yesterday, United States Treasury issues recovered their poise today and were generally higher. Advances ran from 1-32 to 1-16 of a point, except in the 3s and 3¾s, which were a shade lower. Liberty3s also dipped slightly.

Industrial bonds were firm as a group, although Bethlehem Steel 5s and one or two other independent steel issues dropped a point or more. Many of the utilities participated in the upward trend. Utah Power & Light obligations were heavy under moderate selling.

Premiums for Dollars Cut Canada Power Net

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Premiums paid for the purchase of United States funds to meet bond interest accounted largely for the drop in 1932 earnings of the Shawinigan Water & Power Co., Canadian hydro-electric enterprise, President J. E. Aldred stated in the annual report published today.

During the year the company paid for such premiums $605,431, compared with $200,000 in 1931. Additional premiums of $165,092 were paid in connection with contracts for power, payable in the United States. All of the company's $34,335,000 first mortgage and collateral trust bonds are payable in American funds.

The company reported 1932 net income of $2,534,472, equivalent to $1.16 a share on the common stock compared with $4,150,438 or $1.90 a share in 1931.

COTTON PRICES RISE ON BUYING INCREASE

May Closes at 6.10 as General Market Gains 5 to 9 Points.

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Cotton made a further small gain today on covering combined with trade and commission house buying.

Little Southern selling was reported as prices worked upward, with May advancing to 6.14. In the late trading of 10 points net higher and 29 points above yesterday's. That delivery closed at 6.10, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 5 to 9 points.

The opening was unchanged to 5 points lower, in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables, but initial offerings were promptly taken by the trade. Some commission house buying and covering were also reported.

Liverpool sold some cotton here after the opening, and there was further March liquidation. The buying carried the market to 6.02 for March, and 6.28 for July in the late trading or about 10 to 12 points net higher. Closing quotations were 4 or 5 points off from the best.

Traders Display Interest.

Traders displayed interest in Washington reports to the effect that other farm relief proposals were discussed in connection with or as substitutes for the domestic allotment plan.

Liverpool did not fully meet the local advance of yesterday with allowances of sterling, and cables said the market there was quiet with the buying scattered and some selling against New York purchases. The cotton cloth market at Manchester was reported quiet with a small inquiry and yarns were said to be dull. Reports from the domestic cloth market were considered somewhat more encouraging, with a fair business doing. Exports today 28,911 making 5,232,172 so far this season. Port receipts, 28,905. U. S. port stocks, 4,716,800.

Crude oil was steady. Final prices were 1 lower to 1 higher with no sales. Bleachable spot closed 3.50; March, 3.63; May, 3.76; July, 3.87; September, 3.96.

WINTER WHEAT CROP IS AIDED BY SNOWS

Prices Yield 3/8 on Outlook; Corn Sells Off; Oats Advance 3/8.

Chicago, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Heavy snowfalls throughout much of the United States winter wheat belt tended today to alleviate fear of crop damage and to ease prices down.

Soil and snow drifting, together with severe low temperatures, were reported in extreme Southwest sections, but buyers were not aggressive pending more definite indications of injury to wheat. Special notice, however, was taken of signs of a second cold wave developing over Alaska.

Wheat closed nervous and unchanged to ⅜ off, compared with yesterday's finish; corn unchanged to ⅛ decline; oats unchanged to ⅜ up, and provisions at 7 to 15 cents advance.

Speculation Is Less.

Curtailment of speculative trade in wheat was apparent from start to finish, and export demand for wheat from North America was also relatively slack. Failure of Liverpool quotations to follow yesterday's advance on this side of the Atlantic served as a drag on the market here, and was associated with cheap offerings of Argentine wheat abroad. Word that the peak of the season's wheat movement from Australia appeared to have been passed was virtually ignored.

On all rallies, wheat ran into selling from commission houses usually identified with United States Government-sponsored agencies. This was the case in particular during a late upturn to 48 cents for May contracts. Nevertheless, dips in prices met with support from buyers of small lots. Suggestions were renewed that March estimates of domestic farm reserve stocks of wheat would be greatly reduced.

Corn mainly followed wheat, almost unaffected by upturns in hog values to the highest point since November. Oats reflected some uneasiness regarding possible damage to the new crop.

Provisions went higher with hogs.

MONTGOMERY MAPS LEGISLATIVE NEEDS

Taxpayers League Wants to Present 15 Demands to Lawmakers.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Disapproval of authorization of any bond issues at this session, repeal of a number of acts enacted at the last session, cuts of 10 per cent in teachers' and county employes and officials' salaries, merger of the juvenile and police courts are among the 15 items recommended to the Legislature by the Montgomery County Nonpartisan Taxpayers League. The program was made public last night.

The league will ask that a hearing day be set aside by the Legislature at which demands of the league can be presented. It also has prepared other recommendations to the Montgomery County commissioners which will be announced.

Items Listed Briefly.

The items named by the league are, briefly:

1. Disapproval of any further bond issues at this session. This includes school bonds. The league states that it undertands that there is available in the county treasury the sum of $528,000, the proceeds of an issue in 1932 not yet expended and that the commissioners have been authorized to issue bonds in the amount of $89,000 for 1933 and that it feels these sums are sufficient to care for any required construction before the next session of the General Assembly in 1935.

2. Repeal of the act creating the permanent assessment board and assessment of separate sections of the county each five years and recommend an act providing for county-wide reassessment beginning July 1, 1933, and to be completed by July 1, 1934.

3. Repeal of the act creating the disbursement committee and recommend creation of the office of comptroller, who will pass on validity of payments made by the county treasurer.

4. Compilation of a budget instead of the present levy for county expenditures.

5. Biennial audit by a certified public accountant of all offices handling county funds.

6. Reduction of the emergency fund from $300,000 to $100,000 to be repaid in the following year after inclusion in the budget.

7. Reduction of salaries of county officials raised at the 1931 session to the same salaries they received prior to 1931, including the salaries paid election officials.

Want County Funds Curbed.

8. Repeal of the act "allowing the county commisioners to develop private property with county funds." (Note—This refers to the act creating the Suburban Sanitary Commission as amended in 1931, which permits development of private property through use of the front foot benefit charge, League officials say).

9. Repeal of the act creating the office of supervisor of county aid.

10. Repeal of the act creating the juvenile court and enactment of an amendment which would provide for assumption of the duties of this court by the police judge.

11. Requirement that county printing and publishing work be printed in but one newspaper of county-wide circulation, contract to be awarded by public bids.

12. Repeal of the act allowing fees to be charged against delinquent tax property when advertised and enactment of an act providing a suitable penalty for failure to pay taxes promptly, said penalty to go to the county treasurer for inclusion in the general county fund.

13. An act requiring the county commissioners to condemn any property required by the county which can not be purchased for $1,000 or less.

14. Ten per cent reduction of school teachers' salaries.

15. Ten per cent reduction in county officials and employes' salaries.

Royal Barry Wills Wins Architect Prize

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The American Institute of Architects announced tonight that Royal Barry Wills, Boston architect, had been awarded the gold medal for a prize-winning design in the small house architectural competition of 1932.

President Hoover, honorary chairman of Better Homes in America, which sponsored the contest, will present the medal at the White House Wednesday, February 15.

Reds Given Blame In Plant Shutdown

6,000 Workers Affected by Operations Cessation of Hudson Unit.

Detroit, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The second strike of Detroit automobile body workers within three weeks today forced the closing of the Hudson Motor Car Co., where 3,000 men walked out after demanding wage increases and other concessions. A total of 6,000 employes were affected by the shutdown.

As in the case of the strike at the Briggs Manufacturing Co., where 6,000 men walked out three weeks ago, officials attributed the action to Communist agitation. Max F. Wollering, vice president of the Hudson Co., said:

"This disturbance is by agitators who are outsiders and members of the Communist group. Our own older employes have been reluctantly forced out. Wages already are better than 20 per cent above those paid in other body plants."

Wollering said the Hudson plant, which reopened Monday after a week's shutdown, was "just getting under full production," and had ordered an additional 2,000 men to work on Thursday. He said the entire Hudson and Essex factories were shut down pending an investigation of the walkout.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

MANY months ago, when this space first hazarded the suggestion that Miss Tallulah Bankhead, now appearing at the National in "Forsaking All Others," would in all probability be among those absent from Hollywood upon the expiration of her then waning contract, contradictions were so immediate and so emphatic that it now seems safe to venture the same opinion with regard to Ann Harding!

Ann Harding.

It is being bruited about on the West Coast that Hollywood has so lost its attractiveness for Miss Harding that she will shake its golden dust from her feet as soon as her currently documented servitude has run its course.

Although RKO, her studio, has an option for another year's services, beginning in April, Miss Harding entertains some doubt that she will be urged to remain, by reason of the fact that there is a contract stipulation which requires that the additional year shall command compensation of $400,000 for the twelve-month, instead of the meager $300,000 on which Miss Harding now is striving to scrape along.

It is further pointed out that RKO has expressed a determination to keep under contract only such of its stars and featured players as have returned consistently satisfactory grosses at the ticket wickets of the Nation. Owing to unfortunate story selections, Miss Harding, of late, has not fallen within this group.

Miss Harding's avowed future intentions, in case her one-year option is not taken up, bring back to mind the title of the old sketch played so long in vaudeville by Victor Moore and Emma Littlefield, "Back Where We Started." Unless Miss Harding has been grossly misrepresented—and I am not now referring to the box office—she will proceed from Hollywood directly to the Hedgerow Theater in Media, Pa., to appear in a dozen or so plays to regain her stage poise and reorient herself.

Both literally and figuratively, The Hedgerow is a little theater. Its capacity is 168. It is operated by Jasper Deeter, who is the director who gave Ann Harding her first theatrical opportunity.

On a recent vacation in the East, Miss Harding appeared in two one-night engagements at The Hedgerow and the revived confidence with which these performances imbued her is said to have given rise to her wish to return later.

After that, an occasional play in New York, perhaps, and maybe an advantageous film appearance now and again. But Miss Harding insists she will nevermore call Hollywood home.

Eddie Gilmore, retiring from the post of director of advertising and publicity for the Loew theaters in Washington, to assume the duties of manager for Loew's, Inc., in the city of Atlanta, was tendered a brief and impromptu testimonial yesterday evening at the Willard, where a large number of his friends gathered to wish him and Mrs. Gilmore godspeed in their new endeavors—really a home-going for them both, since they came to the Capital from Atlanta something less than a year ago. Eddie leaves for the new-old post today with a baggage car filled with felicitations up ahead! Mrs. Gilmore will join him in a fortnight.

Plans for next week at the Rialto have been slightly altered. Manager Collier, being unable to secure new laboratory prints of Paul Whiteman's "The King of Jazz," refused to accept old ones and so compromised on a return engagement of Irene Dunne and John Boles in Fannie Hurst's "Back Street," Universal's home-office mind evidently being made up on the matter of testing the box-office pull of revivals.

"Back Street," it will be recalled, was listed among the ten best pictures of the year recently selected by national vote of the motion picture critics.

"King of Jazz" will come along at a later date, according to revised information reaching the desk yesterday at 4:22½ p. m., Eastern standard time.

Speaking of bookings, Manager Meakin of RKO-Keith's, yesterday at 4:23 flat, E. S. T., corroborated the earlier tentative announcement that Wheeler and Woolsey will cavort on his Fifteenth street screen the week of March 3, Inauguration Week, in "So This Is Africa!" reputed to be their best comedy to date. So, if that's what you were worrying about——

Having gone to some bother to keep this column's vast public of six fully informed as to the career of young Mr. Owen Davis, jr., formerly of Uncle Steve Cochran's National Theater Players, insofar as it has related to that new play "Evensong," it may now be fitting to write the final chapter and make known that according to what Miss Maxine Derle, the big dramatic actress, still fancies is her private correspondence, "Evensong" closes in New York come Saturday night of this week.

Mr. Davis, jr., meanwhile, will have promptly transferred his talents to "Saturday Night," a new play by Davis, sr., now rehearsing in New York preparatory to opening "cold" in The Playhouse in the near future, although not as near as Saturday!

Afterthoughts on the opening of "Forsaking All Others": A careful, next-day perusal of the program confirms an earlier belief that as many as five characters could be eliminated from the dramatis personae without seriously affecting the basic structure of the drama . . . Edward Roberts and Frank Cavett, the authors, have flagrantly underwritten practically every character in the play, barring Mary Clay and Jefferson Tingle, played, respectively, by Miss Bankhead and Fred Keating . . . What they seem to have done is show the results of dramatic conflict in sporadic splotches without bothering to divulge any of the conflict itself, which, after all, is the stuff drama is made of . . . It is like sitting through eight rounds of supposed boxing without a hand being raised and then, all of a sudden, seeing one of the combatants stretched out cold without knowing at all how he got that way . . . All of which could be fixed by judicious tinkering, which I am told is going on as rapidly as possible . . . Probably because Arthur J. Beckhard had to take over the direction on short notice when Mr. Gribble went in for the flu in a big way. "Forsaking All Others" is underdirected, as it stands at present, as well as underwritten . . . The speakeasy scene, for instance, affords unsurpassed opportunities for atmospheric touches that would be mightily effective . . . None of which is availed of . . . The scene, as now done, could have been played in an open lot just as well . . . Tallulah Bankhead is evidently pretty fit, physically . . . Because lookit the way she peeled off that cartwheel . . . Just like an Albertina Rasch girl . . . Miss Bankhead has not, by any chance, ever been an Albertina Rasch or a Tiller girl, has she now . . . By the way, why not move that Act I, Sc. I, fol-de-rol around the piano down to the speakeasy and make a little whoopee where it belongs . . . The girls can have those bob-tailed jackets—or whatever they are—with the gay '90's puffed sleeves and all, including my share in its entirety, if they want 'em . . . Me, I think they're terrible . . . T'ell with 'em . . . But you've got to admire Miss Bankhead's spunk . . . They tell me the production is largely her own personal property, Arch Selwyn being merely her gentlemanly "front" . . . More power to her and a hit when the play is finally pulled off the fire!

If Mr. Povich will pardon the intrusion, it is unpleasantly disturbing to contemplate the disheartening spectacle of "Gentleman Jim" Corbett waging what may be his last grim fight down there in his home at Bayside, Long Island. Jim was the first notable your reporter ever interviewed for this noble family journal, "way back yonder when he was playing in "The Burglar and the Lady," at the old Academy of Music. He was a swell fellow, and I hate to think of his passing.

And, mister, could he step around them out there in that squared circle! I'd even be willing to lay a handful of 6 to 5 on the line that on one of his good nights he could have outstumbled Marty Gallagher!

Today, on the stroke of something or other, "Lucrece," Thornton Wilder's translation of Andre Obey's play, which Katharine Cornell produced earlier this winter, will be published by Houghton Mifflin Co., of Boston. This will enable playgoers throughout the country to read the drama which Miss Cornell regards as an important contribution to the modern theater.

The original title, of course, was "Le Viol de Lucrece."

Sort of a base viol, as you might say!

House Names Island "Theodore Roosevelt"

(Associated Press.)

So there may be no mistake, the House yesterday agreed unanimously to change the name of the former Analostan Island, in the Potomac, from "Roosevelt" to "Theodore Roosevelt." It was donated to the Government by the Roosevelt Memorial Association, which later asked that the name be changed.

Representative Gilbert, of Kentucky, introduced the bill in the House passed yesterday and sent to the Senate. LaGuardia (Republican), New York, remarked that he hoped the new President Roosevelt would emulate the last President Roosevelt and "wield the big stick on predatory interests."

INVENTORY ORDERED IN GAS HEARING CASE

Some Improvement Resulted in Earnings, Statement Says in Check-Up.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The State Corporation Commission today notified the Rosslyn Gas Co., which serves more than 4,000 consumers in Arlington County, to submit a complete inventory and appraisal of its properties for rate-making purposes.

In reopening the case, the commission set March 3 for its hearing of testimony from the gas company and objectors to the rate schedule made effective in February, 1931.

This schedule, authorized by the commission, gave substantial reductions in cases of consumption over 2,500 cubic feet a month, but made no changes in rates for consumption under that figure.

At that time James W. Head and others, known as the Public Utilities Commission of Arlington County, intervened to ask for further reductions in rates. The objectors' petition was taken under advisement and the case continued.

Facts in Hand Insufficient.

The commission in its ruling today held that it does not possess sufficient facts to determine what rates should be charged, and ruled, therefore, that the case should be reopened.

In addition to asking for an inventory and appraisal of property and a check of accrued depreciation, the commission asked the gas company to show the need, justification, use and usefulness of the "extensive extensions into new territory during the year 1930."

The rate tribunal further requested the company to furnish "definite and positive evidence as to the cost of manufacture and delivery of wholesale gas to it by the Washington Gas Light Co." The Washington corporation is the parent company of the Rosslyn utility.

Copy Sent to Counsel.

Copies of the order were sent to T. Juston Moore, counsel for the gas company, and to the following objectors: W. C. Gloth, G. O. Basham, John C. Gall and Arthur Orr, petitioners and objectors.

Objectors asserted at earlier hearings of the case that net additions to the company's property during 1930, approximating $190,000, should not be included in the valuation of the property. The commission ruled, however, that evidence with respect to this contention was insufficient in the record. Since the authorization of the effectiveness of the rate schedules the commission has obtained six statements of revenues, expenses and the like, the latest covering the calendar year of 1932.

Upon checking the statement, the order said, it has been found that some improvement in earnings has resulted.

Montreal Bank Clerk Shot in $8,000 Holdup

Montreal, Que., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Three men held up a branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale at Chambord and Beaubien streets late today and escaped with about $8,000 after shooting Armand Renaud, a clerk, in the wrist.

The trio, brandishing revolvers, ordered the manager, J. Paquin, Renaud and another clerk to put up their hands. When the officials hesitated in opening the safe a shot was fired at Renaud. The safe finally was opened by the staff, who later were tied up and forced into the vaults.

Those Who Pay Taxes Punctually Save $8

Montgomery County taxpayers who pay their real estate taxes by tomorrow morning will save $8, the additional cost for advertising each piece or parcel of delinquent property, County Treasurer J. Forest Walker announced yesterday. The additional cost is to pay for recording, attorneys' fees, clerical service and auctioneer's fees. Farms will have an additional charge of $15 for a special survey and 10 per cent interest will be charged after the tax sale in April.

The county treasurer announced that there are 400 less properties to be advertised this year than were advertised for sale last year in January. The taxes must be paid at the treasurer's office in the courthouse at Rockville, Md.

SCHOOL BOARD GETS FAIRFAX PROTESTS

Congestion and Tax Problems Among Important Issues Debated.

The session of the school board of Fairfax County, Va., yesterday afternoon was devoted to hearing of committees from various sections of the county. Patrons of the Lee-Jackson School appeared asking that student congestion be eliminated prior to the opening next fall.

Several suggestions were made as to how to remedy the situation. Mason Hirst, of Annandale, advocated the consolidation of several schools and a high school center built at Annandale, instead of any enlargement of the present Lee-Jackson schoolhouse. He pointed out that the present school was located at the edge of the city of Alexandria and in one corner of Falls Church district, which erected the building by special bond issue. He also urged that as the school takes care of the pupils of three other districts, these districts be taxed to help pay for the school building.

Another suggestion was to establish a high school center at this location, eliminating the elementary school by constructing a larger school in Mount Vernon district near Groveton and enlarging other schools in Falls Church district and at Franconia.

A large delegation appeared opposing any reduction of teachers' salaries as a means of reducing taxes, stating that to get efficient teachers it was necessary to pay the present scale.

The Annandale School League asked that a new bus be provided for the transportation of pupils of that locality as the present one is dangerous and worn out. The Lee-Jackson League asked that a commercial and typewriting course be installed in the school next year, holding it would be more beneficial than some of the courses now being taught.

LICENSE TAX TOTAL DECLINES SLIGHTLY

Report Made in Arlington Indicates "Good Year" for Merchants.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

A total of 640 State revenue licenses was issued in Arlington County during January for the new year, showing a tax collected of $22,858.08, according to a statement given out yesterday by County Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green. While the amount collected shows a loss of $1,596.91 over the year 1932, yet there are 36 licenses out to be accounted for which the commissioner believes will make up the loss of revenue.

The report reveals that 258 merchant licenses were issued, showing purchases by the merchants of $7,958,097.77, which, with a normal profit of only 10 per cent, would reflect almost $9,000,000 business done by the merchants of the county during the year 1932. In view of the general depression and reduction in price of commodities, Commissioner Green says that the showing made by business houses in the county for 1932 was very remarkable.

Aside from merchant licenses, revenue licenses were obtained by 60 attorneys at law, 1 architect, 1 moving picture house, 1 bowling alley, 2 building and loan associations, 1 collection agency, 4 common criers, 20 contractors, 6 dentists, 2 civil engineers, 2 junk dealers, 2 laundries, 7 lodging houses, 3 pawnbrokers, 34 peddlers, 1 photographer, 1 pistol dealer, 1 poolroom, 26 real estate agents, 40 restaurants, 146 tobacco retailers and 14 undertakers.

Commissioner Green states that there are still 30 licenses to be accounted for on which the law requires a penalty of 10 per cent to be added. Should persons, firms or corporations requiring State revenue licenses fail to obtain them before March 1, he will be required under Section No. 138 of the tax code to report violaters to the Commonwealth's attorney for prosecution.

BURL PUNCHES HIS WAY TO DECISION OVER DOUGAN

Central Five Wins Court Crown

Capt. Burke Is Star in 50-27 Victory Over Western.

Tech Gains 3d Place by 47-20 Win Over Roosevelt.

Tech	5	3	.625

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

CENTRAL won the 1933 inter-high school basket ball championship yesterday, winning over Western by a score of 50-27 in a game, which, had it been broadcast, would have been a great bedtime story for the kiddies, so slow was the action. An hour or so later, Tech wrote finis to the series, aided by Roosevelt, playing the last portion of a twin bill which Tech won handily, 47-20.

But there is a bright side to everything. While Central was attending to the formality of making its title official, the boys at the press table were catching up on their tit-tat-toe. Several matches which were postponed because of exciting basket ball games last week were disposed of. The winner will be announced next week, unless a tie exists, in which case the high schools will be requested to add an extra game or so to the series to permit the playing of final tit-tat-toe match.

Central Traveling Fast at Finish.

Western essayed the role of giant killer, but the giant refused to be killed and was giving its assailant an awful beating when Big Bertha, Timekeeper Haight's principal weapon of defense, roared a blast signaling the end of the fray.

Western made a fight of it until early in the second period when it assumed a 9-8 lead on Bernie Bieri's field goal. This utter disregard of Central's mighty power stirred the Mount Pleasanters to real action. When the halfway mark was reached Central had 23 points and Western 10.

Bill Burke, firebrand of the Central team, directed its attack. He confined his activities to guarding generally. Shore, Nau, Tipton and Bryant attended to the scoring, with Nau a single point ahead of the other members of the quartet, each of whom made 10 points. Gregorio was the only reserve to get into the game, and his scoring amounted to a single free toss.

Western Gives Battle in First Half.

Western, with Forney and Bieri leading the fight, stubbornly resisted its opponent in the first half, but Centrals' tricky passing attack opened up the Georgetowners' defense and the eventual winners eased in close to the basket for numerous snowbirds.

A small army of Tech athletes made merry at the expense of Roosevelt to win an easy victory. Roosevelt played a sluggish game and its rangy opponents employed their zone defense to good effect. Tech rolled up a 19-3 lead early in the fray.

Swede Olverson and Waverly Wheeler led the fruitful attack on Roosevelt's basket. Wheeler, whose work has been below par all season, finally struck his true stride and wore out a couple of opponents assigned to guard him. Knocky Thomas, whose floor work has been an outstanding feature of Tech's play this year, continued his fine work, holding Rube Hayman scoreless from the field.

Tech's victory gave it the doubtful honor of third place in the series. Eastern, which concluded its series play last Friday, finished second. Roosevelt was fourth and lodged in last place was Western.

Joyce Wethered's Status As Amateur Golfer in Doubt

LONLON, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Joyce Wethered, England's greatest all-time woman golfer, has become a business woman golfer with the question of her amateur status a poser for the Ladies Golf Union.

Miss Wethered, who came out of retirement in 1929 to protect the one championship never won by a United States player, defeated Glenna Collett Vare in the finals of the British women's at St. Andrews, has become an "adviser" at a big store in Piccadilly. She will give advice on the selection of clubs and correct golfing clothes, and will give demonstrations in a net set up for that purpose.

Although she dislikes championship play and has several times renounced it, she has always been looked upon as a reserve power whenever the American invasion looked particularly threatening. If she should ever decide to enter competitive play again, bringing up the question of her amateur status, the final ruling probably would be left to the Royal and Ancient, as the L. G. U. operates under the same rules of amateurism as the men.

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Under similar circumstances in the United States Joyce Wethered would be disqualified as an amateur under the rules of the United States Golf Association.

Section one of Article IV of the U. S. G. A. by-laws defines an amateur as one who has not "because of his skill as a golfer received a salary or remuneration either directly or indirectly from any firm dealing in goods relating to the playing of the game."

Under the above ruling John Dawson, Chicago golfer, who is connected with a sports goods house, is ineligible to compete in the amateur championship although he is not a professional and does not play for pay.

The U. S. G. A. always has been strict in applying the amateur definition. Bob Jones withdrew as an amateur when he entered the movies and Mary K. Browne, of Cleveland, was barred from amateur golf play for several years because of her excursion into the professional tennis ranks with Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen. Miss Browne later was reinstated.

COLLEGIANS IN 3 GAMES TONIGHT

Georgetown, C. U., Maryland Meet Rivals on Court.

GEORGETOWN, Catholic University and Maryland basket ball teams will vie for the public's attention tonight in three court games, all of them possessing elements of traditional rivalry.

At Tech High, Georgetown meets Mount St. Mary's. Catholic University concludes its short season's program, so far as local appearances are concerned, by playing Wake Forest at C. U., and Maryland ties up with Washington College, its perennial initial football foe.

C. U. Ends Season Tonight.

Wake Forest played a short engagement here last year and gave George Washington's outfit a real battle. One of the leaders of the Wake Forest Team is Babe Earp, outstanding gridman at the school. Tonight is C. U.'s penultimate game, the final encounter on the schedule to be played Saturday night in Baltimore against Loyola.

Wake Forest has beaten North Carolina State, which also fell to C. U. by a slight margin.

Final Gong

Nearing for Jim Corbett, Say Doctors Attending Ex-Champion.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—James J. Corbett, exhibiting the same type of courage that sent him into the ring against the great John L. Sullivan and brought him the heavyweight boxing championship, tonight was waging what appeared to be a losing fight with death.

Since last Tuesday he has been confined to his bed in his suburban home on Long Island, above Little Neck Bay, with a diseased heart which has bothered him for several years and lately had been overburdened by activities incident to his return to the boxing world as a promoter. He is in his sixty-seventh year.

End Is Predicted Soon.

Attended by Mrs. Corbett and an old friend of his ring days, John Kelleher, of Boston, he has been able to hold his own for seven days, but his physician, Dr. G. Willard Dickie, said the end probably would come soon.

"It is difficult to say about heart cases," Dr. Dickie explained. "They may go on indefinitely, but Mr. Corbett is weakened now and it is improbable he will live long. He felt a little better if anything today, but he has his good hours and his bad hours and it is hard to say what each succeeding hour will bring."

It was just 40 years ago last September at New Orleans that "Gentleman Jim" entered the ring against Sullivan—who could "lick any man in the house." Corbett was wearing a loud checked suit, a straw hat and swinging a cane. A few moments later he had gained the distinction of being the first man to knock out Sullivan in a ring. He held the title for five years, losing it to Bob Fitzsimmons on the famed solar-plexus blow, at Carson City, Nev., March 17, 1897.

Retired From Ring in 1903.

Corbett remained a fighter until 1903, making two unsuccessful attempts to win back the title from Jim Jeffries, and then retired from the ring to go on the stage.

He had been inactive for several years, living the life of a suburban gentleman, until he took over a little arena in Jamaica, Long Island, last fall.

AMERICAN U. SWAMPS ELON

Targee Hero as Visitors Register by 38-13 Score.

PLAYING some of their greatest basket ball of the year, American University's Eagles soared over old Elon last night at A. U. Gymnasium by the score of 38 to 13. A militant defense, every bit as good as the offensive power of American, sponsored the victory.

So airtight was the defensive play of the American U. lads that, at the conclusion of the first ten minutes of play, the score stood 16 to 2, the lone scoring of the visiting team having been accomplished by Hughes, guard. At the half American had boosted its margin to the overwhelming lead of 23 to 4.

Subs Look Good in Second Half.

Coach Walter Young populated the A. U. ranks with substitutes to finish out the most of the second half. Their defensive merit was just as good as the regular combination of Dick and Williams, forwards; Sells, center; Targee and Buffington, guards. Midway in the final half the score stood 29 to 8.

Scoring honors went to Orville Targee, who returned to the Eagle squad this season after a two-year layoff. Sells' floor game was as potent as ever.

In a ding-dong preliminary battle, Wilson Teachers nosed out the A. U. junior varsity, 33 to 29.

Philadelphia, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Taylor and Gunnis, Philadelphia boxing promoters, announced today they were attempting to match Heavyweight Champion Jack Sharkey with King Levinsky, of Chicago. The bout would be held in Philadelphia or Havana.

Greenleaf Runs 100; Ponzi Is Minus One

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Ralph Greenleaf, world's pocket billiard champion, today ran 100 points to take the third block of his 1,200-point match with Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia. Ponzi's score was minus 1 his sole contribution to the play being a scratch on his only appearance at the table.

The score to date is Greenleaf 300, Ponzi 74. The match is being played at 12 blocks of 100 points each.

Mickey Riley, Diver, To Turn Professional

Los Angeles, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Michael Galitzen, Mickey Riley to the sports world, announced today that he will turn professional.

The tenth Olympiad spring board diving champion said he had received several offers last summer and all of them still are good. He intends to think them over and accept the best. "One can't live on gold medals and glory."

Riley has held all of the National A. A. U. diving titles at one time or another.

Ladies' Day Game Here Scheduled Each Week

President Clark Griffith, on the eve of his departure for Biloxi, Miss., spring training home of the Nats, announced yesterday that there will be a ladies' day at the ball park this year every week the team is here, whether games are scheduled on Friday or not.

In the event there is a Friday game, that day will remain, as usual, ladies' day, but if it is an open date, some other day during the same week will be designated as the day on which women fans will not be charged admission.

Salary Rows Heated in Majors

Stars Greeting Proffered Contracts With Disdain.

Ruth, Gehrig, Ferrell, Earnshaw, Manush Still Unsigned.

By STUART CAMERON.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—The wholesale determination of major league club owners to reduce salaries has met with stubborn resistance of many players, notably some of baseball's brightest stars, a United Press survey showed tonight.

Not in recent seasons have proferred contracts been greeted with such widespread disdain. The answer, of course, is that the magnates simply are not increasing salaries—a player held to his 1932 wage is considered to have been given a raise.

The real sufferers are the run-of-mine players. They are faced with the prospect of taking what their bosses offer—or else, the else being traded downstream.

Ruth, Gehrig, Earnshaw Arguing.

But such brilliant stars as Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, of the New York Yankees, and George Earnshaw, of the Philadelphia Athletics, are having headaches of their own.

Ruth has professed a willingness, as a concession to the times, to take a cut of 10 to 15 per cent from his 1932 contract, which brought him $75,000. His big boss, Col. Jacob Ruppert, has said $50,000 with no great conviction, and there the matter rests. Earnshaw is seeking a renewal of the contract which brought him $16,500 last year. Gehrig is battling for a well-deserved raise, while Col. Ruppert is trying to sign his hard-hitting and durable first baseman at his 1932 scale.

Here's the situation by clubs:

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

NEW YORK YANKEES: The Ruth and Gehrig items. Ben Chapman, left fielder, is battling against a cut. Tony Lazzeri, second baseman, seeks a raise.

PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS: All players reported signed except Pitchers Rube Walberg and Earnshaw. Walberg got about $14,000 last year and is said to have been offered $10,000. Earnshaw is fighting against a cut from $16,500 to $9,000. Part of this cut is supposed to be punishment for having predicted a Yankee victory.

CHICAGO WHITE SOX: While all contracts have not been signed, no difficulties are expected.

BOSTON RED SOX: No holdouts. Several small raises were given.

CLEVELAND INDIANS—Wes Ferrell, pitcher, wants a renewal of $18,000. He has been offered $12,000. Pitcher Willis Hudlin has been cut from $10,000 to $8,000; pitcher Mel Harder from $8,000 to $7,000; third Baseman Willie Kamm from $12,000 to $8,000, and Catcher Roy Spencer, Outfielder Dick Porter, Infielder Johnny Burnett, and Catcher Glenn Myatt are facing cuts of between $2,500 and $1,000. None of these players has signed and some may hold out.

ST. LOUIS BROWNS—Outfielder Ted Gullic, Pitcher Lloyd Brown and Catcher Rick Ferrell are known holdouts against cuts.

DETROIT TIGERS—Contracts slowly coming in, with no known holdouts.

WASHINGTON NATIONALS—Heinie Manush, outfielder, has refused to sign, and Owner Clark Griffith faces a long wrangle over the contract.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

NEW YORK GIANTS—No holdouts.

BROOKLYN DODGERS—The ancient Dazzy Vance situation has been renewed, this time over a difference of $9,500 and $16,000. Hack Wilson wants $16,000 pay for placing his barrel-like body in the outfield and for trying to hit homers. He's supposed to have been offered $11,000. Al Lopez, catcher, believes his salary offer represents a disproportionate share of the depression.

CHICAGO CUBS—No trouble.

PITTSBURGH PIRATES—Ditto.

BOSTON BRAVES—The same.

PHILADELPHIA PHILLIES—Salaries have been cut between 15 and 20 per cent, but the boys are expected to sign and like it.

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS—Frankie Frisch hasn't signed the $10,000 contract offers for he believes item J-12 should read "$15,000."

CINCINNATI REDS—Pitcher "Red" Lucas and First Baseman Jim Bottomley don't like their contracts but are expected to come into the fold.

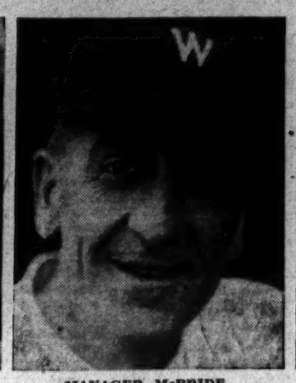
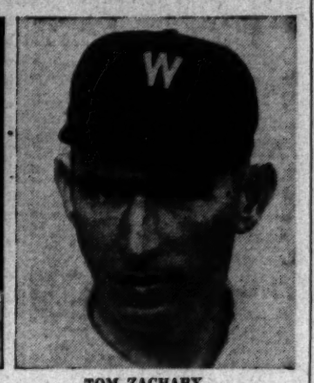
Zachary and Mogridge Aided Johnson To Pitch Nats Into Fourth Place in 1921

GEORGE MOGRIDGE.



MANAGER McBRIDE.



TOM ZACHARY.

Under the management of George McBride, who succeeded Clark Griffith in 1921, the Nats finished fourth due greatly to the effective pitching of Mogridge, who won 18 and lost 14, and Zachary, who won 18 and lost 16.

Contest Facts In Brief

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Baseball Club, will select in The Washington Post of March 19 his all-time, all-star team from among the clubs that represented Washington during the years from 1912 to 1932 inclusive.

The fan who submits the selection that matches or most nearly matches Griffith's selection will be adjudged the winner of the contest.

One man is to be selected for each of the infield and outfield positions with four pitchers and two catchers.

To the winner The Washington Post will award eight box seats to the 1933 opening game between Washington and Philadelphia.

Second place will net four box seats, with third place earning two box seats.

Entrants may use the accompanying coupon for their selections, although the use of the coupon is not necessary for entrance in the contest.

The contest will close March 15.

Hakes, Goodwin Win In Palm Beach Golf

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Victories in the first round of match play of the South Florida championship were turned in today by A. R. Hakes, Dunkirk, N. Y., medalist and defending champion, and Tony Goodwin, Monroe, N. Y., but Celesie Durand, Brooklyn, N. Y., was eliminated 3 and 1 by C. A. Edwards, from Hempstead, Long Island.

Pennsylvania House Votes Sunday Sports

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The House of Representatives today passed the Schwartz bill modifying the Pennsylvania blue laws to permit Sunday afternoon outdoor sports. The measure now goes to the Senate.

Passage of the measure came after only an hour of debate. The blue law modifier repeals the act of 1794 as it affects outdoor sports, with or without admission charges, between the hours of 2 and 6 p. m.

It continues prohibition against Sunday hunting and fishing and specifically removes boxing and wrestling from the bill's legal definition of "healthful outdoor sports."

Jamieson, of Indians, Gets Another Chance

Cleveland, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Charley Jamieson was 40 years old today and he got the present he had been hoping for. It was a call for the veteran ball hawk of the Cleveland Indians to go South with the club March 6 to see if he can prove he isn't through.

Jamieson was given his unconditional release this winter, but he asked one more chance. President Alva Bradley took a look at the present Indian outfield—where there is no place for "Jamie." Then he remembered Jamie's long years of service. He ordered that all the veteran's training expenses be paid and that he be given every chance to stick with the team.

Milans, D. C. Jumper, Quits at Dartmouth

Hanover, N. H., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Dartmouth's track prospects suffered a severe blow today when Capt. Valcin Milans, of Washington, D. C., one of the most consistent high jumpers in college ranks; Bill Barrett, of Youngstown, Ohio, the Green's best hurdler, and Charlie Pyewell, of Reading, Pa., fastest quarter-miler on Coach Harry Hillman's squad, withdrew from college.

Athletic officials did not announce the reasons for their withdrawals, which came just after the midyear examinations.

Barry-Levinsky Bout In Garden Is Sought

New York, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Mushky Jackson, manager of Donald "Red" Barry, heavyweight from Washington, D. C., will confer tomorrow with Madison Square Garden officials regarding a proposed match with King Levinsky, of Chicago, on February 17.

Because of Barry's excellent showing against Hans Birkie last night, Jackson said Jimmy Johnston, of the Garden, probably would close for the Levinsky match tomorrow. It will be for ten rounds.

Rice's .330 Average Led Team Managed by McBride.

(Herewith is the eleventh of a series of articles in confunciton with The Post's baseball contest.)

By BOB CONSIDINE.

NEW faces and new blood, a new manager and a new finishing place. That is briefly the story of the Washington Baseball Team in 1921. Voluntarily Clark Griffith laid down the reins of managership and extended them to his grand old shortstop of fifteen years, George McBride. McBride brought a raft of new kids to the team, among them Turkey Brower, the first man nominated as Joe Judge's successor. Washington climbed out of the second division and finished fourth.

Baseball was entering its most golden era. For the first time since 1912 the sale of equipment, for instance, showed a measurable gain in keeping with the gain of population. Big league crowds jumped. The home run became an integral part of the game.

Johnson Makes Enviable Comeback.

Washington's customary batting order ran: Judge, first base; Harris, second base; Rice, center field; Carl Smith, right field; Bing Miller, left field; Hank Shanks, third base; Bobby LaMotte or Frank O'Rourke, shortstop; Ed Gharrity or Val Picinich, catcher, and the pitcher.

Walter Johnson made an enviable comeback in 1921, after playing in only a dozen games the year before. Johnson's 1920 season ended with his famous no-hit, no-run game against Boston on July 2, in which he further aggravated an already strained arm. In 1921, Old Barney came back to his old role of Workhorse Extraordinaire and won 17 games and lost 14. He struck out 143 batters, thus leading the American League for the tenth time in this respect.

But two sterling pitchers had risen to take a great deal of the burden off Johnson's ageing shoulders. One was Tom Zachary, lanky left-hander, who pitched in 39 games for Washington, won 18 and lost 16. The other was George Mogridge, who came to the Nats in a trade that sent Roth, Nat slugger, to the Yankees.

Mogridge Won 18 Games for Nats.

Mogridge, elongated portsider, had had a so-so career with New York. He had come to the Yankees after "too long" in the bushes. With the Yanks he rarely saw much service, except in 1919, when he won 15 and lost 13 games. With Washington, he was given a man-sized pitching assignment right off the bat and won 18 games and lost 14, striking out 101 men among other things.

Certainly, when the history of the Washington ball club is completely written, the names of these two lefthanders will figure prominently. They presaged a "new deal," a decade before it became a campaign slogan.

Judge proved rather stubborn about giving up his job to Turkey Brower. He dynamically proved that nothing was the matter with him by playing in every game except one during the season and batting .301. Rice led the team in hitting, with .330. Shanks, still playing a grand game at third base, batted the presentable total of .302.

Outside of Johnson, Mogridge and Zachary, the remainder of the pitching was being attended to by Jim Shaw, slowing up a bit, although he suddenly discovered some hidden batting talent, which boosted his average to .425 for nearly half the season; Bob Gaines, Lefty Erickson and Harry Courtney. Val Picinich did the bulk of the catching and batted .277.

Griffith Becomes Head of Nats.

The decision to make McBride manager, after so many years of service at shortstop for the Nats, came after Clark Griffith, manager since 1912, succeeded in interesting William E. Richardson, wealthy Philadelphia broker, into buying a controlling interest in the ball team. Griffith became president of the Nats and has held that title ever since.

July, 1921, was prolific with sports news. Jack Dempsey knocked the stuffing out of Georges Carpentier in the biggest fight of the times, fought in the blistering sun of Boyles Thirty

U. S. Ryder Cup Golf Team in Norfolk Play

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Bob Tunstall, sports director of the local club, said today that Walter Hagen, nationally known golf professional, and his Ryder Cup golf team will be in Norfolk on April 1 and 2 to compete in the $1,500 open tournament which is to be held at the Cavalier Country Club on those dates.

Hagen communicated with Tunstall yesterday and promised to come here, accompanied by his team and a host of other nationally known professionals, including Olin Dutra, Gene Sarazen, Paul Runyan, Craig Wood, Horton Smith and others. All of the golfers will be at Pinehurst the latter part of March for the North-South Open, and it is expected that they will come directly to Norfolk at the close of that meet.

Miss Van Wie Scores In Los Angeles Golf

Los Angeles, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Flashing the form that has made her one of the world's greatest feminine golfers, Miss Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, national title holder, had little trouble today defeating Mrs. C. C. Cary, of Los Angeles, in the first round of the midwinter Southern California tournament, 8 and 7.

Miss Marion Hollins, of Santa Cruz, former national champion, eliminated Mrs. Tom Williams, of La Jolla, 4 and 2.

Miss Van Wie was only 1 over 4s when the match ended, despite a north wind that at times reached gale proportions.

Miss Hollins, who yesterday set a new competitive record of 74 to win the qualifying round, next faces Mrs. L. D. Cheney, of San Gabriel, who defeated Mrs. E. W. Buckley, of Los Angeles, 6 and 5.

Portner Bout Is Easy for Floridian

Wins 7 of 8 Rounds as Foe Steps Into Faster Company.

Davis Gets Off Floor to Win in Semifinal From Cosden.

AFTER three successful preliminary battles, Leroy Dougan, grim-faced little bantamweight from Blytheville, Ark., stepped into faster company last night at Portner's Arena and met his Waterloo at the hands of Eddie Burl, of Jacksonville, Fla., in an eight-round feature scrap that was one-sided and devoid of thrills.

Burl, appearing in excellent physical condition and boxing in far better fashion than he did the night he lost to Benny Schwartz, carried the fight to Dougan from the opening gong and piled up a tremendous point advantage in the earlier rounds to coast home the winner by a wide margin.

Dougan Lacks Pep and Punch.

Fighting with two deep cuts over his right eye Dougan seemed to lack the ginger, pep, and punching power that characterized his boxing in previous performances. Burl maintained a steady pace throughout the hostilities, uncorking his right and left almost as freely as he breathed. The Floridan's right did the most damage. He buried it deep into Dougan's kidneys time and again and peppered him with blows every time his adversary backed into the corner.

While the decision was not unanimous, hardly anyone could dispute the fact that Burl won seven out of the eight rounds. Dougan earned an even break in the third after Burl had missed half a dozen blows and the two went tumbling to the canvas after a speedy exchange of blows.

Dougan opened a cut above Burl's left eye in the fourth, but it didn't phase the little fellow a bit. Burl sailed into Dougan savagely in the sixth, a volley of crashing rights and lefts, reopening the two cuts above the latter's right eye. Blood streamed profusely from Dougan's eye in the seventh, and it was really remarkable how Dougan could carry on, half blinded by the claret. But he stuck it out boldly and took a terrific beating.

Fighters Exchange Words in Seventh.

Dougan and Burl exchanged a few words in the seventh, the Arkansan inviting his foe to "come on and fight." Burl answered with a jolting right cross and left jab and worked away steadily on his body.

Funny how these officials differ. Referee Charlie Short gave Burl every round except the third; Denny, one of the judges, gave him a clean sweep, and Al Thomas, batting for George King, called it a draw.

Roddy Davis, Capital Limited, gave 1,200 spectators a real thrill in his comeback victory over Bob Cosden, lightweight from Cordova, Md. Knocked down for a count of nine in the first round by a left to the chin, Davis came tearing back with a masterful two-fisted attack that shelled his opponent for five winning rounds. Davis' nose bled in the second round, but Cosden's eye was cut as was his face in the fifth and he was a mass of crimson at the finish.

Stumpy Jacobs, of Hopewell, Va., and Arthur DeBeve, battle-scarred French veteran, fought to a draw in their six-rounder, although Jacobs appeared to have the edge. Buddy Grimes, of Norfolk, was awarded the verdict over Doug Swetnam after the fifth round when the District boy suffered a slight fracture of the rib.

Sailor Joe Brennan, dealt a low blow in the third round by Harry Irving, refused to accept the decision by a foul, took a five-minute rest and then finished the six rounds, earning a draw.

ALGERIA OUTSTAYS THE PELICAN IN MIAMI SPRINT FEATURE

Cabezo Holds on to Win Fifth From Prince Tokalon.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 7 (A. P.).—Edward R. Bradley's filly, Algeria, a daughter of John P. Grier, sped to her third straight victory in the Indian River Purse, 6-furlong feature of the program here this afternoon.

With the veteran Jimmy Smith in the saddle, Algeria had the better of a bitter drive with J. E. Widener's The Pelican and emerged on top with a head advantage. The B. B. Stable's Idle Stefan was third, two lengths behind.

Algeria's time was 1:12 4-5 and backers of the Bradley entry, composed of the winner and Boy Crazy, received $7.00 for a $2 ticket.

Idle Stefan Left But Takes Third.

It is more than likely that Idle Stefan was the best horse in the race. He stood still when the break came and made up a lot of ground to land in the third hole.

The Pelican, as fast breaker, dashed right to the fore and maintained a daylight margin over Algeria to the stretch turn. Algeria responded gamely to hard urging when straightened out and got to the front inside the eighth pole. The Pelican surprised by coming again in the last few strides, but Algeria stuck to her task.

In a race run to order for the winner the veteran combination of Judge Schilling and Jockey Bill Kelsay registered a driving triumph in the first event, reaching the judges a neck in advance of Irene's Bob. Morgil, a longshot, wound up third. Kelsay kept Judge Schilling in a contending position, while the speed horses showed the way. Irene's Bob held a wide advantage until entering the stretch, where he shortened his stride and gave way to the Judge in the closing sixteenth. The winner paid $5.70.

Speed Girl, a daughter of Pennant, displayed fine gameness and sped to record a hard-earned victory in the baby race. The J. C. Milam Color Bearer withstood a long drive to beat Wise Mollie by a nose in one of the tightest finishes of the meeting. Alcorah and Goforth, both field horses, were heads behind as named. Wise Mollie seemed a winner after entering the final furlong, but in the final strides Speed Girl had the more left for the deciding issue. The winner returned $7.70.

General A., one of the most consistent platers in training, won his second in a row and made it three out of four at the meeting when he overtook the fatigued Wise Count to win the third contest by a length. Sea Fox was another length away in the picture. Wise Count as in his previous race stole a long lead, but began to stagger after entering the last furlong and General A, strongly ridden by Sonny Workman, won going away to pay $3.50. Sea Fox was a forward contender all the way.

Cabezo and Mills Cop in Fifth.

Cabezo, with Hank Mills up, managed to win the fifth contest, a mile affair, by a head from the weakly handled Prince Tokalon, with Foxiana losing second by a length. A bad straggling start for the five-horse field marred the race, with Brass Monkey losing all chance and Prince Tokalon having to make up many lengths. Cabezo took command and under Mills' nursing tactics stuck it out to pay $4.70. Prince Tokalon gradually moved up and with a stronger ride would have caught the winner. The victory of Cabezo gave Trainer Hirsch Jacobs seventeen winners in seventeen days.

Johnny Gilbert brought the long shot, Flying Cherokee, home in front in the mile event, sixth on the card, scoring by a head to return $19.20. Aegis, well backed, saved the place by two lengths from Lucky Racket. Aegis had something taken out of him racing Camp Boss into defeat in the first five furlongs and although holding on gamely could not withstand the winner's closing rush.

Newgro won the last race by a half length at the odds of $4.30 for $2. Garlic beat Votan a length for the place. Jockey H. Bagur was suspended three days by the starter for misbehavior at the barrier.

HALF OF CHISOX IN FOLD.

Chicago, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The White Sox reached the halfway mark in their campaign to sign players to 1933 contracts today with the receipt of contracts from Pitchers Milton Gaston and Ted Kowalik, a rookie.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: MIAMI, FEBRUARY 7.

I bagged three straight winners today—General A, Cabezo and my exclusive pick, Algeria, at a $7 mutuel. All of which is encouraging for a young fellow trying to make the grade. Mike, who has named only one winner here since the meeting started, is itching to get in print. The mud at the Fair Grounds has given him an inspiration. Here's what he likes at New Orleans for tomorrow: Black Patricia, Nell Kuhlman, Arrow and Estin. Mike made a two-buck mind parlay on the four of them and I'm holding the bet.

FIRST RACE—Rather than go to the ailing Whitneyite, BLACK SHEEP, I'm going to try BROWN SKINNER. This one has worked evenly of late and is as good as any in this cheap field. GRACIOUS to take care of the show end.

SECOND RACE—MACADAM goes for the well-known Bennings dough in the baby jaunt. Works and races well. WISE DAUGHTER and INTERRUPTION are favorites around their stalls and may get in the money circle.

THIRD RACE—EVERFAIR gets in light and seems capable of handling a field of this sort. The mile route will help TREMENDOUS, and there should be a tight fit at the finish. WAYWARD LAD'S recent improvement makes him dangerous.

FOURTH RACE — BARCELONA PETE turned in a sparking race the other day, and I'm giving him the edge over LEROS. Coucci rides the latter. PORTER'S DREAM tries another sprint and is excellent right now although it seems the handlers are preparing for a killing soon over a longer route.

FIFTH RACE—DYAK closed like a house afire the other day and I believe him ready to battle to a decision over these. The chief trouble should come from CATHOP, which has been shown up a fast fellow recently. MOUNTAIN ELK to take care of the show apples.

SIXTH RACE—I am forced to respect the present form of FERVID despite top weight of 116 pounds. UNA impressed with that winning effort last out and should be no worse than second. VILLAGE VAMP is still on my list but I'm weakening.

SEVENTH RACE—DRASTIC DELIGHT for me. I don't care if he's even money or 100-to-1. Must have my two slugs riding. Those legs are sound again and this may be the day. GENERAL COURT drops weight and has an edge over PARTISAN for the place.

Fair Grounds Feature Easy for Eisenberg

Fair Grounds, New Orleans, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—J. J. Robinson's Eisenberg merely cantered along in front of a clever 3-year-old band to win the feature offering at the Fair Grounds today. Mrs. R. T. Flippen's Harold Jr. finished second after forcing the pace all the way, while Doris B. was a distanced third.

A sudden rainstorm, beginning at noon, turned the track into a sea of mud by post time and the subsequent wholesale scratching left small fields in all the events.

Eisenberg was best respected by the betting talent, returning but $8.80 for a $2 ticket. He gave his backers no cause for worry, taking a length lead at the break and maintaining it throughout. Harold Jr. stuck to his guns, and, although no match for the winner, bested the rest.

M'BRIDE'S '21 TEAM FOURTH IN LEAGUE

Acres for the benefit of Tex Rickard. George Rothwell Brown and John Dugan covered the bout for The Post.

The Black Sox players were being tried, and the sentence of $5,000 fine and several years in jail faced them. While the courtroom trial was progressing the boys, notably Chick Gandil, former Nat; Joe Jackson, Eddie Cicotte, Happy Felsh and a couple others played for semipro teams around Chicago at from $100 to $500 an appearance.

Tilden retained his Wimbledon championship, Bishop Michael Joseph Curley was transferred from St. Augustine to Baltimore to take the place of one of the great deceased Americans, Cardinal Gibbons, and Princess Fatima, with a diamond imbedded in her nose, was in Washington on some sort of mission and had a tire blow out on the way to Mount Vernon with former President Wilson. President Harding was resting at Licking Creek with Henry Ford, Harvey Firestone and Thomas A. Edison, and The Post photographer caught Edison taking an afternoon nap just a few days after the aged inventor had revealed that he only gave four hours a night to the bourgeois habit of sleeping.

Griffiths Win Center Game From Potomac

Three field goals by Bill Roberts in an extra period enabled the Griffiths to defeat the Potomac Boat Club, 46-41, and tie with its victim and Delaware & Hudson for the lead in section B, Community Center League. The teams battled to a 38-38 stalemate in regulation time.

In other games played last night, Rhode Island Avenue defeated Superintendent of Documents, 48-8, Sholl's turned back Utah State Society, 44-22, and First Baptist upset Congress Heights, 31-19.

Lorraine Gulli almost had a 400 set in the Washington Ladies League at Columbia, but she had to be satisfied with 398, an all-time record for the loop. Rena Levey cracked the pins for a 154 game, high for the season. El Gee's had 557 and 1,597.

Lindsey Stott's 155 game was high in the Columbia Heights League at Arcadia. Pete Metrokas had a 386 set. Team honors were garnered by Chaconas Market with its 655 and 1,836.

SIR MALCOLM IMPATIENT FOR TRIAL

New Contour of Course at Daytona Worries Briton.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Impatiently eyeing an unfavorable beach, Sir Malcolm Campbell, here to try for a new world land speed record, said today he would stay through March if necessary, to gain a properly smoothed and straightened course.

The British driver and racing officials spent several hours today motoring over the 9-mile course. Close inspection showed the sands greatly improved, but Campbell expressed himself as perturbed by the new contour in the shore line which resulted from a heavy storm last November.

The curves probably will be changed and the course straightened out in time by the tides, but in the present condition of the beach Campbell said "it would be impossible to set a straight course in the Bluebird."

Northeast Winds to Help Course.

Officials were hopeful that northeast winds would spring up soon and put the surface in better shape. It is not smooth enough for racing, but as good as it has ever been at the corresponding period, Campbell said.

He will make some test runs to feel out his car just as soon as possible, and shoot for the record on the same day if the tryout is satisfactory.

It is a virtual certainty that Campbell will not be able to take his car to the beach before Friday, H. E. ("Pop") Myers, American Automobile Association official, here to supervise the speed trials, said. Myers added, however, that the beach appeared to him to be better than it has been at any previous time before the full moon, which will appear February 10. The moon will influence the tides in rolling the speedway smooth.

Despite the immediate prospects, Sir Malcolm speared to be in high spirits today. He joked with friends and said he had completely recovered from his recent attack of influenza.

JERSEY CITY ULTIMATUM ISSUED

Feb. 17 Limit Set for Colacurcio; Johnson Linked to Club.

By ORLO ROBERTSON.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—After attempting for three hours to bring order out of chaos in Jersey City's tangled financial and managerial affairs, the International Baseball League today issued a final ultimatum to Sam Colacucio, giving the youthful owner until February 17 either to prove to the directors he can operate the club or to sell the franchise.

Apparently the situation at the end of the long session was no further advanced than it was a month ago when a committee of three headed by President Charles A. Knapp, and including George Weiss, of Newark, and Warren Giles, of Rochester, was empowered to act.

League Has Buyer Lined Up.

Although not officially announced, it was understood the league still had a responsible buyer under consideration. The club's financial relationships with the Brooklyn Dodgers, the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals are so complicated, however, that it was said they would have to be ironed out before the deal could be consummated.

No names were mentioned, but Walter Johnson is generally considered to be the league choice to take over the managerial reins in case Colacurcio does not operate the club. Recently Colacurcio said he would install Fritz Maisel, of Baltimore, as manager if he retained control of the franchise.

Other than saying the matter would be settled by February 17, President Knapp had no comment to make following today's meeting.

The majority of the directors left immediately after the meeting to attend the annual dinner and frolic of the Radiator League, composed of sports writers, baseball fans and players, in Newark. Jacobs Ruppert was to present members of the pennant-winning Newark club with gold belt buckles.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

SENATOR WALLACE H. WHITE, jr., of Maine, and Judge E. O. Sykes, acting chairman of the Federal Radio Commission, will represent the United States at the North American Radiotelegraph Conference to be held in Mexico City to adjust problems of wave lengths, power of stations and related questions.

The meeting, which was planned last year during the International Radiotelegraph Conference at Madrid, is expected to be in April or May. There will be delegations from Canada, Mexico and Cuba.

Representatives of broadcasting companies, commercial radio, ship owners, educators and others interested in the Mexico City discussions conferred with William R. Castle, jr., Undersecretary of State, and other officials about questions which will come up. This was the first of a series of meetings to be held during the next few weeks.

In addition to Senator White and Judge Sykes, several technical advisers are yet to be named.

The students of Penn State College in Pennsylvania will gather around the loud speakers to listen to the debut of Fred and Tom Waring, former Blue and White men, and the Pennsylvanians on the Old Gold broadcast over WJSV at 10 o'clock tonight.

Not only are the Warings closely associated with the school, where Fred, in his undergraduate days, first formed his band, but his great-grandfather, William G. Waring, was the founder of Penn State College.

"As a chronic listener-in, I enlist your aid in starting a Nation-wide crusade against the prominence given to the flute in both orchestras and bands, while broadcasting," writes Frank E. Jamison, 500 East Capitol street. "Being placed very near the microphone, the tone becomes—when playing forte, especially in the upper register—an ear-piercing shriek, out of all proportion to the sound of the other instruments. Perhaps you may have noticed it."

Ben Hecht, coauthor with Charles MacArthur, of the Broadway production "20th Century" and the stage and screen play, "The Front Page," will introduce the characters of his short story, "Actor's Blood," to be presented in the Five Star Theater over WMAL at 7:30 p. m. "Actor's Blood" is a mystery story that deals with the deaths of an old Shakespearean actor and his daughter, a famous actress.

The Brown University Quartet, unit of the Brown University Musical Clubs, will be heard in a quarter-hour radio recital during the Tea Dansante program over WRC at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. The members of the quartet are John E. Flemming, jr., first tenor; Edward S. Burkle, second tenor; Warren P. McKenney, barytone, and Paul L. Maddock, basso.

ED WYNN lost $25,000 recently when demanding more than that from a toy manufacturer for the use of his name, Variety reports. After the Wynn refusal the manufacturer turned around and got what he wanted for nothing.

"The firm's idea was a new toy to be called the 'Fire Chief,' with Wynn's face to appear on the toy," according to the theatrical publication. "Wynn advised the company it would have to boost its $25,000 offer or he wouldn't do business.

"The manufacturer then went directly to the Texaco Co.—which is sponsoring the Fire Chief broadcasts—and arranged for the use of the billing gratis on a publicity tie-up."

Louis Johnson, national commander of the American Legion, will be heard during the Department of Canada American Legion dinner given in his honor, tonight at the Mount Royal Hotel, in Montreal. Commander Johnson's address and that of President of the Canadian Legion Maj. Rober will be heard over WRC at 9:30 p. m.

Buddy Rogers and Bob Trout will have a session before the WJSV microphone at 6:15 o'clock tonight. It is rumored that Buddy plans to play a mouth organ.

Assisted by an orchestra under George Shackley's direction, Nancy Garner, said to be a niece of the Vice President-elect, and a popular soprano, continues her series of WOR programs at 10:45 o'clock tonight. WOR broadcasts on a frequency of 710 kilocycles.

Eddie Cantor's regular Sunday night broadcasts while he is vacationing and making personal appearances in the South will originate in Florida, beginning next Sunday. Jimmy Wallington and Ben Larsen, production man, will make a round-trip journey to Florida each week-end to join the comedian for the broadcast. Rubinoff and the orchestra will remain in New York and will perform from there.

MAJ. ERNEST BROWN, Chief of Police of the District of Columbia, will speak over WJSV Wednesday, February 8, at 7:15 p. m. under the auspices of the clothes conservation committee—an explanation of the clothes conservation movement sponsored by Council of Social Agencies and the District of Columbia Unemployment Committee.

A group of four numbers will be heard when Rose Chanelle and Sidney's Orchestra gather round the microphones at WRC at 7:30 o'clock tonight for another Wakefield Dairy program.

During January WJSV received audience mail from 40 States in the Union. The exceptions were Arkansas, Idaho, Iowa, Louisiana, Montana, Nevada, Oklahoma, Oregon and South Dakota.

The District of Columbia Federation of Music Clubs, Gertrude Lyons, president, presents the second broadcast of the third series of programs over WRC at 6:45 o'clock tonight, when two-piano music will be featured in the recital arranged by Thelma Callahan, chairman of radio for 1933.

The exciting experiences of a secret service agent in India, told by M. J. J. Rajput, famous native Hindu spy-hunter, are promised by the new Abner Drury Brewery programs, beginning Monday, February 13, over Station WJSV.

In a three-nights-a-week series Rajput, former member of the British intelligence service, will personally relate the thrilling story of his adventures with spies and master criminals in India. Rajput is a high-caste Hindu from Mishnagar, India, and an Oxford graduate. He has just completed a series of broadcasts on WBBM, the Chicago Columbia network station.

Ed Wynn: I see the police are investigating a colony of nudists. Well, they won't get anywhere.

Graham McNamee: Why not, Chief?

Wynn: The trouble is, you can't pin anything on 'em.

Bob White

The Old Philosopher

SAYS:

Question: I am an Italian. Do you think it fair that my people should be subject to such slang names as we continually hear the Italians called?

Answer: No, it is not fair; it is not American; it is ignorant.

It is a pity that we here in America—so many of us—misunderstand the Italian. They are a lovely people, and from them come some of our finest citizens, of whom any nation may well be proud. Of course, they have their criminals, as we have, but the cut-throat of Italy is no more representative of the Italian people then are our thugs typical of America as a whole.

These people from far-off Italy are the pleasantest people in the world with whom to live. They are very kind and they love children. They are exceptionally polite and loyal. They can teach us many a lesson. If you travel through Italy you will be surprised at the politeness of the public servant. It is a rude shock to come back to our own land, and meet with the abruptness of some of our State employes.

The Italians are warm lovers, liberal thinkers and hold a high taste for art and literature. That is why some of the world's great have gone to Italy to spend their last days there among these friendly folk. Wagner from Germany, Keats, Shelly and Ruskin from England. Landor, Watts and Goethe—all found Italy and the Italians a lovely people.

It is unbecoming to any American to call the Italian any other name than that of which he is proud.

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

In a world where plant life does not exist countless billions of beings dependent entirely on plant life thrive. It is the deep sea. In this little-known realm of dark ocean depths thousands of strange kinds of fish depend entirely on vegetation for their existence, although vegetation can not grow there.

Investigations by William Beebe concerning marine life off the coast of Bermuda, as reported by the National Geographic Society, reveal that at lower depths of the ocean fish live almost entirely on other fish and animal life—but the ultimate source of food for the millions of creatures there is plant life.

Plant life thrives at the surface; shrimp and fish eat it there; at lower levels fish live on these creatures—and so on as far down as the ocean has been explored.

* * * *

When the story was started about hiding one's head in the mistaken belief that the entire body was then safe from view, somebody apparently confused the ostrich and the turtle. The ostrich, about whom this story is popularly told, is not guilty of this mistake. It is rather the turtle. But the turtle is usually wise in this respect by drawing its head into its shell, which is ample protection from many enemies.

However, like the proverbial ostrich the turtle will often, in case of danger, insert its forward extremity into the nearest mud or rock crevice at hand.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ADOLF MAKES THE GRADE.

THE Watch on the Rhine now has a Hitler movement.

• • • •

Germany's new "iron chandelier" is Adolf Hitler, the Austrian boy who made good in the German cities.

• • • •

If it doesn't do anything else it at least sets a new style for mustaches in Germany's ruling circles. Adolph's mustache is distinctly Charlie Chaplin. It would have been laughed out of the palace in the old days when mustaches were judged by wing spread.

• • • •

HITLER'S ambitious campaign began in the beer cellars of Munich shortly after the war. Which just goes to show that any argument begun over a stein of real beer may have far-reaching consequences.

• • • •

Shortly after his beer cellar activities, Adolf tried to put across a revolution but was tossed into the hoosegow. He was pardoned after serving one year. And the pardon is now regarded by many Germans as one of the major mistakes of history.

• • • •

He wants to be the German Mussolini and is equipped with all the gestures, although not so convincing in the newsreels.

• • • •

When Von Hindenburg was the Kaiser's favorite war lord, Hitler was a private who would have been thrown into the guardhouse for speaking out of turn. A few short years ago Adolf wouldn't have been allowed to hold Kaiser Wilhelm's horse.

• • • •

And today he is kingfish of Germany, striding noisily through the purple corridors of roalty and scratching matches on the oil paintings of the former bigwigs.

• • • •

WHEN former Kaiser Wilhelm received the news that Adolf was head man in Berlin, he took up 6 inches of slack in his mustache, turned a deep crimson and started chasing his pet dachshund around in circles.

• • • •

Willie's attitude is that under Hitler the Fatherland goes not only to the dogs, but to the mechanical rabbits.

Strictly speaking, Hitler is not in full authority, as he is serving with a coalition cabinet, but those who know Adolf are predicting that the lion will soon swallow its keepers.

On the other hand, it is said that Von Hindenburg put Hitler in as chancellor in the conviction that when taken off a soap box and made to function with orthodox furniture, he would prove to be nothing more than a good radio comic like Jack Pearl. Vas you dere, Sharlie?

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

There are two codes in driving and each is equally important in prevention of accidents.

The legal code, stating the maximum speed, regulations in turning, stopping and starting, is inflexible. Violators are subject to arrest and fine. They have stepped beyond the law.

The second code, a moral one, is not strictly defined and adaptable to the occasion. The penalties for violations are usually no more severe than a guilty conscience. Yet in consequence, the violations of driving ethics may be more severe than infringements on the legal code. Death, injury and demolished property are the possible results of laxity in driving.

Accidents figures to date:

BOGUS CASH MAKING AS TOLD BY SUSPECT AMAZES U.S. AGENTS

Lillie Says That He Almost Learned Full Counterfeiting Art in Six Months.

The self-confessed counterfeiter, Lester Lawrence Lillie, alias Lawrence DuMont, who amazed Secret Service men by his rapidly acquired ability to reproduce bogus bills, is now facing the prospect of two charges of assault with intent to kill and manufacture, possession and distribution of counterfeit money.

His hand clasped firmly on the edge of an iron cot in the Third Precinct, Lillie, 25 years old, told how he almost mastered, in a few months, an art which takes years to grasp.

"I developed it all in six months," he said. "It's a new process—at least, I think it is. I studied engraving in books in the Congressional Library, then I set up my plant and started experimenting. A few weeks ago I began turning out bills that I thought were all right. I can now make a plate in two hours."

Just an Old Process.

While Lillie believed he had developed a new process, the Secret Service agents said it is an old counterfeiting process, although they marveled at his ability to acquire his knowledge of photo etching in such a brief while.

Lillie said he had not gone beyond his own research in the study of engraving, but he later told the Secret Service men that he had spent six weeks in a printing and engraving school in New York. He quit, he said, because he didn't like it.

The youth said he started counterfeiting to recoup a series of stock market losses which swept away an inheritance of $22,000. The Secret Service men seriously doubt his talk of stock market losses.

Shot Two Patrolmen.

He was arrested Monday night after he had shot Patrolman H. L. Lay and Arthur Gernhofer, while attempting to escape after he had been caught in a business house near Eighteenth street and Columbia road while trying to pass one of the bogus $10 bills. Lay, who was shot in the thigh by Lillie, will not have to have his leg amputated, as was feared by physicians. Gernhofer was shot near the left knee. His condition is not serious.

The money which Lillie says he lost in the stock market was the property, he said, of his mother, who lives at 1201 Thirteenth street, and a brother, Joseph Lillie, a linotype operator. The money was left to them by his father, he said, who was a coal merchant.

After he had studied counterfeiting, Lillie rented an apartment at 1223 Twelfth street northwest, and purchased equipment. He practiced a few months, making bogus bills Last month, he said, he believed he had perfected the process and decided to distribute them.

Worked Regular Hours.

He worked regular hours making the bogus bills. The bills, he said, he used for buying liquor, betting on horses.

In his room, the detectives found complete counterfeiting equipment, including a printing press, lamps, engraving chemicals and copper engraving plates to make counterfeit bills of $1, $10 and $20 denominations.

Secret service men said they had reports of only $100 in the bogus bills having been distributed here. Lillie said he had distributed only a "small amount." In a cache underneath the flooring of his apartment, the police found approximately $2,000 in bogus bills.

Purchase of Airport Hit By Kenilworth Citizens

The Kenilworth Citizens Association has gone on record as being opposed to either leasing or buying of Washington-Hoover Airport for municipal use.

$562,000 ELECTRIC CUT UP TO COURT

Decree's Signing Today Would Put New Sliding Scale to Work.

By remanding to the District Supreme Court the electric rate litigation the District Court of Appeals yesterday paved the way for the signing of a decree today in the former court establishing a new sliding scale for reduction of rates by the Public Utilities Commission on February 20.

Today counsel for the commission and the Potomac Electric Power Co. and People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech will present the decree to Justice Luhring and ask that he sign it as a modification of his former decision. The only essential differences between the two documents is that the newer one reduces the percentage of excess profits which are applicable for rate slashing.

This court action is in accordance with an amicable agreement reached after prolonged negotiations and announced Monday. Because of the termination of litigation Washington consumers will get $562,000 cut from their annual electric bills, starting February 20.

Meanwhile, rate experts of the power company and the commission are drafting tentative schedules for apportioning the $562,000 equitably among the several classes of service. A hearing to determine this distribution will be held on February 16.

House Passes $25,000 For Inaugural Police

The House yesterday approved a $25,000 appropriation to permit the District Commissioners to provide adequate police protection during the inaugural ceremonies and sent the measure to the Senate.

Favorable action already has been taken by the Senate District Committee. The Commissioners plan to bring some 200 policemen here to augment the Washington force and must pay their expenses. Minor changes were made in the House bill's phraseology.

Miss Helen Ball, 26, of 908 Spring road northwest, suffered severe cuts and bruises late yesterday when struck by an automobile at New Hampshire avenue and Princeton place northwest. She was treated at Garfield Hospital.

Police said the automobile was driven by Harry R. Ober, 19, of 5718 Third street northwest.

Schoolgirl Hurt in Fall.

Eleanor Vinson, 17-year-old Western High School student, was treated at Georgetown Hospital yesterday for severe injuries to her head, received when she fell while leaving school. Miss Vinson lives at 4107 Ellicott street northwest.

BOY SCOUTS TO ACT AS ROOSEVELT AIDS

Four of Eagle Rank Will Be at Presidential Reviewing Stand.

Acceptance of an offer made by the Boy Scouts of America to provide aids for Gov. Roosevelt in the reviewing stand on Inauguration Day was announced yesterday for President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt by Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the inaugural committee. In a letter addressed to James E. West, chief scout executive, Admiral Grayson asked the former to designate four eagle Scouts to serve as aids on the presidential reviewing stand and to make the additional arrangements for a group of Scouts to be placed every 10 feet in front of the presidential stand in the Court of Honor. Admiral Grayson asked Mr. West to have Linn C. Drake, Washington Scout executive, confer with Col. E. M. Watson, chairman of the parade committee, on the number of Scouts who will be needed for the duty and the manner of their selection.

President-elect Roosevelt has been president of the Boy Scout Foundation of Greater New York for twelve years and will become the honorary president of the Boy Scouts of America on March 4. He approved the suggestion for the use of Boy Scouts in the Court of Honor at a dinner of the New York Foundation he attended prior to his recent trip to Warm Springs.

Coming From Georgia.

Another feature of the inaugural parade having to do with Boy Scout participation will be the presence of the Manchester (Ga.) Boy Scout Drum and Bugle Corps. This organization, located in a town close to Warm Springs, is being included at the request of Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt. Citizens of Manchester have gone in to contributing funds necessary to equip the corps with special uniforms for the occasion. Preparation has been made also to utilize members of the District of Columbia patrols as ushers and ticket takers at the inaugural stands.

The perfection of plans to give national radio publicity to the inaugural parade was made public yesterday by H. L. Pettey, chairman of the inaugural radio committee. Both the Columbia Broadcasting system and National Broadcasting Co. have donated three 15-minute periods with national hookups, during the next three weeks, to be used by speakers on inaugural topics.

Ticket Applications Sent Out.

Letters containing 70,000 applications for grandstand tickets, have been mailed by the committee on ticket sales outside of Washington to editors, bankers, civic organizations and other organized groups all along the Atlantic seaboard. The committee hopes in this way to have the out-of-town, as well as the local spectators, equipped with tickets beforehand and avoid any last day jam.

Sales actually made and reservations which have been filed have already made such deep inroads into the $2 and $3 grandstand seats for the inaugural parade as to cause Melvin D. Hildreth, executive secretary of the grandstand ticket sales committee, to announce that the supply in these classes would be exhausted by the end of the week at the rate at which they are going.

The best available seats remaining in any quantity are in the middle brackets of $4, $5 and $6.

Acceptances received yesterday by the committee on distinguished guests from three more governors brought the number of those who will attend the Roosevelt inaugural to 25. The governors who have just stated their intention of attending are Henry Horner of Illinois, Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky and M. S. Conner of Mississippi.

LABOR MARKS TIME AS CRISIS NEARS IN MALL WAGE BATTLE

Other Trades Threaten to Strike if Union Carpenters Are Replaced.

With the crisis in the Mall building wage controversy due tomorrow when an $8-per-day wage takes effect for union carpenters, organized labor generally was in a state of "watchful waiting."

Holding their regular meeting last night, the Washington Building Trades Council discussed the possibility of reductions being extended to trades other than the carpenters, who are not affiliated with the council.

However, in the absence of any move by contractors, the building trades council suspended action.

A group of general and subcontractors scheduled to meet yesterday in the office of R. E. Miller, chairman of the general wage reduction committee, postponed their gathering until later in the week. No reason was forthcoming for the delay. It was upon this meeting that considerable anxiety regarding the progress of the Mall program had hinged, if organized labor's objections to wage cuts are to be credited.

Conference Fruitless.

A group of brick and stone masonry contractors, however, are understood to have met in Mr. Miller's office and talked over wage reductions without definite result.

John Locher, president of the Washington Building Trades Council, last night again enunciated the edict that all trades would walk out on the Federal projects if the carpenters quit in protest of the $8 wage cut and were replaced by nonunion laborers.

The council head said that if the carpenters decided on a "lockout" but no nonunion workers were put on in their places, then the other trades would continue work.

Of interest in connection with the building project was the action of the House yesterday in rejecting the Goss bill to prevent general contractors on Government buildings from parceling out the work to subcontractors through competitive bidding.

Tense Competition.

The bill would have forced awards on contracts amounting to more than $5,000 to bidders who furnished the names of subcontractors, material men and supply men they intended to use.

Representative Goss (Republican), Connecticut, said the measure was designed to put an end to "a vicious practice of bid shopping or bid peddling." After the general contractor gets a contract, he said, he invites bids from material and supply men and others.

"In their anxiety to keep their organizations at work," he said, "the cut-throat competition between the several concerns makes the cost of the work much lower to the general contractor than he figured in his bid, the difference being additional profit. It is testified that these conditions often bring about the failure of the subcontractor."

The bill was opposed vigorously by LaGuardia (Republican), New York, and Britten (Republican), Illinois.

LaGuardia said the penalties provided in the measure were ineffective and would result in larger cost to the Government.

Britten said it would result in the destruction of the small contractor.

G. A. R. Will Keep Lincoln Birth Date

Senator Otis Glenn and Col. Grant Will Speak at Celebration.

The 124th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln will be observed at a mass meeting next Monday night at the First Congregational Church, under auspices of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Senator Otis F. Glenn, of Illinois, and Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d will be the principal speakers.

Special features of the program will be the reading of the American's Creed by its author, William Tyler Page; songs by the Treble Clef Trio, comprised of Gertrude Lyons, Hilda Nelson and Martha Wooley, and solos by E. Albert Lang and George B. Cowles.

Hyde Blames Taxicabs For Dangerous Traffic

Declaring that the traffic situation in Washington was chaotic, Dorsey Hyde, secretary of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, told the North Cleveland Park Citizens Association last night that Washington was one of the five cities of the country that lead in the number of automobile accidents reported monthly.

He attributed the number of accidents in Washington largely to the unregulated taxicabs. Men driving from 14 to 18 hours a day, in an effort to make a living, he said, endanger their own lives as well as the lives of other people.

Hoover Keeps Autographed Medicine Ball as Souvenir

President Hoover has a momento of real pleasure at the White House which he will carry back to private life with him.

The souvenir means both sentiment and benefit to the President. It is one of the medicine balls used in the morning exercises of the "medicine ball cabinet."

The ball is to be autographed by the men who have made up the cabinet, which has met each morning, exclusive of Sundays and days when the President was away from the city, for four years.

A similar momento will go to each member of the group, which has changed very little since its start.

At present, besides Mr. Hoover, the group includes Associate Justice Stone, Attorney General Mitchell, Secretary of Interior Wilbur, Secretary of War Hurley, Secretary of Commerce Chapin, Solicitor General Thacher, Lawrence Richey and Walter Newton, of the presidential secretariat; Capt. Boone, Mark Sullivan, author and newspaper writer; Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Heath, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Jahncke and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Ballentine.

Soldiers' Home Post Goes to Col. Morrow

Named Deputy Governor by Hurley in Place of Maj. West.

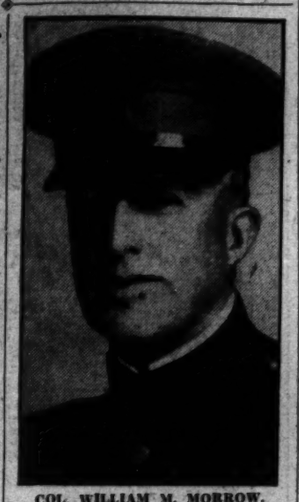
Col. William M. Morrow, U. S. A., retired, has been designated by Secretary of War Hurley as deputy governor of the United States Soldiers' Home, according to an announcement yesterday at the War Department.

He will succeed Maj. Parker W. West on February 28. Maj. West has been at Soldiers' Home for 23 years and has completed a record of 57 years' service in the Army.

A distinguished officer, holding a number of decorations and citations, Col. Morrow has risen through the ranks of the Army. He was born in Niles, Mich., September 6, 1866. He holds the Distinguished Service Cross, the Distinguished Service Medal and the Silver Star Citation from the American Government, as well as a number of foreign decorations, including the Croix de Guerre and the Legion of Honor.

Col. and Mrs. Morrow live at the Westmoreland Apartments. It is expected that they will go to the Soldiers' Home soon.

Under the law, the deputy governor of the Soldiers' Home is appointed by the direction of the President, acting upon the recommendation of the board of commissioners of the Home and the designation of the Secretary of War. The appointment is not subject to confirmation and is for a period of three years.



COL. WILLIAM M. MORROW.

SPEAKER PREDICTS GOOD BRICK FUTURE

Schlake Sees Upward Trend in Address Delivered at Shoreham Hotel.

Although he hesitated to predict just when building conditions would improve, William Schlake, of Chicago, president of the Common Brick Manufacturers Association of America, yesterday told delegates attending the annual convention at the Shoreham Hotel that present indications forecast an upward trend in the future.

The general session was given over to a discussion of reinforced brick masonry, one of the newer developments of the industry. During the afternoon the 150 delegates visited the brick plants of West Brothers and United Clay Products Co., both of Washington. They then visited the Corcoran Gallery of Art and were personally conducted through the gallery by C. Powell Minnigerode, director.

During the evening session a motion picture showing testing operations of reinforced brick work was shown and a demonstration of clay dealring was given by Edward Krauss, of Philadelphia.

Other speakers on yesterday's program were: E. S. Barkwell, of Cleveland, treasurer; Ralph P. Stoddard, of Cleveland, secretary; Hugo Filippi, of Chicago; J. F. Nicholl, of St. Louis; Joseph A. Brown, of Baltimore; E. F. Gallagher, of Boston; Edward Krauss, of Philadelphia, and Charles H. Fork, of Detroit.

Firm Offers $14,036 To Raze Census Building

Submitting an offer of $14,036 to raze the old Census Bureau Building, the Hechinger Housewrecking Corporation of Washington was high bidder when offers were opened yesterday in the office of Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, Director of Public Buildings and Parks.

Known as Building D in the Mall area, the structure is located between Four-and-a-half street and Sixth street. The Newman Wrecking Co. submitted the next offer, a bid of $6,350. Other bids ranged as low as $1,165. The contract award has not been made as yet. The removal of the building will benefit the heating system in the Mall and will remove a dangerous fire hazard, according to Col. Grant.

Southeast Glee Club Rehearsing Sousa Songs

COPELAND HOUSING PROGRAM PRAISED

Architects' Delegation Asks D. C. Commissioners to Indorse Plan.

Arguments for indorsement of the Copeland Housing Corporation bill were placed before the District Commissioners yesterday by a delegation representing the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, which sponsors the measure.

The delegation described housing conditions in the poorer sections of the Capital and advanced the following six reasons why the Commissioners should approve the measure:

The project would aid unemployment while removing slum conditions and renovating buildings in blighted areas; it would stimulate large scale consolidation of blighted area property with the view of gradually amortizing the value of improvements and rebuilding suitable housing; the city would benefit through greater tax returns; tenants would gain more adequate housing accommodations; real estate values would be stabilized by information obtained from construction inventories; it would make possible the application of modern neighborhood planning, zoning, and building regulations to older sections of the city.

Members of the delegation included Louis Justement, Arthur B. Heaton, Robert F. Beresford, and Delos H. Smith, of the housing committee of the architects' chapter.

Quantities of Food To Be Given Away

Free Auto, Appliances for Household Use Included at Show.

A greater quantity of foodstuff than has ever before been distributed at any local food show will be given away at the second annual United Food Stores Exposition, opening in the Washington Auditorium Saturday night, the sponsors announced yesterday. Hundreds of baskets of eatables will be handed out during the exposition, according to the show committee, of which Morris L. Kraft is chairman, and Morris Zigderhouse, vice chairman.

These awards, the committee pointed out, will be made in addition to the capital prizes and the individual prizes to be given to winners in the various contests arranged in connection with the show program. The more important prizes include a 1933 automobile, half a dozen electric refrigerators, and other electrical household appliances.

Preparations are going forward for the public wedding. This event will take place at the auditorium next Wednesday night, with Miss Ruth Odom, 1733 Twentieth street northwest, and Harold W. Hodges, 3011 Cambridge place northwest, as the bride and bridegroom.

GREATER FACILITIES FOR NIGHT SCHOOLS URGED BY CITIZENS

Millan Says Appeals for Aid Pile Up While Relief Funds Fall Off.

Efforts to have the Columbia Heights Citizens Association indorse the birth control bill now before the Senate Judiciary Committee were successfully blocked last night by Albert E. Stephan, a delegate to the Federation of Citizens Associations, on the ground that the subject is not within the province of a citizens' association.

Approval of the birth control legislation was urged by Mrs. Lucy Swanton, after W. W. Millan, president of the Board of Public Welfare, and recently elected president of the District Bar Association, told the gathering of the large number of children and mothers in distress in Washington.

In opposing the proposal, Mr. Stephan applied the same argument he had used earlier in the meeting to object to efforts to vote on two matters of international import. These matters were related to war debts and peace disputes. Mr. Stephan was successful in convincing his fellow members that a citizens' association should confine itself strictly to local problems. The members were as strongly convinced when asked to reject the birth-control resolution on the same grounds.

Welfare Work Outlined.

Mr. Millan gave a detailed description of the workings of the Board of Public Welfare and of the institutions under its control. He said that he had no idea how unfortunate persons are to be cared for after present funds of the board run out. He pointed out that the board has received 25,000 applications for relief since August 1 and that 7,000 families are on the rolls of the board.

The association went on record urging that the Board of Education act to provide facilities for students who have been denied entrance to night schools this month because of lack of teachers. Miss Lucy Swanton, chairman of the education committee of the association, reported that 500 applicants to night schools were denied entrance at the opening of the present semester. The night teaching staff has been curtailed by the Board of Education because of lack of funds.

Hot Meals for Poor.

Indorsement was given reestablishment of the school and parent-teacher committee for distribution of funds for recess lunches for children unable to pay for this nourishment. Recommendation was made that school officials arrange to provide hot meals for indigent children.

Liability insurance for taxicab drivers and operators of other public vehicles was urged. Mrs. Mary T. Norton, chairman of the House District Committee, was commended for demanding an investigation of a fatality on Fourteenth street near Euclid street northwest last month. Dangerous conditions on Fourteenth street between Park road and Florida avenue will be called to the attention of District officials, it was decided.

Only One Car Remains As Prize at Exhibit

With awarding of two automobiles yesterday of the eight allotted as attendance prizes at the automobile show, there remains but one to be called for, it was announced by the show management.

Cars were claimed yesterday by Dr. William G. Young, 2908 Forty-fifth street, a Rockne coupe, and Mrs. Nellie A. Tanner, 112 Marvin avenue, Clarendon, Va., a Chevrolet.

Movie Picture Group Ends Sessions Tonight

The closing session of the annual meeting of the Federal Motion Picture Council will be held tonight at Eckington Presbyterian Church. The Rev. William Sheafe Chase will preside.

There will be a musical program by Paul Garber and other entertainment features.

Chamber Opposes Taxi Dance Halls

Directors Point Out Other Cities Have Abolished Such Places.

Strong opposition to the operation of so-called taxi dance halls in the District was voiced by the board of directors of the Washington Chamber of Commerce yesterday after hearing a report from the chamber's committee on public recreation, in which it was pointed out that San Francisco, Seattle and many other cities had succeeded in abolishing such amusement places, and that New York and Washington are about the only two large cities in which they now operate.

The board also indorsed the committee's favorable action on a bill providing for the acquisition of a right of way around one side of Fort Myer to connect the Lee boulevard and Arlington Memorial Bridge.

The directors likewise indorsed the arrangement whereby Station WMAL will handle the N. B. C. Blue Network. John A. Eckert was designated to appear before the Federal Radio Commission in support of this plan.

Mrs. Costigan to Speak.

Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, wife of Senator Costigan, of Colorado, will address the political affairs committee of the Young Democrats Club on the settlement of war debts, at an open meeting today at 8 p. m. at the Women's National Democratic Club, 1526 New Hampshire avenue.
